It's Green Christmas For South Ontario

Children Flee From Belfast

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Christians around the world turned their thoughts from turmoil today to celebrate the birth of the Prince of Peace.

One hundred children—50 Protestant and 50 Roman Catholic—were flown from strife-torn Belfast for a danger-free Christmas in London, and Arabs from neighboring states streamed to Israeli-occupied Bethlehem for observance in the city where Christ was born.

In South Vietnam, opposing sides scheduled ceasefires, military chiefs prepared for dinners with all the trimmings for the 182,500 U.S. soldiers still in the country, hospitals at Long Binh were gaily decorated, Christmas trees and tinsel went on sale in Saigon, and such entertainers as Bob Hope, Johnny Grant and Martha Raye led troupes of entertainers to big American bases.

Homeward-bound U.S. soldiers had special cargo aboard their plane as it landed in Chicago Thursday: An 11-months-old war orphan to be adopted by a Bowie, Md., couple. "It's just a fantastic Christmas," exulted Mrs. Gary Allen when they presented her with the child.

The religious warfare in Northern Ireland was temporarily forgotten by 100 schoolchildren from the bullet-scarred Protestant Shankill Road and Catholic Ardoyne sectarian strongholds. An insurance company paid their way to London to meet Santa Claus, visit a pantomime theatre and see the city's Christmas lights. The children sang, cheered and laughed as they stepped from their plane in the British capital.

Bethlehem braced for 35,000 pilgrims, among them Arabs from neighboring states. Every Christmas since Israel occupied the city in 1967, Arabs have attended holy ceremonies.

Extra police were assigned to patrol the winding, cobbled streets of the city and soldiers were ordered to mingle with the crowd. Some 19,000 pilgrims were expected at Christmas Eve celebrations culminating with a midnight pontifical mass at the Church of the Nativity built over the cave where Jesus was believed born.

'Tis Season To Be Jolly

PORT HARDY, B.C. (CP) — You could tell it was the holiday season when the freighter Skeena Prince paid its latest visit to this small community on the northern tip of Vancouver Island.

The cargo consisted of 3 tons of general freight, 3.3 tons of food—and 23.6 tons of beer.

Sky to Clear For Holiday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It will be a green Christmas in southern Ontario and a cold one in Alberta, but elsewhere in Canada, the weatherman has little unusual to report for this time of year.

In Toronto, usually covered with a layer of grimy snow by now, some lawns are still green. What little snow that remains from an earlier storm is expected to disappear in above-freezing temperatures. Christmas day, Boxing Day will be milder.

But in Alberta, Christmas morning is expected to be extremely cold, with temperatures ranging from 25 below to 40 below. The high for the day is not expected to exceed five or 10 below.

Elsewhere on the Prairies, daytime highs are expected to be around freezing in the south and about 15 below in the north.

British Columbia is expecting a mixed bag, with clear, cold weather in the north, cold and snow in the southern interior and rain and some snow by the lower coastal area.

The Ottawa area is expected to be cloudy and mild, with intermittent rain or wet snow for Christmas Eve and Christmas Day.

The Montreal weather will be a little colder—15 to 25 degrees maximum—with about an inch of snow due Thursday.

The Maritimes are expecting the weather to warm up to seasonal values after a cold snap which has sent temperatures below zero at night. There will be some snow and rain with temperatures generally in the mid-30s.

Christmas Day in Newfoundland will be snowy and cold with temperatures ranging from 10 to 25 above.

Christmas Travel Is Heavy

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

It may be poor weather for sleighing — but normal passenger carriers aren't complaining.

Both train and bus passengers arriving and departing at Belleville terminals have been building in number and the home - for - Christmas rush is on.

While crowds were not spectacular — running roughly parallel to other years — the big push was expected at local passenger stations later today, as Christmas drew that much nearer.

One apparent reason for this was that people began departing — and arriving — a day earlier than usual, said travel spokesome.

A CN spokesmen said trains — up to last night — were arriving close to scheduled times — a contrast to last year when a fierce pre-Christmas storm created movement.

"We've been lucky so far this year," said the railroad official, although an eye was being kept on weather conditions and passenger volume. Extra sections were added to all 5 east-west trains starting last night.

Barbara Jean Goes Home

Christmas Homecoming Time

BY HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

It's Christmas.
The Happy Time.
The time for coming home again.
The time of family reunion.

Sociologists say we're more kinesant. The Mobile Society they say. If so, the yuicide reunion may be an old tradition with new significance drawing Canadians over wider and wider distances.

At 17, it isn't exactly like that for Barbara Jean Proulx, (above). Homecoming is not so much a new experience but one she's been renewing for years, despite her youth.

For years, her homegoing has meant a 1,300-mile trip from Belleville to the wintering depths of northern Ontario.

This week she sets out again travelling the farthest distance home of any of 380 fellow students at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Home is McKenzie Island, a mining community north of Kenora, near the Manitoba border, the terminal of a near two-day train trip.

Christmas gifts are among her great expectations.

But the greatest: The family reunion, with her miner father, her mother, brother — and, she hopes, a grandmother from Winnipeg.

The more family the better.

"Family," indicated Barbara, "At Christmas it's the exciting thing — to be with your family."

Montreal Hotel Fire Ousts 750

MONTREAL (CP) — About 750 guests were safely evacuated from their rooms Thursday night after two fires broke out in the 16-storey downtown Sheraton-Mount Royal Hotel.

The guests left their rooms after being called either by telephone from the hotel desk or by hotel employees who pounded on their doors. Most returned to their rooms early today.

Firemen were first called shortly after 11:30 p.m. to put out a fire in the mezzanine level that started in a pile of cardboard boxes. It was quickly extinguished.

Meanwhile, a second fire broke out in a ninth-floor kitchen adjoining a ballroom where a function was being held.

Two more alarms were sounded and more than 100 firemen swarmed through the hotel.

Bhutto May Invite Sheik To Take Government Post

RAWALPINDI, West Pakistan (Reuter) — President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto swore in a 19-man cabinet in a 3 a.m. ceremony here today and sparked speculation he may invite the East Pakistani leader, Sheik Mujibur Rahman, to join his government.

There was no explanation for the early-morning scheduling at the president's house except that Bhutto has been busy outlining generals and admirals and personally directing practically every detail of his new regime since he took over power from Gen. Yahya Khan Monday.

"At the moment, from the province of East Pakistan only three elected representatives of the people are present in Rawalpindi," Bhutto said in a statement shortly after announcing the names of his ministers.

"One of these has joined my government as vice-president (Nurul Amin). Another has joined my cabinet as a minister (Raja Tidev Roy) and I am holding discussions with a third."

This third elected representative is Sheik Mujib. Political sources said Mujib.

Hitch-hiker Thumbed Himself New Job

TORONTO (CP) — John Ingley, an unemployed taxi driver, stuck out his thumb and pulled himself out of his jobless circumstances, with a little help from a local Santa Claus.

"It was a wonderful thing," Ingley said later in an interview.

He was hitch-hiking in suburban Toronto after being turned down at a job interview.

John Lynch, a real estate agent pulled up, gave him a lift and asked what he was doing.

Mr. Ingley, 38, said he was looking for work.

The real estate agent drove him around to several factory sites. At their sixth stop, Mr. Ingley was offered a job.

"He didn't even know me," said Mr. Ingley. "How often in a city this size do you find a guy who will take the time to help somebody?"

Pre-Christmas Sales Reflect Optimism

By HARRY MULKALL
Staff Reporter

Christmas sales, although partially tied to newer strings in Belleville this year, are likely following a national trend that sees consumers spending more money than ever.

"Consumers definitely are spending again," says the Belleville Downtown Association, representing businessmen in the city's centre.

And one leading local financ ance company spokesman said his firm's small - loans business — usually an index of consumer spending at this time of year — had doubled from last Christmas.

Response from other financial houses — banks and other finance companies — was more restrained.

But indications are that when the cash, cheques — and credit slips — are counted after the Christmas rush, Bellevillians and their rural neighbors serviced by the city, will have spent at least as much, likely more money than ever. This, after a long prelude of tight-money and frequent unemployment.

But, in Belleville where the money is spent may interest most merchants as much as when and how.

It's difficult to say, even during the last minutes of the buying rush, just how much may be setting all the cash registers around town clicking.

Traditional outlines have been blurred.

Christmas 1971 brought with it a sharp increase in competition for all sections of the Belleville commercial community — east, west and downtown.

For this is the Christmas Quinte Mall — with its glitter of new, recently-enclosed store fronts — hung out its glamorous shingle in Belleville's strategic north end.

Some long-established merchants admit the new venture siphoned off business — maybe even bringing a little commercial cups from overflowing. Yet, not everyone is complaining. Sales, for most are still up.

Business is "rather varied" in the downtown area, is the way the city-centre merchants describe it in the official organization release.

Reaction was varied from spokesmen for shopping centres in the east and west ends, though neither seemed greatly alarmed.

But what about the consumers — and their money?

One finance company official said his firm's small-loans business didn't seem to be showing a "spectacular" December increase over other years.

One of the city's main bank branches reported a near-similar situation.

"For consumer purchases it's definitely down," said a bank spokesman. "I don't know if it indicates that the guy in the street has at extra buck, whether he's saved a bit of money . . . ", he added.

A colleague at another bank had much the same tale — but suggested people already indebted for small loans might prefer turning to finance companies for Christmas shopping sprees.

But consumer borrowing is up "twice as much as last year," claims the manager of another city finance company.

The reason, believes Gordon Provencher, of Niagara Loans, is after waiting for a stark economic period, people are regaining confidence and the climate is changing.

"I think they're buying more because they were waiting — they didn't know exactly what was going to happen and now they realize it's not so bad . . . work is picking up and they're getting bits more chances I think."

Borrowers may have increased their loans by about $500.

Where does the money go?

Store vehicles may account for at least 30 per cent of Christmas spending.

More luxurious household items — washing machines, color television help account for much of the rest, says Mr. Provencher.

This seemed borne out by one source — Douglas Shaw, president of the 'Centennial' Belleville Plaza Merchants Association.

Mr. Shaw is also manager of Clearney's Furniture World and says sales this December, have been running ahead of last Christmas season — in fact up 30 per cent, he says. And what are the people buying?

Much is what surprised us this year," says Mr. Shaw. "People are in a mood to treat themselves in our line. But this year they went for chesterfields — which surprised us. We only sold a lot of cedar chests, which were almost a thing of the past. . . . Also, television and stereos are still big with family members, at this time of year."

As their association president, he claimed the sales of a number of "very pleased" merchants at east end stripping centre.

"However, the value of the purchases may not be greater, for when queried if the new mall was another magnet for consumer money, Mr. Shaw said traffic around the plaza wasn't as heavy this year.

What it could come down to is that without the new mall it could have been a smash Christmas.

In the city's west limits, Towers Discount Department Store was reporting a last-minute rush after the seasonal shopping spree got off to a slow start in Belleville.

Volume of sales, although difficult to estimate right now, should be close to last year, said manager Frank Strelecki.

Sales were probably lost to the mall — and "other new "new competition" moves into easy area.

Speaking for merchants in the traditional shopping core of the city, downtown association president Roger Porter described business as "rather varied".

"Consumers are definitely spending again. There's no doubt about it — in every department."

Then he added:

"But I still haven't caught up — in every department."

Sad.

Cambridge Leaseholds, developer of the northend mall, noted while its 40 individual stores don't submit figures until the month's end, the centre has been "very busy . . . and most of the merchants have been quite well pleased."

Since it's the centre's first Christmas, comparisons are not possible but so far in December the mall's parking counter has totalled 97,750 cars using it, big parking lot so far in December — the highest of any month since it opened in mid-summer.

Provincial Approval Needed for Addition

Belleville General Hospital's solution to the problem of requiring additional space in the new administration block is to proceed with construction, may rest with the Ontario Government.

At November meeting of the hospital board of governors, administrator Philip Rickard recommended an additional third storey be constructed on the new block. This Storey, he said last month, could remain uncompleted on the inside until such time as the space was needed.

At the Thursday morning meeting of the board, Mr. Rickard said the hospital definitely needs approximately 2,000 extra square feet in the new administration building.

The board will contact the Ontario Hospital Services Commission to see if such a move would be feasible.

Board treasurer Carl Bateman didn't hold out much hope that an addition to the present contract could be made in time. The roof is ready for installation," he added.

Mr. Bateman felt the hospital would have to go through county and city council for any additional funds if approval is received. It would take some time for OHSC to forward approval, he said.

What's to Do on Holidays?

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Parents wondering what to do with youngsters at home over the holidays, take heart. Someone has heard your pleas.

There's a variety of winter activities to keep your children occupied. Most require some imagination but several come free of charge.

The library, for the first time, is celebrating the Christmas entertainment market by showing four children's films.

Lasting about an hour the program will include The Snowman, Snowbear The Snowy Day, Visit from Space and Miss Bindy's Secret.

Interested viewers should make their way to the basement art gallery at the Pinnacle and Campbell Streets' main branch at 2:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 30.

Two different organizations will provide free skating privileges.

The Kinsmen Club of Belleville are sponsoring two hours of ice time for youngsters in the community this afternoon and every day next week except Thursday. The ice will be open from 1:30 until 4 and from 1:30-2:30 p.m.

Four Seasons Hotel has holiday plans as well. Weather permitting, they hope to flood the tennis court at the rear of the building and allow unsupervised public skating, although hotel guests will have first priority.

For 25 cents per session, or $2 a season, junior skaters can use the Quinte Skating Club all next week and from Jan. 2 to 8. Hours of skating time are available daily and the arena is heated so holidays are rink development and weather conditions. The club is located on the corner of Dufferin Avenue and Queen St.

Dick Ellis Rink will also be open for skating from 2-5 and 8-10 p.m. Only scheduled sessions is Sunday, Dec. 26, from 2:30 - 5 p.m.

Skiers can always make use of the slope at Bell Woods and Oak Hills, assuming the area is quick to take on its characteristic white coat.

One interesting diversion the Belleville YMCA committee planned for next Wednesday. A chartered bus with 48 seats will leave the city at 8 a.m. for a day at the Ontario Science Centre in Toronto. There are no age restrictions and travellers will be back in Belleville by 6 p.m.

Cost of the trip is $3.50 for youngsters 12 and under, $4.50 for students, and $4.50 for adults. Fare includes admission fee but not lunch costs.

The Y is also making the pool available to persons 18 and ages from Tuesday to Friday next week. By paying a $1 membership fee, visitors will have access to swim and other facilities at the Victoria Ave. clubhouse. The Y should be consulted on times.

There will also be pool sessions in water polo, basketball, relays and synchronized swimming.

A table tennis tournament for the entire place next Thursday and Friday.

Roller skating enthusiasts will have plenty of opportunity to spin their wheels at Ben Bleecker Auditorium. The program picks up again December 26, 27 and 31 with three hours each day devoted to children. Price is 50 cents a session including skates. Only one local cinema is catering to holidaying small fry. The Bell Theatre will present Wiby Wonka and the Chocolate Factory next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 2 p.m. The show will cost 50 cents per youngster.

Children rarely seem bored during the Christmas season. Most will have a dozen new presents with which to experiment and snow play is still a popular pastime.

Whether the kids are busy skating or movie-going, parents can rest assured their youngsters will be enjoying the break from school and neither side should come out the worst.

No Layoffs Here

Ninety-three employees at Northern Electric Co. Ltd. in Bramalea, just west of Toronto, will be laid off in early January.

But the Northern plant in Belleville, a mid-size store for its more than 1,000 employees.

"Thankfully, there are no layoffs in sight that I am aware of," said plant manager W. A. Thompson this morning.

Northern's personnel director in Bramalea, T. S. Scott, attributed the layoffs to declining business.

Belleville's telephone switching equipment.

Hydro Pole Crash Victim

A hydro pole was sheared off at the corner of Victoria and Chatham streets here last night, as the result of an accident.

Driver of the car, Dale Kenneth Johnson, 18, of 67 Chatham street, has been charged with careless driving and with taking an auto without the consent of the owner. Robert R. Kirkwood of 133 Ann Street.

Damage to the car, which included radiator, engine and steering linkage, has been estimated at between $800 and $900.

Church to Show Family Film

The Breaking Point, a color film on the modern young family, will be presented at Wesleyan Methodist Church the day after Christmas.

The film poses the question of how deeply a family should be involved in the program of the church. Much of the story unfolds in the historic places of Europe and Jerusalem. It will be shown at 7:30 p.m., Dec. 26.

Ontario Grant For Sanctuary

TRENTON (Staff) — Minister of Environment Dalton Kerr announced today approval of a $21,200 grant to the Quinte Trent Conservation Authority to be used toward purchase of a new wildlife sanctuary area in Northumberland County.

The 270-acre parcel to be known as Frank Goodrich Conservation Area, has land been sought by the authority for use as a wildlife sanctuary.

Odd Creek thrills through the woodland property for about a mile, while the surrounding heavy wooded area are a favored habitat for deer.

Hospital Board Positions Unfilled

A decision by the Belleville General Hospital's board of governors to support Loyalist College's application for the Quinte Secondary School Registered Nursing Assistant Course met with some opposition at yesterday's board meeting.

Dr. E. M. Douglas said hospitals are having "trouble with a lot of people who haven't worked in the hospitals before."

In expressing concern that such trainees might lack training in ethical standards of hospital operation, Dr. Douglas drew to the board's attention that "confidential reports will be made available to them."

Hospital administrator Philip Rickard said the hospital would only support the take over, already approved by the Hastings County Board of Education, if a steering committee was established.

This committee "should be established to help define the criteria for students and staff and to oversee the operation of the program."

It would be made up of representatives of the hospital, College and the hospital.

At the same time the hospital recommends that only 24 students should be enrolled.

The third condition required by the board is the training of these students only during evenings, nights and weekends.

Clinical resources of the hospital would be made available only if these three conditions are met by the college.

ETERNITY
I'll lend you for a little child
A BIT OF HEAVEN, I said
For you to love while he lives, and mourn for when he's dead
It may be not or seven years or eighty when he comes
Just keep an open door and watch the path for little runs
I cannot promise he will stay, since from the past
Much have been taken back
But I want this child to have,
Now while you're young and gay
The longest time you can
With love and kisses day by day
And when God comes to call
I cannot say or judge at all
But I want you to know
That I have loaned you him
Sadly missed by Mommy, Daddy, Carol Ann, Pam, Patty and Johnny.

Albert College Land Sale Hearing Feb. 3

The Ontario Municipal Board has set, Thursday, Feb. 3, as the date for a hearing into the appeal of Albert College against a decision last May of the Belleville Committee of Adjustment setting conditions for conveyance of a front property in the Highland Ave. - Wellington Crescent area.

The hearing, to hear the Albert College appeal and also that of Miss Grace Kenny and others, is slated for 2 p.m. at city hall.

The proposed sale by Albert College of part of its Manor property on Highland Ave., currently used as a city playground, drew strong objection from area residents earlier this year when it was learned the intended purchaser planned to construct apartment units.

The property owners feared the development would overload sewers and cause traffic congestion on a narrow residential street as well as deprive children of a playground which had been in use for a dozen or more years.

Last May, the city committee of adjustment granted the Albert College application for a land split but put certain conditions which the owner is

Also it was ruled that necessary land for the widening of Wellington Crescent be dedicated to the city and that a private roadway to Highland Ave. with a minimum width of 40 feet be provided by the applicant from the remainder of its property for entry and exit to the parcel of land.

Albert College particularly objected to the condition of the private roadway to serve the property in question.

The college board of governors appealed against the conditions imposed by the committee of adjustment while Miss Kenny and other area residents appealed the committee decision granting the land split.

The proposed sale of the Albert College property was but one of several land transactions involving apartment construction, which this year has appealing.

Among the conditions set was that the city parks policy of "cash in lieu" of five per cent of the value of the separated lot be paid to the city.

resulted in spirited objection from property owners in the respective areas.

One of the other transactions was the sale of the Judge J. C. Anderson property on Bridge Street, East, where an apartment house with more than 60 units is now under construction.

Here area residents strongly opposed the condition, claiming it would detract from the value of their single family residences that they lost out due to the fact that under the existing rezoning bylaw, apartment construction is permitted in that area.

Since then a new draft zoning bylaw which would rule out indiscriminate construction of apartment buildings in many B zoned sections of the city has been prepared.

This bylaw is now under consideration by the Quinte District Planning Board and could be incorporated in the city's long proposed official plan.

The Greek format of the play places a greater demand on the spontaneity of the performer to communicate with his hands and body.

Cheques Delivered —By Way of Italy!

A letter containing payment cheques for a local insurance oil supplier, which was mailed in Belleville nearly two months ago, has reached its destination by way of Italy and after a journey of more than 8,000 miles.

"Impossible," said an official at the Bridge Street post office when told of the much-travelled letter.

He said there was just no way that a letter mailed in Belleville and addressed to a city address could go directly to Italy.

Overseas mail, he said, is sorted in Belleville and again in Montreal.

But impossible as it may seem, the Belleville letter did get to Italy, and through an unusual set of circumstances, got safely back again.

It happened this way.

On November 25, Grant McCoy, 9 Pearl St., Belleville wrote out a series of four cheques for her furnace oil distributor and dropped the letter in her box at the local post office.

Days later the Belleville woman's oil payment letter was delivered among a number of Christmas cards to the home of an Italian family.

Among the cards, apparently was one from the Italian woman's daughter in Belleville.

The Italian woman opened the letter addressed to her and in some way it must have something to do with Belleville, replaced the cheques in the envelope and mailed them to her daughter in this city who took them to the bank.

Bank personnel then called Mrs. McCoy on the telephone and told her that her oil payment cheques had been received — from Italy.

Expressing disbelief that a letter for a Belleville address mailed in Belleville could turn up in Italy, a local post office official said the only way it could seem such a thing happening was for the cheques to have been mistakenly put in a wrong envelope by the sender.

"This happens all the time," he said.

The only thing wrong with this theory is that Mrs. McCoy says it didn't happen that way.

"I don't know anyone in Italy and I mailed only the one letter," she says.

County Warden Receives Gift

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward county councillors this week presented warden Allan Anderson and his wife with a mahogany tea wagon to mark the completion of the Bloomfield native's term of office.

The gift was accepted by warden Anderson following Tuesday night's regular monthly meeting of county council.

At the annual warden's banquet held in Bloomfield last month, Mr. Anderson received an engraved silver tray from members of Bloomfield village council to honor his 12 years of service as councillor and reeve.

Mr. Anderson is Prince Edward County's 117th warden, the first being John P. Roblin of Picton who was appointed to the office by the governor general in 1842.

Three county reeves, among them Basil Berney, reeve of Hillier; Russell Thompson, reeve of Ameliasburgh and George Vincent, reeve of Hallowell will vie this year for the office of warden according to recent reports.

Marmora Council Will Contribute

MARMORA (Special) — At a meeting of the Marmora recreation committee it was revealed Marmora village council will contribute $300 to compensate expenses from the previous summer's swimming progrram.

Although left undisclosed, it was also reported the remainder of a 1971 government grant has been received by the recreation committee.

During the same meeting, representatives of the Marmora Young Adults' Club notified the recreation committee they would be distributing gifts to needy area children.

Maintaining that a power skating course, offered by the recreation committee was started successfully, the committee did voice disappointment that not enough younger children were taking advantage of the instruction.

"Much individual attention is given during the classes and mistakes are caught - in the young skater before the mistake becomes a habit," said a committee spokesman.

Plomer Heads School Board

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — James Plomer, a South Marysburg township representative to the Prince Edward County board of education has been elected board chairman for 1972.

Mr. Plomer, who served as vice - chairman of the board this year, became its chairman by acclamation last night during the inaugural meeting of trustees held in the Bloomfield board offices.

New vice-chairman is Hillier trustee Clare McFaul.

George Flower, retiring as chairman of the county board of education, following a one year term, expressed thanks to fellow trustees for their confidence in him, and complimented that he has enjoyed his term of office.

New committees also were named for the coming year at the inaugural meeting.

River Sewer Funds Approved

An early loan approved by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to the Ontario Water Resources Commission is anticipated for construction of a new $1.3 million sanitary sewer up the Bayshore.

The proposed trunk sewer will serve the city's northeast industrial park area and also parts of Thurlow township.

Murray Wilson, project engineer for the OWRC in Toronto, told The Intelligencer today that the loan application for the river sewer project had been made and that approval was expected soon.

In the meantime, the OWRC has awarded contracts for the two-phase project which is slated to get under way early next January.

The main contract for installation of a 60-inch sewer from the pumping station at the new Dundas Street bridge to Bayshore has been awarded to Leo Contracting Co. Ltd. of Weston at $1,818,942.

The second contract for installation of a 36-inch pipe from Albert College and Adam Street, along with provision of a private drain connections along Cannifton Road, has been awarded to The Tatham Company of Belleville at $288,952.

Originally the river sewer project was called as one tender, but when prices came in considerably higher than was expected, it was decided to split the contract to give smaller contractors an opportunity to bid.

And the move paid off in over-all lower costs.

On the basis of the single tender call, the original lowest price was just under $1.7 million, while the total of the two contracts now awarded is about $1.7 million.

"There was a saving of approximately $450,000," said city engineer Wilbur Purcell.

But the total of the two contracts awarded is still higher than estimates of two or more years ago when it was expected the project could be completed for about $900,000. Estimates were later revised to about $1.1 million.

Mr. Purcell said the Tatham Company bid on the smaller contract was $18,000 under the estimate.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission is paying capital costs of the river sewer and will charge back costs to the city and to Thurlow on a use basis.

In the meantime it was announced in Ottawa yesterday by Hon. Robert Andras Minister of State for urban affairs, that a second loan of $831,448 to OWRC toward construction of city's secondary sewage treatment plant had been approved. The loan was in addition to the $700,000 loan approved in 1970.

The new primary plant addition and the secondary sewage treatment plant went into use during the past summer.

The most recent OHC loan for the treatment plant is based on a total cost of $2,336,173 and is for a term of 40 years. Central Mortgage may forgive repayment of 25 per cent of the principal amount of the loan and also 25 per cent of the accrued interest as of the date of completion of the project.

The OWRC now owns and operates the city sewage treatment plant, which it took over from the corporation a couple of years ago.

Nursing Home Patients Feted

PICTON (Staff) — Christmas at Rest Haven, a 90-minute concert for nursing home residents was held Wednesday under the direction of Heather McNally and Pat McKenzie.

Special guests from Kenwood Nursing Homes Ltd., Picton, gathered at Resthaven for the holiday party.

Cued by Miss McNally, patients joined in presenting the story of Christmas through scripture readings and a tableau of the Nativity.

Miss Mary Dunkley, a retired Picton resident teacher, who celebrated her 100th birthday this fall, recited the classic poem "Twas the Night Before Christmas.

Her recitation presented in clear, far - reaching tones, earned hearty applause from the audience.

Several Christmas carols were sung before the arrival of Santa Claus, who distributed treats to each patient.

Guests attending the concert enjoyed light refreshments in the lounge.

A silver collection taken following the festivities will be used to support a newly founded arts and crafts program at Resthaven, operated by Mildred Irwin.

A Poetic Look at Parliament Hill's Restless Brood

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — All they want for Christmas

Is you great cheer. O good MP's,

It's Christmas time, the time to please

Set forth what special Yuletide wishes

You'd like Saint Nicholas to bring.

Now here's Pierre (a father yet),

Whose PM-ship has been beset

By certain 'woes. Would he tempt fate

If Nick brought him a voting date?

For that's when Robert S. could shine

With him, a situation fine.

So from his sock he'd like re-

And lots and lots more Tory seats.

Old Diefy the Chief must surely ask

For one more term from P.A. Sauk.

But McIlraith and Laing request

With easy jobs done, a good rest.

But Santa Claus has found a hitch,

What simple gifts to give to Mitch?

And Ben and Bryce and John Munro?

Jean-Luc, Gerard, and Ron and Joe?

To straighten out confusion wrought

By tax reform and who knows what

Or wheels and deals, at home, abroad

And sometimes people playing god.

For David Lewis just one wish:

To find official Opposition.

And one wish, too, for Real C.:

The power balance 'neath his tree.

All Tories want to ask St. Nick

For Tory victory mighty quick.

But then he hears the Grits say, on,

Let's just maintain the status quo.

Guess Santa can't gift all MP's

With what they most desire. They have Pleasure in this our country grand

And pray it spreads to every land.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

Christmas 1971

In Canada this Christmas there is peace, freedom, and considerable prosperity. If there is anything we should be worrying about it is no more than the apathy born of our comparative affluence and material well-being.

Fundamentally then we have little to worry about. Here there is no aftermath of war as there is in Ireland and Pakistan, no broken bodies. No bombs are exploding or bullets flying as in terrorist-wracked Belfast. No madness, no serious malaise grips our society, no savageriness other than the routine disregard for the law which it is the norm in any society. If it has reached alarming enough proportions in this permissive day it is still of little account compared with the threat to life and limb and with the ideological lunacy that pertains in some parts of the world.

This is the time we regard as the season of goodwill and cheer, of brotherhood and peace on earth, inspired by the age-old promise of a little child. The promise is still there, so too are the principles of humanity to which the vast majority of people all over the world aspire. But abroad too are forces of the most unyielding evil, of fiendish influence, and we see these manifested in the totally ruthless campaign of terror in Northern Ireland. Here the concept of urban guerrilla warfare, the destruction of established order its objective, its origins to be found in Communist doctrine for the overthrow of governments and the subverting of peoples, has reached a level of horror seldom exceeded in history. It is barbarism at a chilling level, a return to a dark age.

Of course this is not all that is going on in the world, and even in Northern Ireland where this year's Ulster 71 exhibition attracted 700,000 visitors from many parts of the world and where the normal facets of life continue even in the midst of troubling times.

But such contrasting activities do go to show that something is seriously amiss in the very makeup of man, for warring mankind has been a fact of life, but never more so than in what we see being wrought today.

The reality of it is that man is incapable of sustained acts of brotherhood, even at the most consumer, everyday, level. And his evil psyche manifests itself in still more insidious forms in the world of today by the claims of nationalism and by the impetuosity of the masses who would overthrow in a day what has taken countless generations to build up.

Certainly this is not the whole picture of our universe, but it is the one aspect of it that most directly threatens society today. The roots of it are to be found in man's basic instability and aggressiveness. The Communists know this and are exploiting it for their own ends.

Dr. Donald P. Morgenson, professor of psychology at Waterloo Lutheran University, discusses this human weakness in an article in The Kitchener - Waterloo Record. He says that "of the many problems facing us today in modern society, one problem which needs most urgently to be solved is that of violence." But can it ever be solved, given man's known behavior over the centuries.

As Dr. Morgenson points out, in discussions about the causes of violence there are three generally accepted approaches, identified thus: 1. Aggression or violence as an inherent aspect of human nature; 2. Aggression or violence as a result of frustration; 3. Violence aggression as a result of learned or imitated behavior.

The subject is developed at length by Dr. Morgenson, a graduate of St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minnesota, and Pennsylvania State University who received his PhD from the University of London (England). He discusses his theme against a background of biology, aberrations among the chromosomes of individuals which in some way produce uncontrolled rage, aggression or violence, as well as the evidence of man's delicate balance beginning even through the age-old glorification of militarism to the later-day image of a violent society as depicted on television.

The odds may be against reforming man, to steer him into more gentle paths, but Dr. Morgenson is optimistic. He believes that with proper help violence can be prevented, aggression can be controlled . . .

"We must educate for peace," he says, and suggests "some fascinating approaches" in educating people to this end, including "programs, projects, as well as curricula devoted to peace." He does not elaborate further on this, but we hope he is right. If we are really to achieve peace we shall need the help Dr. Morgenson and others like him can bring to bear on this much-desired state of being and conceived between individuals, peoples and nations.

Merry Christmas

Lotteries Boom in Ontario

Ottawa Journal

In 1970 Ontario was swamped with 29,883 lotteries with prizes under $5,500 with total prizes of $16.7 million and 886 lotteries over $3,500 with $3.9 million in total prizes. In the first 10 months of this year 45,916 of the smaller - category lotteries accounted for $29.8 million in prizes and 1,772 of the over - $5,500 type were licensed to give away $7.2 million in prizes.

Almost 78,500 lotteries, blotter than 117 for every day of the 22 months they have been legal. It was too much, and new limits now put on the large lotteries are welcome.

There are now three categories of lotteries: those under $3,500 licensed directly by the municipality; the municipal and regional raffles with prizes between $3,500 and $10,000 licensed by the province; and the province-wide lotteries over $10,000 licensed by Queens Park and with a new $100,000 ceiling.

The largest category will be limited to 2,000 lotteries at one time, one each in the categories covering service clubs, religious and educational groups, health and welfare agencies, amateur sports groups and cultural organizations.

The lotteries legislation was designed primarily to allow local charitable groups to raise funds in the purest within the community. Limiting what was threatening to become a overwhelming competition from the big-pot, prowling - wide giveaways seems a necessary if the province is to hold to that principle.

Folk Dancing Is Catchy As Even the Boys May Find

Bill Duff is The Kitchener-Waterloo Record

When the boys at Sunnyside senior public school get back into gym class after the Christmas holidays, they're liable to find themselves doing virginia reels and Mexican swings.

That's the prediction of Mrs. Susan Kalbfleisch, girls' physical education instructor at the school on Weber Street East, who claims folk dancing is one of the best ways for a young person to get rhythm.

And, she said, it's one of the few physical education activities in which all students can participate — whether or not they're athletically inclined.

She proved this Monday when the 95 girls in Grades 7 and 8 span around the floor of the gymnasium in full-fledged folk dance competition.

The girls, few of whom had ever folk - danced before, "really went to a lot of work," said Mrs. Kalbfleisch as groups of about eight students each composed and strutted to recorded music.

Held in conjunction with the Waterloo county board of education's folk dance month, the competition is apart from the keenness the girls showed when Mrs. Kalbfleisch began teaching the dancing in November.

The girls made their own ethnic and hillbilly costumes and voluntarily came to school as early as 8:15 a.m. to practice for the competition.

Dances ranged from the Pasadena Promenade to the Tyrolese wig walk and the Charleston.

Mrs. Kalbfleisch acted as a judge, along with Mrs. Barbara Batschelet and Mrs. Sandra Elliott, both physical education consultants with the county board of education.

Folk dancing is useful, said Mrs. Kalbfleisch, "because a lot of students aren't that athletic and will never make the school team in anything."

All of the girls, she said, have drastically improved their rhythm since the folk dance instruction began.

"We may do some co-educational folk dancing after Christmas and get the boys involved, too, even though I know a lot of them will say 'Oh no.'"

The school board began folk dance one month, said Mrs. Kalbfleisch, because the dances "provide enjoyment and everyone can do them."

Three Snowmobilers Die On Roads of Quebec

Montreal Gazette

Three of the deaths that occurred in snowmobile accidents in Quebec during the weekend happened on public roads.

Manufacturers have emphasized that snowmobiles are not designed to operate on public roads. Nevertheless, the pattern of last winter, when most of the fatal snowmobile accidents in Canada occurred on public roads is beginning to repeat itself.

The Quebec government plans to enact a new code shortly to regulate the operation of snowmobiles. The code will be of limited value, however, without sharper enforcement of the rules and the display of common sense on the part of snowmobile drivers.

In view of the popularity of these machines, which has increased in Quebec at an incredible rate, the Quebec Police Force are under-equipped for the task of fining or charging miscreants who damage property, create unnecessary noise, or drive dangerously on roads, or in other areas where there are people on foot. The QPF has the grand total of 30 snowmobiles throughout the province. It could obviously use a few more.

The responsible majority of operators can, of course, be of great help in promoting proper use of snowmobiles. Conscious of this, the Quebec Association of Snowmobile Clubs has formed a committee to look into safety standards.

Meanwhile, it is to be hoped that the death rate has to go up just because more people are driving snowmobiles.

Another Side to Christmas

The Almonte Gazette

WARY CHRISTMAS!

'Tis the season to be wary.
That's right — wary not merry.

Christmas just isn't what it used to be — yule logs, electric lights on the trees, holly, mistletoe, carols, Santa Claus, and all that sort of seasonal stuff. Joy, innocence, a comfortable mood.

Take Christmas tree lights for instance. They're a No.No! on all artificial trees. The fire department would rather you did not use them at all. If for the trees, keep them out of the house, if possible . . . They're a big enough hazard out there in the woods.

The yule log used to be so comfy and cheery but today it only adds to the pollution problem. As for the unguided missiltoe, it could have serious implications for the population explosion. The flowing bowl is definitely out. If you drink, don't drive. Better still, if you drive — don't drive.

That leaves us with the Christmas dinner. Wait! Drop that fork: Don't take a chance. With all those additives, cyclamates, calories and mercury the good old Christmas dinner becomes a meal of death. Besides somebody somewhere has likely got a cranberry bogey on the go. Well, you wouldn't be able to get into the dishes because detergent is a dirty word.

Of course, you can always go to church. On second thought, better check with your psychiatrist, few would be on about your guilt complex when you know you're not going to be around again until Easter.

How C.D. Howe Got Tagged with 'What's A Million?'

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Ottawa Bureau of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — What's a million? Remember that famous phrase, attributed to the late C. D. Howe during a debate on government spending in the 40s?

I wasn't around here in those days, but I am told that Mr. Howe never actually used those words. He made a lengthy statement and the phrase was distilled out of his words to express his general sentiments at the time.

It turned up regularly to haunt Mr. Howe during the remainder of his political career and is still quoted today.

Recently, Wellington-MP Alf. Hales, the chairman of the Commons' public accounts committee, drew attention to some facts that make Mr. Howe's famous paraphrase appear pretty sensible.

Auditor General Maxwell Henderson reported to the committee that it is the practice of the federal government to leave $100,000,000 on deposit with the chartered banks of Canada in return for the banks cashing government cheques.

Mr. Hales points out that the government does not earn one cent of interest on this large deposit. Even if it earned, Mr. Hales says, the banks charged interest and service charges on cheques and agreed to cash all personal cheques free of charge in return for the fee of 15 cents or so per cheque.

If the banks could do this with regard to personal cheques, why is it necessary for the government to continue to leave this huge sum on deposit with them? That's the question Mr. Hales directed recently at the finance minister.

Mr. Benson was sufficiently interested in the query to term it "an excellent suggestion" and promised to look into the situation.

But wait, there's more to the story.

Mr. Hales explains that the chartered banks do pay six per cent interest to the government on any amount on deposit over the $100 million figure. The government frequently leaves, Mr. Hales says, the banks dropped out of this range by Maps in a geography book always reflect some error and distortion. It's impossible to scale exactly the curved surface of the earth on flat paper. Even greater misrepresentation is involved in mapping the stars.

The problem is somewhat like that of the Christian doctrine of the Trinity, the old church equation devised to explicate the puzzle implicit by faith in Jesus as God while still affirming belief in only one universal God.

It sounds contradictory, yet it expresses the "central mystery of Christianity, its deepest truth and the root of all others," says Yale theologian Claude Welch. It's also "the most difficult to state adequately."

It's often misunderstood and inevitably falls short of the divine reality to which it points, observes Anglican theologian John Macquarrie. Yet "has a much more coherent logic than many of its critics have allowed."

Although its early phraseology contains terms whose connotations have changed and which now can be misleading, it declares basically that God is of one essence, one being, active in three ways—as Father, Son and Holy Spirit.

His "modes of being," Switzerland's Karl Barth puts it, are co-equal, co-eternal, yet experienced by mankind in particular times and circumstances.

Actually, it's impossible to speak of God at all except as a vague abstraction without referring to the particular context and forms by which He has made Himself known to human beings.

And within their awareness, He has done it variously—as Creator, Redeemer, Sanctifier —His triune "ways of being" God as recognized by man. The concept has a pragmatic existential dimension to it.

"It is a language rooted in existence, in man's experience of the approach of God," Macquarrie says. He refers to God as "Holy Being" and offers these descriptions of His three-fold aspects:

"Primordial Being" (the Father), the hidden creative source and mind; "expressive Being" (Jesus), a taking on of intelligible structures in time and space, and "unitive Being" (Spirit), a continuing activity to restore and reconcile man to true participation in being.

Yet all are one, congruent, consistent, coherent features in God's "Holy Being." He sees as one; man sees Him as three. He definitely is not a triad, as in polytheism, nobler are emphatic, but a richly complex triunity—a Trinity.

It's somewhat like liquid, ice and vapor, all water, yet observed in three forms, or the thought, feelings and actions of one person.

In its development, the doctrine primarily was an attempt to uphold the full manness and full Godhood of Jesus. While it asserts both, it doesn't purport to explain the underlying paradox of the Christmas event, the Incarnation.

So the old "how" questions persist, seeking to bring into man's objective purview what is inherently beyond it.

If Jesus was God and knew it, this condition itself would seem to have shielded Him from the anxieties, temptations and uncertainties of being genuinely human.

Also, was He conscious of His role from the first, or did He grow into it? Moreover, if God is all-pervasive, how could He be limited to a single man in one place and time?

Theologians over the years have wrestled with such questions, and offered various explanations.

One now widely held is the "kenotic theory"—that Jesus divested Himself during His earthly life of the divine qualities of omnipotence, omniscience and omnipresence.

"Emptied Himself," St. Paul puts it, in order to live entirely within the limitations of man. "He did not count equality with God a thing to be grasped," but took "the form of a servant" and "humbled Himself and became obedient even unto death."

This, however, is rather technical logic. Taking a different and perhaps more appealing approach, numerous theologians say that Jesus showed the basic compatibility between total Godhood and total humanness, a possibility only He has realized.

"A man becomes man precisely through his union with the Divine Word," says Catholic theologian Gregory Baum. "The closer this union the more human he is." All men share it to some extent, but in Jesus "this union was an absolute one."

He thus constitutes "the complete and perfect man precisely because He is the Divine Word," Baum adds.

Trenton Officials Ponder Budget

TRENTON (Staff) — There is a flurry of behind-the-scenes activity here now as municipal officials prepare a new 1972 capital works budget for the town.

Although a picture is beginning to form of proposed expenditure for the new year, it is still too early to predict what will happen to the town's residential, business and commercial mill rates, increased substantially last spring.

"It is hard to say what will happen to the budget," Mayor Donald McDonald said today, "although we should have some reasonable idea of the situation by January 15" by which time several budgets of municipal departments and the needs of the Hastings County Board of Education may become apparent.

Mid - January should also give Trenton a summary of how well the 1971 budget appraised. In one area, the cost of snow removal, the town is well within the budget allotment. (A year ago bulk of the amount had been spent by this time). There is no picture now of the tax arrears situation — hefty arrears aggravated the 1971 budget picture.

The 1972 budget will be having welcome assistance from the substantial amount of tax revenue generated by the more than $3.5 million in new commercial and apartment construction that began in 1971.

However, the town has already made some plans for spending the regular levies and the windfall. High on the list for the new year is construction of the new municipal office — parking garage.

In capital works, plans call for the complete rebuilding of Dundas East from the Dominion Store to the town limits. Included in this project is the building of new storm and sanitary sewers and the widening to four lanes of the roadway itself.

Also on the drawing boards are new sewers on Bay Street from Campbell St. to the sewage treatment plant, along Flindall St., Reid St., and North Murray St. Expansion of the treatment plant will not affect the 1972 budget; funds will be paid for by increases to the water rates.

It is expected the public utilities commission will boost electricity rates here by at least seven per cent before August 1972.

Deloro Dances To Resume

DELORO (Staff) — Teenagers in this village got a boost from village council at their December meeting.

Edward Galloway and a representative body of teenagers requested permission to resume their regular Friday night dances. Mr. Galloway suggested the successful evenings could be chaperoned by only one adult.

Council supported the request in the belief that the teens are responsible and able to assist the chaperone if necessary.

Trudeau Sees No Way To Stop Cabinet Leaks

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau figuratively threw up his hands Thursday about cabinet leaks.

He said in Commons replies to opposition questions that he does not see how the government can tighten its security regulations on documents "if people are going to break their oath of secrecy."

The exchange dealt with a Globe and Mail report dealing with what it says are secret cabinet studies of measures to deal with violence, including possible use of the War Measures Act, five months before the act was proclaimed in the Quebec crisis in October, 1970.

Putting Blame on Milk for Fat Excess Silly

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am wondering if there is any truth in what a friend said about whole milk. I drink milk instead of coffee at work and drink a glass or two before going to bed.

My friend says a doctor told him that whole milk can cause hardening of the arteries, and to drink only two-per-cent milk. — R/H.

There are a few people who get fanatical about milk, insisting that people shouldn't drink it, at all. But milk has been drunk so universally for such a long time that few people pay any attention to this bad-mouthing. —

I would assume that what your friend was talking about is the concern which exists, probably rightly, about excess fat in one's diet contributing to hardening of the arteries. There is little doubt that most people in this country consume more fat than they need and probably more than is good for them.

But concentrating the blame on milk doesn't make much sense. Whole milk is pretty well standardized at 3.5-per-cent fat — and two-per-cent milk, of course, contains about half that amount of fat, although the rest of the milk remains unchanged.

Therefore if you are overweight, have high blood pressure or a family history of hardening of the arteries and heart disease, it's only good sense to cut down on the amount of fat in your diet.

Using two per cent instead of regular milk can, in part, help by reducing your fat intake—but it's pretty silly to expect that to do it all for you. Reduction in other fats, particularly the saturated fats (meaning those that are solid rather than liquid at room temperature), is even more important.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you comment on vertigo? My niece has asked me. She has not given me any information other than that she falls and that she is on medication.—Mrs. V. C.

Vertigo is a loss of balance, but it is not easy to offer any help simply "comment" because there are different causes and, of course, different treatments.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: The doctor told my husband he has high blood pressure and cirrhosis of the liver and he should stop drinking. He was consuming sometimes a quart of whisky a day.

He stopped for four months and his health improved. Now he has started again and drinks 12 to 18 bottles of beer every night. He thinks it won't hurt him. How much can his damaged liver tolerate? Mrs. A. H. F.

There's no point in going into any long harangue about this. Nobody can predict how long a liver can stand up against all that alcohol, but it won't be very long.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been trying for two years to get pregnant. My doctor tells me I am normal and there's no reason why I shouldn't get pregnant. He said I'm doing everything right except taking vitamins, so what are good ones? Mrs. L. P. J.

Vitamins won't help. But are you overweight? Has your thyroid been checked? They can be factors. Gynecologists can produce ovulation. If that is your trouble, with medications.

You haven't mentioned your husband being examined, but he should be, because the trouble is at least a third of the time with the husband and not the wife.

Nixon Launches Drive To Conquer Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon Thursday signed legislation launching a $1.6-billion federal crusade to conquer cancer.

He said it is the start of an unprecedented effort to eliminate "a long shadow of fear that darkens every corner of the earth."

At a ceremony in the White House, Nixon affixed his signature to the National Cancer Act and said the bill, "perhaps more than any legislation I have signed . . . can mean new hope and comfort in the years ahead for millions of people in this country and around the world."

The measure gives the 34-year-old National Cancer Institute a mandate to increase research efforts into the causes and cures for cancer. It also gives the institute direct access to the White House in getting support for the effort.

Families and friends, young and old, come together during this season to rejoice at His birth. We join together to offer thanks!

Family Cooking

A Post-Christmas Buffet Meal

By ALICE DENSMORE

From all pictures, dinner on Sunday, after Christmas, is going to be quite buffet-like and more elaborate than the usual Sunday meals since it won't be a repeat of the Christmas dinner, but, rather, something in keeping with the holiday mood. Well, it could well be a very festive buffet dish, a nice choice especially for a buffet dinner. And, a buffet dinner is an ideal way to entertain a large party.

SPICED BAKED HAM WITH GUAVA JELLY

8- to 10-pound fully cooked ham, boned
Whole cloves
1 teaspoon powdered mustard
1 cup guava jelly
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
1 tablespoon wine vinegar

Place ham on rack in large, shallow baking pan. Insert small thermometer into centre of thickest part of ham; don't let it touch bone. Bake, uncovered, in 325-degrees-F. oven until internal heat registers 130 degrees F. on meat thermometer. Remove ham from oven and score fat into 1-inch diamonds, ¼ inch deep. Stud each diamond with a whole clove. Combine custard and 1 teaspoon warm water; let stand 10 minutes. Melt jelly in a small saucepan. Add mustard, corn syrup and vinegar; mix well and boil only until jelly mixture is smooth. Spoon or brush half of mixture over ham. Return to moderate 350-degree-F. oven and bake 10 minutes.

Stir remaining jelly mixture and brush over ham. Bake 15 minutes longer or until ham is beautifully browned. Let stand 15 minutes at room temperature before slicing. Yield is 15 to 20 portions.

Instead of the usual dessert, perhaps a very special cake might be in order with the coffee service. On tap is a recipe for a delightful, aromatic, delicious:

OLD-FASHIONED SPICE CAKE

3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground cumin seed
½ teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon ground mace
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
¾ cup butter or margarine
1¼ cups sugar
3 eggs
1¼ cups milk
Never-Fail Frosting (recipe follows)

Sift together first three ingredients. Add spices and vanilla; extract to butter, mixing well. Gradually blend in sugar. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Add flour mixture alternately with milk. Beat batter one-half minute. Turn into three well-greased, lightly floured round nine-inch layer cake pans. Bake at 375 degrees F. 25 minutes or until cake tester inserted in centre comes out clean. Cool in pans 10 minutes. Turn out on to wire rack to finish cooling. Spread frosting between layers, over top and sides.

NEVER-FAIL FROSTING

1 egg white
1 cup sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
⅓ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
⅓ teaspoon grated lemon peel
⅓ cup boiling water

Place all ingredients in small bowl of electric beater. Beat at high speed until frosting stands in very stiff peaks.

CLOVE-STUDDED HAM, has glaze of guava jelly and mustard. Spice cake has vanilla frosting with hint of lemon.

Ann Landers

Advice for Bachelors Requested by Reader

Dear Ann Landers: You do a lot of good. Please do some more by advising the unattached bachelors to be wiser and more compassionate when selecting objects for their affection. It will pay off in the long run. Instead of pursuing the young, beautiful, sought-after female, I strongly recommend the woman who is over 35—not beautiful, and not the target of every guy in town. My reasons are the following:

1. They will not yell.
2. They will not tell.
3. They will not swell.
4. They are grateful as hell.

No, I am not a rounder. I've been happily married for over 30 years. But if something happens to the Little Woman, I'll know where to look.—Fargo

Dear Fargo: Thanks for your letter. I'm glad you'll know "where to look." Make sure you don't start looking before something happens to the Little Woman, or something might happen to you.

Dear Ann Landers: We had a fire in our home last week and I feel like the luckiest person in the world. Yes, lucky because my husband and I and our two children are alive. When I think of what might have happened, I shake all over.

The fire started in the living room—faulty wiring. It was 3 a.m. when I smelled smoke. By the time I realized there was a fire downstairs, I couldn't see my hand in front of my face. I awakened my husband, called the fire department, grabbed the children and made a run for the back stairs. It was so full of smoke we had to turn back. I remember reading something years ago about wet bedsheets over the head with holes poked through for the eyes. We raced to the bedroom, took the sheets off the bed, held them under the shower, poked holes with a scissors and I carried one child while my husband carried the other, down the back stairs to safety.

That wet bedsheet stunt probably saved our lives. And now I want to thank you—because it was in your column that I read it—at least 12 years ago.—Mrs. D.F.

Dear Mrs. D.F.: Your letter made my day. Thank you for letting me know. I love every word you wrote will be read carefully by others. Who knows when any of us might need that lifesaving advice?

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a very interesting column from a young girl who wanted to know why her boyfriend kept his eyes open when he kissed her. She said it made her uncomfortable and I can certainly understand why. That letter stirred a young man to write about his girl who didn't know what to do with her arms when he kissed her. He said they hung at her side like a couple of corn stalks.

Your advice was to suggest to the girl that she put them around his shoulders. That was very sensible, Ann. And now, I am a 26-year-old who has another question which might seem dumb, but I need an answer. How close should I stand to a rather new boyfriend when I kiss him goodnight?—Bella

Dear D.: Stand close enough so he'll know you're a woman, but far enough away so he'll know you're a lady.

Mirror of Your Mind
by ANN CONWELL

Can a girl set her marital sights too high?

YES, in many respects, although nearly every girl who sets her sights too high in picturing the man she wants to marry is usually motivated by more than the simple desire to be a bride. If she is severely distorted about her outlook on marriage, a girl may unconsciously establish goals for herself which will ensure her that she will never have to cope with the situation she dreads; being married at all.

Does frustration immobilize everyone?

NO; it is generally the person who is always getting his own way who is least used by frustrations. Actually, those who have complete control of their emotions and are sure of how they will react in unexpected turns of events, those are the ones who seem to shrug off the frustrations that come their way. In fact, they not only survive them, many of these people seem stronger for having overcome unavoidable frustration.

When should a tot know a new baby's due?

SOON after a mother learns she is going to have another baby. Then the child will gain esteem at being taken into the family's confidence and being told about a coming event of importance. Though a little girl, say, will probably be jealous over the idea of having a rival, once her fears are allayed, she will then become so used to hearing about the new baby that she will be glad when the infant finally does arrive.

'Tis the Season--In Poetry

By BORIS CLARK-DECEMBER

Days filled with pondering,
Evenings . . . too.
Christmas crowds herrying,
Reckless scale.
Music of carollers,
Bells ringing clear,
Each heart overflowing with Radiant good cheer.
— Mabel Jenkin

Let a Canadian social worker in on your difficulty. Doris may be able to save the day for you!

. . Dear Doris: I was appalled some weeks ago to read your answer to a teen-ager — 13. She was asking you what an affectionate kiss was. You said it was a light kiss on the lips!

My! Oh my! What a mistake. To my mind it is a kiss on the cheek, forehead or hand. A light kiss on the lips, how long would that remain light in the case of a teenager.

I think you should publish a correction and admit your mistake. If you answer, please just use my initials. — L. V.

P.S. Enjoy your column but do not always agree.

Dear L.V.: Re the P.S., I wouldn't give you two cents for the person who swallows everything I say whole without running it over, sorting out my ideas and deciding what their point of view was. I'm glad you like a couple of the column to write in.

Sometimes space denies opportunity for me to enlarge on a question. Certainly an affectionate kiss may land in some other, less exciting location than the lips. It may also be offered between one woman and another, or between two men; and express fondness.

In saying "a light kiss on the lips" I wanted the teenager to discern between sexual attraction and the type of urgent pressure which arouses passion.

True, a light kiss between a boy and girl who are curious of each other is like the nibbler on TV who declares it is popcorn he was just out peanut.

Confidential to Trial Marriage: Consider whether this ring be just another argument for promiscuity. And what about getting thrills compared to a lifetime of good living — love — contentment?

Often a couple living in common law decide to marry. And I've heard many of these say they had no idea how much warmer and better their relationship became with this commitment. They are unspeakably happier and, I suspect, both have much more security and respect for themselves and each other.

Women's Judo Champion Mild Mannered Person

BOSTON (AP) — Meeting the United States women's judo champion is like meeting a cobra. You think, one false move a n d — w h a m — a judo chop to the neck.

"I'm not like that at all," said Jean Fielding, 23, of Somerville, Mass.

"I'm a very peaceful and loving person, and that's how I like to be presented."

Yes, Ma'm.

By day, Miss Fielding is a small five-foot-three mild-mannered, soft-voiced, miniskirted assistant to a Boston turkey broker.

It is in the evenings and on weekends that, like a comic strip character, she changes into a costume and becomes Superwoman—a graceful athlete who is women's grand champion of the U.S. Judo Association.

"Judo is a sport, not a form of fighting or something a woman should learn for self-defence," Miss Fielding said. "If she learns it for self-defence, she may use it at an inappropriate time. For instance, she may use it on a friend who is just being fresh. And he won't be her friend any more."

She adds:

"Judo gives you self-confidence. But most of all, I think it makes you conscious of how dangerous people can be, especially men. That consciousness keeps you out of trouble by keeping you out of dangerous situations.

"After all, men are bigger and stronger and can-throw you around very easily. When you work out with men as I do you realize that a woman has no defence against them, except evasion. Once a woman gets on the mat with a man, he knows who's boss."

Miss Fielding's training is spartan. She practices at the Northeast Judo Club in Somerville at least 15 hours a week and keeps in shape with exercise, wind sprints and a lung-cracking two-mile run three times a week.

Women judo athletes compete much like gymnasts. They work in pairs, performing a stylized set of 30 throws and are judged on beauty of movement, correctness of execution, grace and poise.

"I live for judo," Miss Fielding said, and such total dedication leaves little time for a social life. "A man doesn't understand when he calls for a date and I tell him I have to go practice judo instead.

"The solution," she said, "is to date judo players."

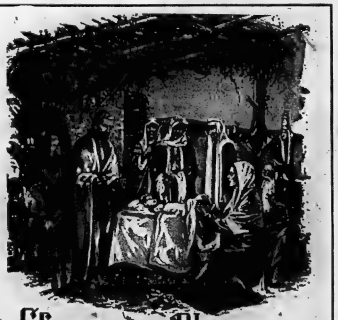
READ CWL

Two members of Read CWL who recently moved from the parish were honored at the recent meeting of the League held in St. Mary's School. Both Mrs. T. V. Corrigan and Mrs. V. Harrigan were presented with Bibles and commended for their work in the group.

Mrs. J. Hanley and her committee convened the Christmas party during which time members enjoyed games, contests and bingo. There was an exchange of gifts for the 40 persons present and the door prize was won by Mrs. T. V. Corrigan.

A buffet lunch was served at the close of the party and thanks to those in charge was expressed by Mrs. T. Coffey.



We hope your joys are many and your troubles few..
A very Merry Christmas from all of us to you!

Clothes Do Not Always Reflect Personality

EDMONTON (CP) — You can't judge personality through clothes, says Ann Kernaleguen, a specialist on clothing and fashion.

We tend to ascribe personality characteristics on the basis of appearance. But that's wrong.

A flamboyant dresser might actually be a shy person, she said. He might be so anxious to have social approval that he feigned interest into the latest fashions.

As professor and chairman of the clothing and textile division of the school of household economics at the University of Alberta, Dr. Kernaleguen is head of several projects to try to find out why people dress the way they do.

"Actually, there ought to be a lot more research done on the importance of clothing and its effects on a person's life," she said in an interview.

One of her current projects is to find out how a person expresses his personal values through the way he dresses.

"We've identified four main values—esthetics, economics, comfort and social.

"Some people might put money before everything else. Others might be more interested in beauty, with color or fabric or feel a prime requirement.

Others might dress the way they do because they believed they had to maintain a certain position, or because it was required in their job.

The research project will find out who considers which most important and why, Dr. Kernaleguen said.

She and her colleagues had to make many decisions in whittling the values down to four. For example, they had to decide that "modesty" didn't deserve a separate category.

Modesty comes under comfort in the present questionnaire because comfort means both physical and psychic comfort, she said. Modesty also had a certain relation to social values in that a woman who might feel it was immodest to wear a skirt above the knee at one time might happily wear a mini when these were worn by the majority.

"We know that teen-agers conform to the rigid dress pattern of a group," Dr. Kernaleguen said. "It's important for this age group to break from their parents, to be different, but also to identify themselves with those of their own age group." Or once they conformity was to increase their business.

Adults and senior citizens might prefer clothing that allowed them to express their individuality.

An author of St. Brieux, Sask., Dr. Kernaleguen is taking part in a research project involving the three western provinces and all the western states. The study will look into problems that families have related to clothing.

Clothing should be the servant of the individual, not the other way around, she said.

Munro Declines Part in Hockey Dispute with Bunny Ahearne

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro, the minister who knows more, said Tuesday he will not intervene in the latest argument between the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and J. T. (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the international Ice Hockey Federation.

"I think anything I might do would be counter-productive," Mr. Munro said in an interview.

Earlier in the Commons, Munro was quizzed on the virtual ban Ahearne has placed on Canadian hockey teams taking European tours.

Hockey teams from Gleeson College in Toronto and Kamloops, B.C., already in Europe, have had their exhibition games cancelled by Europe's hockey boss.

The latest ban they swear a team of 16-year-olds from Ottawa when they travel next week to Finland.

Len Marchand (L—Kamloops) asked Munro in the Commons to do what he could to see that the Canadian teams now overseas play their games.

Robert Thompson (PC—Red Deer) put in a plea for the Ottawa Canadiens club here in go ahead.

Munro assured both members he would look into circumstances surrounding the tours, but told Marchand: "I question whether it would be very helpful for the boys in the teams concerned if the government were to make representation to Mr. Ahearne."

Outside the House, Munro said he doesn't see what he can do about the situation. He didn't have much influence or Ahearne in previous battles between the Federation president and Canadian hockey officials.

Terriers Protest Hornets' Tampering

ORILLIA (CP) — Orillia Terriers said Thursday night they will lodge a protest with Clarence (Chalky) Smaile, president of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league, that Galt Hornets tampered with Grant Moore, their high-scoring centre.

Bill McGill, general manager of the Terriers, said the Hornets used "sneaky and unorthodox tactics" to get Moore to accompany the team on its European tour.

The Hornets, league-leaders in the OHA senior loop, leave Christmas night for games in Finland, Norway, Denmark and Sweden.

Thursday night, the executive of the Orillia club voted 5 to 2 to allow Moore to make the trip but McGill said he was not pleased about the way Galt sought the services of the former member of Canada's national team.

McGill said Galt approached Moore directly and did not negotiate through the club. He said the team's leading scorer had already been fitted for a uniform and a team blazer before the club knew he had been invited to join the Hornets.

LAHR, West Germany (Reuter) — The Calgary Stampeders hockey team routed the Lahr All-Stars, a Canadian military hockey team, 11-0 in an exhibition game here Thursday night. The Stampeders, 1971 finalists in Allan Cup amateur play, will leave Lahr Sunday for Sweden to participate in an international hockey tournament for the Star Cup.

MONTREAL (CP) — Loyola College Warriors defeated Canada's national student hockey team 4-2 in an exhibition game Thursday night.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Centre Chris Bordeleau of St. Louis Blues suffered a broken left foot in a National Hockey League match Wednesday night and will be out of action about a month, the Blues said Thursday. The Blues said they did not plan to call up anyone immediately to replace Bordeleau.

Helps Sabres Hold Brains

Perreault Sets Fast Pace

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Gil Perreault, who set National Hockey League records for goals and points scored by a first-year man last season, never seems to have heard of the sophomore jinx. Boston Bruins wish someone would explain it to him.

The 21-year-old centre scored two goals and set up the other two Thursday night as the Buffalo Sabres escaped from the East Division cellar by holding the Bruins to a 4-4 tie.

The result was painful for the Bruins, who blew a two-goal lead and a chance to the Montreal Canadiens for second place in the division. They now trail the leading New York Rangers by four points with two games in hand.

Perreault's four-point performance gave him a total of 16 goals, 26 assists and 42 points for the season, well ahead of his 16-28—44 record at the same stage a year ago. He is seventh among the league's marksmen with Phil Esposito and Bobby Orr the only Bruins ahead of him.

If he goes on to surpass his 38-34-72 figures for the entire 1970-71 season, Perreault will be the first Calder Memorial Trophy winner in 16 years to improve in his second year on the record that made him the rookie award. Dave Keon of Toronto Maple Leafs was the last man to be the feat.

The Bruins were leading 1-0 in the first period Thursday, when Perreault went into action.

With Orr in the penalty box, he passed to Eddie Shack, whose shot off the back boards bounced to Richard Martin in front of the Boston net, setting up the Buffalo rookie's 22nd goal.

The Bruins struck back with two quick goals at the start of the second period before Perreault struck again, taking a goalmouth pass from Martin to beat Eddie Johnston.

GIL PERREAULT

The third period had barely started when defenceman Jim Watson caught Perreault with a pass near the blue line and the young centre raced in to fire a sizzling 30-footer past Johnston for the tying goal.

Three minutes later, he blocked a shot by Boston defenceman Ted Green and broke away with Mike Byers, setting his line-mate up 10 feet in front of the goal to give the Sabres the lead for the first time.

Ken Hodge tied the score on passes from Esposito and Orr a minute later and Johnston and Buffalo goalie Dave Dryden closed the door thereafter.

"Anytime I can tie Boston I'm satisfied," said Buffalo coach Punch Imlach, adding that he considers the Bruins the best team in the league.

Coach Tom Johnson of the Bruins, runaway winners of the division last year, was less happy.

"We make a lot of leams look good," he said. "We relaxed a little after we got a two-goal lead. Then we couldn't get going again."

No games are scheduled tonight but everyone gets into the act during the remainder of the Christmas weekend.

The Canadiens visit Pittsburgh Penguins Saturday and then move to New York for a key game against the Rangers. California Golden Seals also spend the holiday on the road, paying a call on Los Angeles Kings Saturday and heading north to play Vancouver Canucks Sunday.

Minnesota North Stars entertain the Rangers, Detroit Red Wings are at Toronto, Philadelphia Flyers visit Boston and St. Louis Blues are at home to the Sabres in other Saturday contests.

In the remainder of Sunday's action, Los Angeles visits Chicago Black Hawks, Toronto is at Boston, Minnesota is at Detroit, St. Louis goes to Buffalo and the Penguins move to Philadelphia.

Cowboy Quarterback Gets Purple Present

By ALEX SACHARE

Associated Press Sports Writer

What is Santa Claus bringing Roger Staubach for Christmas?

The Purple Gang, sub-freezing temperatures, a chance of snow and a shot at the National Football League's Super Bowl, that's what.

Temperatures ranging from 18 to 28 degrees above zero are forecast for the Minneapolis-St. Paul area Saturday, when Minnesota Vikings entertain Staubach and Dallas Cowboys in a National Football Conference semi-final game.

Later Saturday, veteran quarterback Len Dawson will lead Kansas City Chiefs against Miami Dolphins in an American Football Conference semi-final.

Sunday, Johnny Unitas will be at the helm when Baltimore Colts travel to Cleveland to meet the Browns in the other AFC semi-final, while George Allen takes his Over-the-Hill Gang and the rest of the Washington Redskins to San Francisco to battle the 49ers in the other NFC semi-final.

Sunday, Tom Landry tabbed him as Dallas' No. 1 quarterback. Staubach has led the Cowboys to their first four starts victories, the NFC East crown and an 11-3 record overall. The Cowboys averaged 29 points a game, with Staubach working with running backs Calvin Hill, Duane Thomas and Walt Garrison, and throwing to wide receivers like Lance Alworth and Bob Hayes or tight ends Billy Truax and Mike Ditka, who shuttle in and out bringing in plays from Landry.

But Saturday, Roger the Dodger will be up against the Purple Gang, the awesome Minnesota defense which has allowed fewer than 18 points a game. Defensive ends Carl Eller and Jim Marshall and tackles Alan Page and Gary Larsen were the key to Minnesota's 11-3 season, enough for the NFC Central crown.

The Kansas City-Miami contest will spotlight two of pro football's most explosive aerial combinations as Dawson throwing to Otis Taylor for the Chiefs and Bob Griese aiming for Paul Warfield for the Dolphins. Kansas City, AFC West champions, and Miami, AFC East titleholders, both went 10-3-1 in the regular season.

The Colts, the AFC second-place team with the best record, may have to do without their top running back when they meet the Browns, AFC Central champions at 9-5. Norm Bulaich, who has averaged 4.9 yards a carry, has a severely pulled hamstring muscle. If he's out, rookie Don Nottingham, the next-to-last player picked in the NFL draft, will start in his place.

The Redskins will face San Francisco, NFC West champs at 9-5. The 49ers compiled a 9-4-1 record after being totally revamped by Allen, who traded away a raft of draft choices in favor of veterans.

One of Allen's acquisitions, quarterback Billy Kilmer, will be looking for personal revenge. He was a first-round draft choice back in 1961—by San Francisco.

Nine Canadians Help

Irish Becoming Hockey Power

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (CP-AP) — Legend has it that more than 20 years ago Knute Rockne looked with concern at "any game that puts cleats in the hands and blades on the feet" of Irishmen.

But he didn't say anything about Canadians.

And there are nine Canadians on the Notre Dame hockey squad that has become a collegiate powder during the last four years.

It has been less than a village year for sport at the private Roman Catholic institution which Rockne made into a football powerhouse during the late 1920s.

The football team lost two games this year and turned down the possibility of a bowl invitation, and the basketball squad is playing a tough schedule with unheralded sophomores.

In hockey, it's different.

Charles (Lefty) Smith, 41, said when he was hired to coach that his goal was for hockey to "attain the stature of football and basketball" at the Notre Dame campus.

"Our facility seats 4,400 for hockey. Our first year we averaged 1,600 a game, then 2,500 the second year and last year we went up to 3,300. We think we'll be near 4,000 by the end of the season," Smith says.

This year, the Irish started off strong and led the Western Collegiate Hockey Association—toughest in the United States—until they lost a pair of 6-5 decisions to Michigan. Now they stand 4-4 in conference play and have the three leading individual scorers in the league.

Eddie Bumbacco, sophomore from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., leads with 11 goals and 17 points. Ian Williams, sophomore from Toronto, is second with 15 points and freshman John Campbell from the Soo has 13 points.

Bumbacco, immediately after last season, had surgery to correct a chronic shoulder separation. He had 30 points—16 goals and 15 assists—in 25 games this year. He missed another six games with mononucleosis.

Two years ago he set a Northern Ontario Hockey Association record with 119 points on 65 goals and 54 assists and was named the league's most valuable player. He is enrolled in the college of arts and letters.

Williams, the Bombacco, is a winger. He was picked by Pittsburgh Penguins last June in the National Hockey League amateur draft.

The Notre Dame book says of Campbell:

"Rated one of the top players to come out of the Soo area. Great playmaker with a good shot, could be a college star. Was a rearded man in NOHA . . . finished sixth in league scoring despite missing part of season with a knee injury . . . scored 97 points on 25 goals and 52 assists . . . enrolled in the college of business administration."

Other Canadians on the squad include centres John Noble and Paul Regan from Toronto; defenceman d'Arcy Keating and winger Pat Reverest from the Soo; winger Larry Israelson of Didsbury, Alta., and goalie Chris Cashouet of Guelph, Ont.

The Notre Dame hockey program lay dormant for 48 years before Smith came from a high school coaching job to start it up again.

"Next September, when we're going into our fifth season, 50 per cent of this team will be on somebody's draft list," he said.

"I like to envision the day when the colleges will be more closely aligned with pro hockey."

Smith would like to see the colleges become a feeder system for the pros but more professional hockey money would have to be involved, spread evenly between junior and college programs.

Also, the pros would have to take a close look at their minor leagues with an eye toward cutting them back. And college hockey would have to be changed.

Although Notre Dame handles its practices under a no-cut rule, "college players would spend a lot of time in the penalty box . . . if they played like the pros."

On the question of comparing United States and Canadian hockey prospects, Smith says: "A lot more Americans have good hockey players today. But American boys have a tendency to put hockey first and academics second. We run into a don't meet the academic standards here."

Canadian boys, on the other hand, are "generally forced to decide between advanced schooling and immediate entry into professional hockey after the eighth grade."

Because of this, "nearly of the players we recruit in Canada are as concerned with the education facilities as with the athletic program."

"We try to set up the proper prospective here," Smith said. "A boy's family is first, his education is second and athletics is third. But that doesn't mean we won't bust our tails trying to win."

Knicks Complete Western Sweep

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Knicks may be tired, but they're happy.

Playing in their third West Coast city in three nights, the Knicks completed a sweep of their far west swing Thursday night by outlasting Portland Trailblazers 130-117, thanks to four free throws in the final 32 seconds by New York's Walt Frazier.

The weary Knicks, who defeated Golden State Warriors in Oakland Tuesday night, then beat the SuperSonics in Seattle Wednesday night, saw Portland chip an 11-point lead with just three in the closing minutes before Frazier iced the game with his free throws.

The 4-foot-4 guard from Southern Illinois paced all Scorers with 36 points, while Jim McKenzie scored 27 points for Portland—20 of them in the final period. New York's Jerry Lucas and Portland's Geoff Petrie each had 24.

My Christmas Card

McKinney Twins Share Everything

by Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

This is my annual Christmas card.

The one I send to everyone, including myself, as a reminder that quiet Christmas like thoughts can still be heard above the din of cash registers and gold rock carols.

I'm addressing this card to one Timothy McKinney.

Tim is 10 years old and shares everything from a freckled nose to a love of sparts with brother Kim.

Tim and Kim even share their Nov. 17 birthday, although Tim boasts: "I'm five minutes older."

The twins, two of six children in the D. E. McKinney Defferin St. household, have similar tastes in just about everything. Both have played on the same hockey, baseball, and soccer teams, and enjoy skiing and swimming.

The first difference an outsider might notice might be in the boys' bicycles. Tim's three-speed model has only one pedal.

It's not broken. Tim was born with a congenital hip defect and, after a series of operations, now wears an artificial limb from his right knee down.

That presented only a slight obstacle when Tim started having goalkeeping duties with Karl's Exso novices of the city minor hockey house league this year.

"He used to fall down a lot and had trouble getting back up," explains brother Kim, a forward on the team. "But the coach just told him to stand up more often."

Coach Ron Redner, who says Tim's tenacousness "are very proud of him", may be called upon to help his gregarious goaltender hoist up the straps on his right leg pad, but otherwise, "he's just one of the guys."

Not that Tim asks for special treatment. "This one" he points to his left ankle without batting an eyelash when you jokingly ask him which one he sprained skiing.

Sometimes just doesn't seem to be part of Tim's problem. "We might catch up," he optimistically refers to his hockey team's current 2-4-1 record.

Right now, Tim would rather talk about the Lacoste Canucks, the soccer team he and Kim played for this summer when they won their division's pennant and playoff titles.

"We only lost two games all year and I had five shutouts" he beams, scrapping like anything but a 10-year-old who had doctors sever his leg at the knee barely a year ago.

"I like Ken Dryden — you patting all this in the paper", Tim interrupts the first dreading room interview of his athletic career.

Assured 'that he was, indeed, going to see his name in print, he chattered on about, among other things, his simple approach to the fine art of goaltending.

"It's about the easiest position to play . . . unless you've got a lousy team in front of you," he reasons.

Were teammates critical when any of the 28 goals he has allowed got by him?

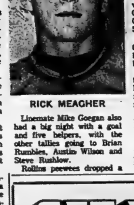
"Not if they were good shots," Tim explains, very seriously.

Taking only short pauses to catch their breath, the twins go on to inform their questioner that they both want goalie equipment for Christmas, and they are grade 5 students at St. Joseph's School, and Kim has scored one goal this year; and no, they didn't fight very often, and Tim can swim 50 lengths of the YMCA pool now, and maybe only 49, and Kim's nickname is "Skinny McKinney" when the other kids are mad at him.

Leaving their interviewer with enough data to write the McKinney Twins Sport Saga, the boys are off down the arena corridor, Tim limping only slightly more than any ten-year-old hockey player in full regalia.

The afternoon silence is shattered by a: "Hey, is the canteen open?"

That's what little boys—and Christmases—are made of.



Twins Take to Ice

Twins Tim and Kim McKinney take to all sports, not just home league hockey. Not even an artificial limb keeps goalkeeper Tim away from his team's weekly novice games. The ten-year-olds are also active in soccer, swimming, and skiing.

Meagher Doesn't Miss A Trick

Rick Meagher managed to night's juvenile all-star bout.

Western Tire's standout centre missed last weekend's 4-1 loss to Napanee and 5-3 win over Stirling because of job commitments. Meagher wasn't missing a thing, including scoring chances, in Thursday's 11-3 win over Stirling. He rapped in seven goals and added two assists to spearhead the Belleville rout.

RICK MEAGHER

Lieemate Mike Geegan also had a big night with a goal and five helpers, with the other tallies going to Brian Rumbles, Austin Wilson and Steve Rushlow.

Rollins peewees dropped a 5-3 exhibition encounter last night to the Peterborough all-stars.

Belleville goals in the hard-hitting contest went to Jeff Gow, Bobby Crawford and Peter Hall. Hooks Crane picked up two assists with John Xanopoulos getting the other.

The Rollins team travels to Niagara Falls next week for a tournament with their first game scheduled for Tuesday, 2 p.m. against Kingston.

Stinson's Stalled

Stinson Construction's rise in the Quinte Hockey League was checked momentarily by Central Taxi last night as the Cobblers held Stinson's to a 5-5 draw.

The tie kept the streaking Constructionmen four points back of the second place Cobble in the league standings. Belevedere Hotel continued to make shambles of the league pennant race by downing Reid's Dairy 7-2 to remain unbeaten.

For the second week in a row no scoresheets were submitted to Intelligencer.

Lions Unbeaten in 19

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Peterborough Lions revenged Picton Canucks 2-4 in an Eastern Ontario Junior B hockey game Thursday night—running their season unbeaten streak to 19 games.

The Lions, 1971 Canada Winter Games hockey champions, have won all but one of their games this season, and in the other they were tied by second-place Oshawa Crushmore, whom they lead by 17 points.

Jim Johnston led the Lions with five goals and five assists, while Rick Blewett had four. Rick Nobes scored three goals for Peterborough, who outshot Picton 51-8.

Further down the league ladder, the Belleville Fairways are hoping to maintain a win streak of their own when they meet the Kingston Frontenacs Sunday.

The Belleville B's have been unbeaten in their last five games including a 7-2 win over second-place Oshawa, whom they trail by only three points in the league standings. The Fairways will carry a season record of 9-4-1 into Sunday's bout.

The Belleville club will be decked in new red and white sweaters donated by Dr. Lionel Deckrill when they take to the Memorial Arena ice for their 7.30 Sunday meeting with the Frontenacs.

Using Miniature Skis Boon to Slope Beginners

ST. SAUVEUR, Que. (CP) — The first time you see an adult strapped to a set of three-foot skis going down a major slope, you'll swear suicide is the motive.

Either that or you'll decide both skis and skier are a long way from their proper milieu —water-skiing.

But it is really a part of learning the winter sport under a unique approach known in the business as GLM —Graduated Length Method.

GLM has been around for a good many years, but it is relatively new to Quebec.

The philosophy of the method is "think low."

It places all emphasis on the lower body—the hips, legs and feet—in teaching the sport.

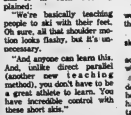
Two Quebec areas—Mont Echo in the Eastern Townships and Mont Gabriel near this Laurentian resort north of Montreal—have undertaken GLM in a big way with good response from the customers.

"I can't believe it," Stan Segal, director of Mont Gabriel's ski school, said. "You can't believe how many people want to learn it."

The method is a system whereby a skier starts on a set of three-foot skis, works up to four-footers, then fives, then regular skis.

"Many of the new skiers like the five-foot skis and stay with them," Segal said.

Segal's wife Jan, who also teaches at her husband's school, said:



"They take off on those five-foot skis, and with such maneuverability they look as good as we do, people who have been skiing a long time. It can be embarrassing."

Segal, who has so dedicated himself to the method of teaching that he has invested in 30 pairs of the undersized skis—30 in each size—explained:

"We're basically teaching people to ski with their feet. Oh sure, all that shoulder motion looks flashy, but it's unnecessary.

"And anyone can learn this. And, unlike direct parallel (another new teaching method), you don't have to be a great athlete to learn. You have incredible control with these short skis."

The first step in learning to ski for Segal takes place, strangely enough, behind his desk. That's where Segal has an electric treadmill.

"They learn the basic footwork there," he said. "Then they're ready for the slopes."

And, as you improve, your skis get longer.

There are a couple of other advantages of the short skis which aren't exactly new.

For one thing, you can ski down the hill for the first time holding on to the instructor's hand—the short skis won't get tangled with the teacher's.

Also, they are not in the way when you are riding a lift, an awkward experience for many beginners.

Segal cites one drawback to the method from a business standpoint.

"We're making skiing so easy, we cut down on the number of lessons. But I don't think we're putting ourselves out of business, of course.

"I think we'll just get more people learning by GLM—it all evens out."

"Try not to get my bankbut in the demolition. Mother's coming to dinner tomorrow!"

Stanfield, Lewis Extend Best Wishes

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield says in a Christmas message that he is hopeful mankind will surmount the many obstacles that face it and eventually forge a better society.

Mr. Stanfield, who has recently been exercising the French he has learned over the last three years, released the message in French.

Christmas is a time for men to forget their quarrels and problems for a brief time, the message said. It is a time when they realize again that if they work together in real brotherhood they can "create a world from which injustice and violence are banished to the greatest extent possible."

On this note of hope, he expressed best wishes for all on behalf of his party, himself and his wife and family.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis wished all Canadians "a happy and successful 1972."

"Canada has unequalled opportunity to create a humane society that can bring to everyone the joy of this season," Mr. Lewis, vacationing in Malta, said in a release issued by his office.

"We have untold wealth, great natural beauty and a great people. Our goal must be to use our immense resources to build a society of equality and dignity for all Canadians."

What the Stars Say for Holidays

SATURDAY, DEC. 25

Your birthday today: What has happened in the past is merely an introduction to the healthy growth possible in the coming year or two. Today's activities are cautious. Be willing to strive for perfection.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Make it an easy holiday for everybody, including yourself. Take initiative in making the word for peace and reconciliation.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): There may be more and deeper emotional warmth in the day's experience than you'd realized there could be.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You rattle around a bit, are thereby rather singular to all nearby. Make just a little effort to give everybody breathing room.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): A day for prayer, counting of blessings and family ties. Gather close friends about you for food cheer, make visits to places of nostalgic appeal.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Old people, ancient legends, the mystery and wonder of the universe over the centuries all come together for you today.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Turn loose, live this as a family day throughout. The cheers of the log tug can be put off till later.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your feelings are worn on your sleeve now, for those who need to know them.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Self-assertion, diplomacy arise naturally as you pursue the traditions you've created for yourself for this special day.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): See your loved ones in person, reach out by all means to reaffirm your emotional ties.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Make sure you fulfill any promises you've made about today. Your share in the family and neighborhood customs means more than is readily apparent.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Keeping track of the extra factors today can be a puzzle—your memories provide perfect distraction.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Today is the time to renew and strengthen emotional ties. Those you love will appreciate just your being there.

SUNDAY, DEC. 26

Your birthday today: If you will stay with what you've started in the last two years and make use of the goodwill achieved, your work will see you through this year in excellent style. Expanding energy only scatters energy. Today's natives like to play "Big Brother" to all.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Make friends, influence people generally, but please, no hint of material business. It's a good idea to have some formal credentials in your pocket.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Find familiar paths but stay a little distance away from those best you've outgrown in your views.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Again you may see everybody else loafing or missing what the traditions of your community this Sunday.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Relax, help other people get back to normal. Don't add superfluous excitement to the day's ordinary history.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You ought to carry a fair share of the responsibility for the solemnity this Sunday.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Reach out now, make renewed contacts wherever there are people you truly care about.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Strive for the wholesome, particularly in departures from the ordinary. Reflection may reveal to you a hitherto unnoticed discrepancy, but it's not a time to attempt corrections.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Keeping the peace continues essential, may be no automatic phenomenon this Sunday.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Bury yourself with these pleasant pastimes you can find, keeping career projects in abeyance.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Let the market for your organizational talents go fallow for the moment while you meditate.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Let well enough pass to fulfill itself now. Thankfully accept average available for you later.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Look for the brighter side as you go through the middle path today. Nothing serious, sharpy enough defined to justify haste.

MONDAY DEC. 27

Your birthday today: Energy is more, mentally sharper, far more available—you find many resources of all kinds near at hand, according to your needs and motivations. Not much of the results are reflected in accumulated loose cash, altho a much steeper earning ability is likely. Today's natives tend to pursue a narrow specialty to the point of transforming their methods and rules.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Nothing major will begin today. Therefore it help if you start out with an actual list of various minor adjustments.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): You'll be proud of your patience in handling the scrambles and inconsistencies which exist.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Good humor makes the day. Leave all schedules tentative, as added changes are almost certain for some days to come.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Just chasing down loose ends is enough activity for the moment. Fresh starts run into detours.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Trying to explain fine points, details may lose the whole point of your discourse, as far as understanding and comprehension go.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Make no more of the day than you have to. Where it is possible for you to take off and rest, do so.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be prepared to embark on a busy week. Considerable on your-own details; accept compromises to get difficult matters settled.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Put your main efforts on individual matters. For many matters this is a last-step, last-chance situation. Check and remember notes from time to time.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Unconventional moves seldom relates to the real problem but something of this sort can be productive now.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan 19): Necessary details fill the day. Try to select the more important, particularly if the opportunity to close a long-standing instance turns up.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): See that most of your endeavor works toward clearing the way for future improvements.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): The means for what you'd like to do may be beyond reach for the moment, but a small plan while the doing's good with what is at hand.

TUESDAY, DEC. 28

Your birthday today: Constellation is your challenge this year, despite an apparent need for expanded communications—perhaps in advertising, publishing, or the like, according to the nature of your y-r-i-t-e. Today's natives usually are highly individual. In genious, sometimes domineering.

Aries March 21-April 19): Anything you say now is apt to be taken in context other than intended. Resulting this, make use of the discrepancies or keep still.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Action speaks louder than any words available to you now. Keep matters simple by wasting no time.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Your pet heroes turn out to be as human as everybody else, with faults and lapses as serious as any of your own.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Conservatism is based on remaining coy of a flaw or a forgotten promise. Do what you may to alleviate matters.

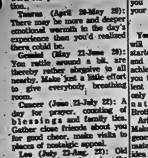
Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Build a constructive, jagged and helpful public relations sort of day or deal humor and general promise.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Do well by it you can see that most of what comes to your attention is superficial and temporary in nature, of relatively low importance.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Cut out, clear out, get out of whatever ruts you've settled in. Move up, at least in earnest and spirit. Enough is going on to provide cover and company for all your doings.

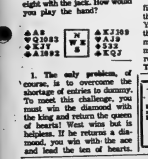
Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Call in specialists, advisers, get a second opinion on a long-standing question. Even a small move now brings repercussions later.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be selective in accepting proffered schedules. Much that clutters the desk is apt to disappear shortly.



Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): A positive attitude concerning your resources serves you well. Pay your share of group or family expenses but no more.

CONTRACT BRIDGE



By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

1. This is a double-dummy problem, which means that you are permitted to look at all four hands to find the solution. You are declarer at Five Clubs and West leads the jack of diamonds. How would you play the hand?

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump. North leads the six of diamonds and you win South's eight with the jack. How would you play the hand?

1. The only problem, of course, is to overcome the shortage of entries to dummy. To make the challenge, you must win the diamond with the king and return the queen of hearts! West wins but is helpless. If he returns a diamond, you win with the ace and lead the ten of hearts. If East covers with the jack, you return to dummy with a heart and take the trump finesse. If East does not cover the queen, you take the trump finesse right away. In either case, you wind up with eleven tricks.

2. To assure the contract, lead a club to the jack, play the nine of spades and finesse.

Win or lose, you have nine sure tricks — three spades, a heart, a diamond and four clubs.

If you were to rely on a heart finesse instead, you might get unlucky and go down one. South could win with the king, return a diamond, and you would take second money if North started with the A-Q-10-x-x of diamonds.

Note that the two-way spade finesse is taken in such a way that it can lose only to North. You can't afford to finesse the other way because South might have the queen and make the damaging diamond return.

Tomorrow: A deadly shift.

Coroner's Jury Says Driver Negligent

TORONTO (CP) — A coroner's jury recommended Thursday that a Toronto truck driver be charged with dangerous driving in the Sept. 9 death of Paul Klewans, 36, of Toronto.

Mr. Klewans' car was crushed by a tanker-truck driven by James Wieder, 19, which overturned on a ramp and poured hot asphalt out of an open hatch on to the car.

The jury said Mr. Klewans died of second- and third-degree burns to 75 per cent of his body and a rupture of the esophagus.

One of the five jurors voted against the recommendation that Mr. Wieder be charged with dangerous driving.

The jury found that contributing factors to Mr. Klewans' death were the unsafe condition of the truck resulting from improper connections of vacuum lines for the brakes to the tanker and the unsafe condition of the brakes and tires.

The jury said Wieder was negligent in the death and that he was an inexperienced driver. The jury also found "a total lack of responsibility and negligence" in maintaining the tanker-truck and in the selection and training of the driver by Lloyd's Cartage, Lecour Cartage and Carter Products Ltd.

Another recommendation was for more stringent control of licensing and training of drivers of heavy commercial vehicles and more stringent regulations by the provincial department of transportation and communications regarding the licensing and operation of commercial vehicles.

Existing legislation should be amended to require that all dangerous, liquid petroleum or tar products be enclosed in a proper tank with baffles secured with proper locking devices when they are being transported.

The jury also recommended that the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario be asked to recommend changes in tractor-trailer equipment that would minimize or eliminate the possibility of misconnecting trailer lines.

Badly Burned Woman Lives To Mark Christmas with Family

TORONTO (CP) — A woman who doctors had expected would be dead long before Christmas celebrated Thursday night with the family she lived through months of agony to see.

"It's the best Christmas gift I've ever been given," Mrs. Rejean Rancourt, 23, said, choking back the tears.

Her husband, and two of their children, Christian 4, and Cantal, 2, visited her in hospital. She hadn't seen her family since Sept. 13, the day her arms burned into flames fed by a cleaning fluid and more than 70 per cent of her body was charred.

Hospital staff paid for the family's 500-mile flight here from Kapuskasing, in Northern Ontario.

"I thought of my children and my husband every day," said Mrs. Rancourt. "I just wanted to get well and be with them."

Dr. Lloyd Carbeen, who has done almost 16,000 operations, said he is "amazed Mrs. Rancourt has survived. In fact, we told her husband and family at one time there was no hope.

"When he first saw the woman, 'most of her body was covered with third-degree burns. Only her legs below the knee, her thigh on the left side, and some of her scalp weren't burned. Even her face had second-degree burns."

The accident happened when Mrs. Rancourt was attempting to clean a spot on her gown.

She applied some cleaning fluid, but, "I guess my gown hadn't dried enough. "I lit a cigarette and bent my head. The cigarette touched the spot where the cleaner was."

"I called for Rejean, who was in the bathroom. My gown was all in flames."

Relatives said later that Mrs. Rancourt was completely wrapped by fire and there was little her family could do because it happened so fast.

She was flown to Scarborough General Hospital in Toronto the next day.

Since the accident, Mrs. Rancourt's other children, Suzanne and Roxanne, 18-month-old twins, have been living with her husband's brother in Lasarre, Que.

Mrs. Rancourt has had 12 operations since the accident. Skin is grafted from the few areas left untouched by the flames to the burned areas.

It takes longer between each skin graft for the tissue to grow again. The first time it took 70 days, and the next, 19 days.

Her weight has dropped to 70 pounds from 125 pounds and Dr. Carbeen still regards her as seriously ill.

But he believes she may be able to return home in about two months.

Commons Starts Christmas Holiday After Okaying Tax Cuts

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons started a four-day Christmas holiday Thursday after approving reductions in personal and corporate income taxes in effect since last October.

Finance Minister N. J. Benson announced the three-part tax cut in personal taxes and the decrease of seven per cent in corporate taxes in October.

The Senate also gave its blessing to the tax-cut bill, which later received royal assent, and then adjourned until Feb. 16.

Thursday's session was dominated by a New Democratic Party attempt to force a more severe cut in personal taxes.

Ed Broadbent (Oshawa-Whitby) moved that personal taxes be cut by 20 per cent, with a guaranteed decrease of at least $50.

"Whenever you make reductions on a flat percentage basis, you give a few cents or a few dollars to those in the lower income brackets, and you give hundreds and thousands to those in the upper brackets," said Stanley Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre).

Mr. Knowles said some Canadians stand to gain only $1.80 in the tax cut proposed by the government.

"We are trying to get more money into the hands of the poor and middle-income people," said Lorne Nystrom (Yorkton-Melville).

Eugene Whalen (L—Essex) said he was raised on mother's allowance and knew as much about poverty as any NDP member.

Robert Kaplan (L—Toronto-Don Valley) said the NDP was filling the written record of the proceedings with figures. The NDP was basing its arguments on the theory that a tax reduction would eliminate poverty in Canada.

"You cannot, even by reducing taxes by $40, hope to alleviate conditions of poverty," he said.

Pat Mahoney, parliamentary secretary to Mr. Benson, said any reduction in taxes was subject to the criticism that it wasn't enough.

"These criticisms are trite, tired and old but they will be always with us," he said.

He said he had "not found anything new in what the NDP has been saying" for the last two days.

"The government must accept responsibility for making the decisions on what tax reductions are appropriate and when they should become effective," said Mr. Mahoney.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) said although his party believed the personal tax cut was "somewhat too low, . . . I would say quite candidly that I think a 40 per cent cut on a six-month basis borders on financial irresponsibility."

He said a $40 cutoff as proposed by the NDP would adversely affect carpenters, plumbers, steel workers and others making $10,000 yearly.

Only 15 NDP members and two Social Creditors supported the NDP amendment.

Voting against it were 182 Liberals and 39 Conservatives.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberals 158, Conservatives 71, NDP 31, Social Credit 15, Independent 1, Independent Liberal 1, vacant 2.

The voting reflected the sparse Commons attendance as MPs waited for the start of Christmas holidays.

On their return Tuesday they will tackle the controversial farming marketing bill, expected to keep them busy for at least three days.

$35-a-week Pay Will Be Taxed

OTTAWA (CP) — The new federal tax law was designed in part to relieve poverty, but poor Canadians still will be paying income taxes when the law comes into force in the new year.

Despite increased exemptions, which the government says will free one million low-income Canadians from any income tax, an individual earning as little as $35 a week or a family of four on $75 still will have to pay tax.

They are among the officially-designated poor—those living beneath an income poverty line calculated by Statistics Canada.

Statistics Canada estimated in a report this year that 2½ Canadian families and another 377,000 individuals living alone—a total of 1,419,000 households—were living below the poverty line in 1969.

Some would have paid no tax in the past. Others will be relieved by increased personal exemptions in the new law, and possibly by further concessions to the old, the blind, invalids, or to families with one parent or where both parents work.

But under the law emerging from Parliament after protracted argument—although seldom on this point—a family as much as $940 a year short of the poverty line still will have to pay federal and provincial income taxes. The legislation awaits the formality of royal assent to become law effective Jan. 1.

Poverty lines—low-income limits in official parlance—are calculated as incomes below which an urban Canadian individual or family would be nearly subsisting, requiring at least 70 cents out of every dollar for necessities in food, shelter and clothing.

The latest official lines, for 1969, are set precisely at $1,894 annually for a person living alone, $3,157 for a couple and $4,420 for a family of four.

On the basis of past revisions, the poverty lines today would be at least $2,000 a year for a single person, $3,360 for a couple and $4,700 for four.

Matrai Guilty of Assaulting Kosygin

OTTAWA (CP) — Geza Matrai, a Hungarian-born Toronto store clerk, was found guilty Thursday of assaulting Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin on Parliament Hill Oct. 18.

He will be sentenced Jan. 7. In the meantime, he will be free on $1,000 bail—as he has been most of the time since the attack occurred.

Matrai, 37, was convicted largely on the basis of photographic evidence, including TV film, of the incident that took place the day after Mr. Kosygin arrived in Canada for an eight-day visit.

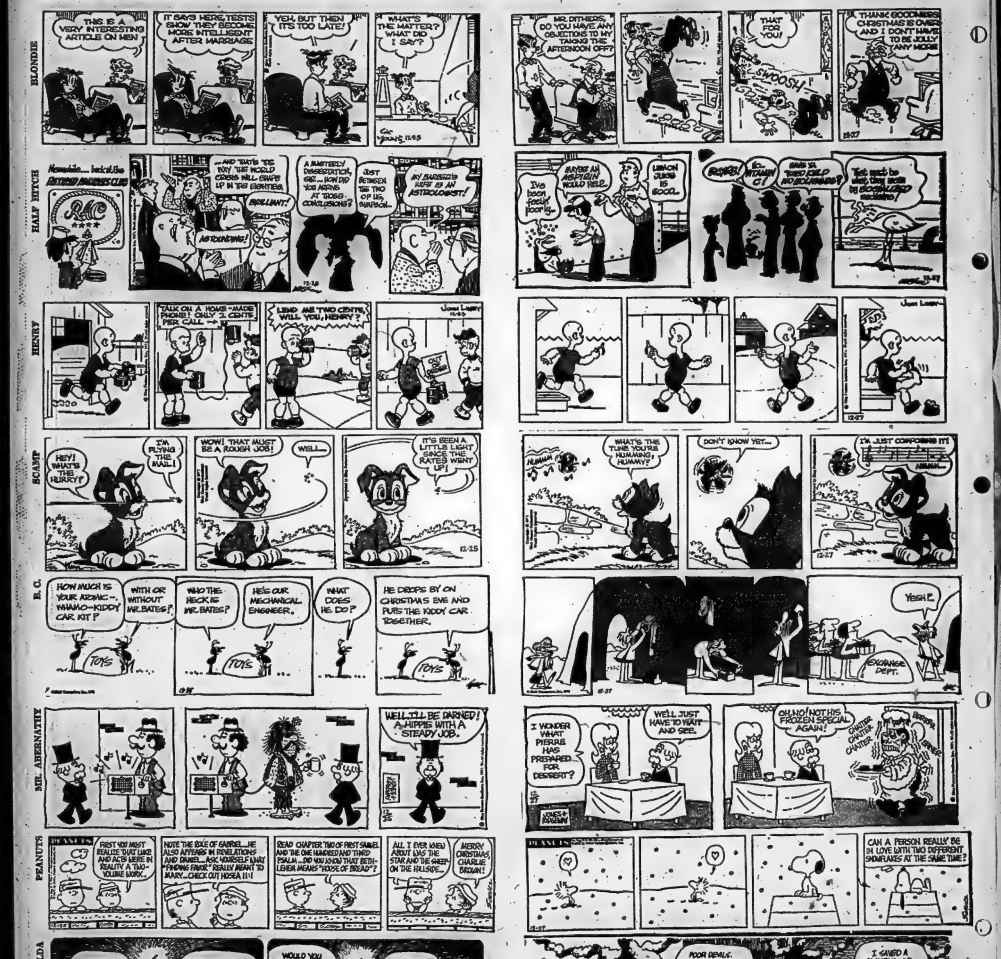
The Soviet premier was making an impromptu stroll with Prime Minister Trudeau when he was attacked from the rear by a lone assailant who penetrated a heavy security cordon.

Mr. Kosygin was manhandled briefly but not injured.

In a statement made following his arrest and admitted in evidence, the accused, a member of the rightist Edmund Burke Society, denied actually attacking Mr. Kosygin or intending any injury.

He told of having come to Ottawa with other Hungarian immigrants to protest the Kosygin visit, which was an insult to him not only as a native of Hungary but as "a loyal Canadian citizen."

Television film showed a close-up picture of the assault on Mr. Kosygin. A man whose face was not discernible was seen to dart towards the premier and engage in a brief struggle with him.



The next shot showed Matrai scrambling on the ground with RCMP security men.

RCMP Corporal Duncan Dunn said he saw Matrai hurry Mr. Kosygin from behind and heard him screaming: "Go home, Kosygin, go home, go home you Russian pig."

RCMP Corporal Peter Roy quoted the accused as saying after being led away: "I'm sorry—sir, I'm not sorry for what I did—I'm sorry I caused so much trouble."

"The evidence is clear to me that an assault did take place and I is equally clear that the accused Matrai was the person who committed that assault," said Provincial Judge Thomas Sweeney after hearing and viewing the evidence.

Matrai had entered no plea to the charge but the court entered a not-guilty plea for him.

U.S. Presses for Unconditional Free Trade in Automobiles

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States is pressing for total unconditional free trade with Canada on new and used autos, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said Thursday.

Mr. Pepin said in an interview that Canada, currently renegotiating its 1965 auto pact with the U.S., regards the prospect with uneasiness.

It would mean that Canadians could go to the U.S. and bring back duty-free new or used autos. Prices in the U.S. are generally lower than in Canada.

Canadians also would be able to buy parts in the U.S. without paying duty on them.

"This is quite a gamble," Mr. Pepin said, discussing the U.S. desire for a complete removal of tariffs.

"There has been no agreement on any aspect yet", he said of the negotiations.

During the Commons question period, Tcd Broadbent (NDP-Oshawa-Whitby) asked whether a decision has been reached to "abandon either or both of the safeguards in the auto agreement."

The safeguards in the agreement guarantee Canada a specific share of the North American auto market.

Mr. Pepin said a decision hasn't been reached.

He said outside the House the safeguards now have little more than a "psychological" value, as Canada's share of the market is $1 billion beyond that envisaged when the agreement was drawn up.

He said the Americans would like to go beyond the safeguards and remove tariffs altogether.

Blaze Damages Hotel

A Queen's Hotel fire last night that t sent one resident to Kingston General Hospital is believed to have started in a fourth floor corridor at a spot in the lower left corner of this photo. Paint Thought Origin of Fire

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A Queen's Hotel resident is in critical condition in Kingston General Hospital today with extensive burns suffered during a fourth floor fire last night.

John Psoras, 46, former bar-keep and long-term resident of the Front Street hotel, was severely burned as he fled along a blazing corridor to the top of the fourth floor stairs.

"He must have come through a wall of fire," said Belleville Fire Chief Leo Culhane.

Another resident, hotel maintenance man George (Scotty) Wilson, who occupied an adjacent room is in fair condition in Belleville General Hospital with face, hand, arm and back burns.

A light sleeper, he is believed to have awakened about 10.30 p.m. Monday night, dashed through the centre of the blaze just outside his door and to have fallen down the stairs leading to the third floor. The sound of his fall aroused hotel owner Ben Weaver, watching television in his room below. Mr. Yanover discovered the fire in the corridor and called firefighters.

Mr. Psoras awakened later and ran through the flames in his pyjamas. Waitress Sharon Trom, who helped carry the burned man to the lobby, said he was "burned from his feet to his head".

Fire Marshal Paul McKerracher is investigating the origin of the fire today. Under study is an area in the corridor outside room 307, occupied by Mr. Wilson. About a dozen paint and solvent cans were stored against the corridor wall near his door.

The top floor of the hotel was under going redecorating and the hotel maintenance man had been painting yesterday.

The hotel has been in operation on Front St. for over 100 years.

City firefighters, on the scene five minutes after the alarm was called in, confined the fire damage to a short section of

Four Children Perish in Fire

JOHNVILLE, Que. (CP) — Four children, ranging in age from two to eight years, died today in a fire in their home in this small Eastern Townships town 80 miles southeast of Montreal.

Sandra, Bertbe, Joanne and Donna Langworth were identified as the victims of the blaze.

The parents were in a bars near the home when the fire struck.

Nixon Sees Brandt

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (Reuter) — President Nixon and West German Chancellor Willy Brandt meet today to plan strategy for improving relations with the Communist world without damaging the Western alliance.

Their goal during two days of talks at the president's villa overlooking Biscayne Bay is to harmonize their policies aimed at eliminating the last vestiges of the Second World War and the cold war that followed it.

Officials describe America-German relations as belief as sunny as the weather that greeted Brandt on his arrival in Florida Monday and say that no dramatic announcements or agreements will emerge from the meeting, the fourth Nixon has held with Western leaders this month.

Their talks are expected, in essence, to result in mutual assurances that their separate diplomatic overtures to the Soviet Union will not harm each other's interests or those of the Atlantic partnership in general.

The U.S.-German summit will be held at the president's winter home, a one-storey ranch typical of mid-island Florida, with a lawn sweeping down to the water's edge.

Brandt arrived by air from West Germany at MacDill Air Force Base near Tampa, 350 miles from the Florida White House, and drove to a vacation spot at Lagbeal Key, on the Gulf of Mexico, for an overnight stay with his family.

The chancellor will go to a Miami hotel tonight, and when the summit ends Wednesday he will fly back to Longboat Key to resume his vacation for about another two weeks.

Diplomatic sources said they believe Brandt would seek and receive renewed assurances from Nixon that the U.S. commitment to NATO remains strong and that the 315,000 U.S. troops in Europe will remain until an agreement is reached with the Soviet Union for mutual and balanced force reductions in central Europe.

Kelanne Wins Irish Hurdle

LEOPARDSTOWN, Ireland (AP) — Kelanne won the Irish Sweeps Hurdle and two others today—a horse race that made lucky ticket-holders around the world rich. Lockyerslegh was second and Phaetus third.

English-owned Kelanne, a 20-to-1 outsider in the betting, took the lead as the 18-horse field tired with half a mile to go. Irish hope Lockyerslegh challenged hard coming to the finishing line, but the winner held on gamely.

The favorites, Canasta Lad and Bonny Scot, never in contention in the muddy conditions following torrential rain Monday.

Justin Pierre Names Chosen For PM's Son

OTTAWA (CP) — The Christmas-Day baby of Prime Minister and Margaret Trudeau will be named Justin Pierre.

"I had ideas about the baby's name," said Father Trudeau, while pausing out cigars to reporters as he entered the hospital to visit his wife Monday.

"But my wife did too, so we've named him Justin Pierre," he said.

"I'm afraid he looks like me."

A press aide to Mr. Trudeau said later, however, that Justin was definitely among the names being considered but the full name would not be released until the baby is christened. He said nothing about the name Pierre.

The prime minister's six-pound, nine-ounce son arrived at 9.27 p.m. Saturday. Both wife and son are reported well.

Mr. Trudeau said the Saturday birth was an "easy one" for his wife, with no complications.

He spent about five minutes with the reporters before leaving them at the front door to join his wife and child.

Pakistan President Talks with Sheik

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto conferred for the first time Monday with the detained leader of East Pakistan, Sheik Mujibar Rahman.

"All I have to say is that he did not kick me in the teeth, nor did I find it necessary to pull a gun," Bhutto told a diplomatic reception after the meeting. "We sat and we talked. And we will continue to talk."

The new Pakistani president did not say where he met with the sheik but noted that he had come to the reception in a local hotel straight from the meeting.

Never once did Bhutto refer to Bangla Desh, the name rebels have given to East Pakistan.

They say that Sheik Mujib is the father of the new nation. But Bhutto referred to Mujib as an "elected leader of Pakistan who represents the people of East Pakistan."

"Pakistan is indivisible," Bhutto said. "Pakistan shall remain one and no force on earth can dismember Pakistan. With the consent and with the will of the people we will build a new Pakistan."

India Plans to Trade Pakistanis for Bengalis

DACCA, East Pakistan (AP) — India will use Pakistani civilians held prisoner in Bangla Desh as bargaining pawns to deal for the safety of Sheik Mujibur Rahman and other Bengalis in West Pakistan, a high Indian official said today.

India's special envoy to Bangla Desh, D. P. Dhar, said the plan to seek a swap is still being worked out.

An estimated 97,000 Pakistani soldiers surrendered or were captured in East Pakistan during the two-week war in which India freed the rebel province and set up the Bangla Desh regime.

Some 5,000 civilians also are held by the Indians at a Dacca cantonment. They include former Gov. A. M. Malik and other officials.

Dhar told reporters that India is concerned for the safety of half a million Bengalis in West Pakistan. They include two Bengali battalions, a large number of dependents and Sheik Mujib, the acknowledged political leader of Bangla Desh.

"There will have to be a package deal because, if Mujib is returned, normalcy will come within two hours."

Democrats Are Opposed To Heavy Vietnam Raids

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attacks by congressional Democrats are mounting against stepped-up bombing raids over North Vietnam while Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird says the new strikes were prompted by violations of a 1968 understanding with Hanoi.

Laird refused at a news conference Monday to rule out more strikes against North Vietnam and Radio Hanoi reported that fresh waves of American bombers hit wartime targets for the third straight day today.

The defence chief described the attacks by a reported force of 350 planes as being of limited duration. He said they were not slow down the U.S. troop-withdrawal rate.

With the U.S. troop level in Vietnam down to 160,000, Laird said: "The primary emphasis is on protecting the remaining American forces that are in Vietnam today."

But Democratic presidential hopeful Senator George McGovern said the "shocking escalation . . . sinks us deeper into the quagmire of Indochina and, more important, makes it certain none of our prisoners will be released."

While Bob Hope acts as an emissary of President Nixon in seeking release of our prisoners, the air force acts as the true Nixon instrument in guaranteeing that the number of PoWs will be increased," the South Dakota senator said in a statement.

In Philadelphia, Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (Dem. Minn.) signed a statement calling for the setting of a date for total withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Vietnam, cessation of all bombing and removal of U.S. support for the present Saigon government.

The former vice-president signed the statement after his speech before the American Association for the Advancement of Science was disrupted by a group of jeering anti-war, anti-Humphrey young people.

Democratic Representative Les Aspin of Wisconsin said he would call for a full congressional investigation of the air war when Congress reconvenes next month.

Heavy bombing of the North, Aspin said, will "prevent seri-

Bombing of North Continues Today

SAIGON (AP) — Flight after flight of United States planes streaked into North Vietnam today for a third day of heavy raids. There was no indication when the attacks would end.

In South Vietnam, a Viet Cong platoon shot down seven U.S. helicopters supporting militia men in an operation 27 miles northwest of Saigon. The U.S. command said the American crew members were wounded, one helicopter was destroyed and the other six were damaged. Five South Vietnamese and three crew members were reported killed in the fighting.

The U.S. command remained silent on American losses in the attacks on North Vietnam, but Radio Hanoi made no new claims. This indicated there had been no American losses since its report Sunday that five F-4 Phantoms had been shot down. A total two pilots killed and an unspecified number captured.

Informants said hundreds of strikes had been made against North Vietnamese anti-aircraft defences and war stockpiles awaiting shipment into Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam.

Supplementing the raids were U.S. B-52 strikes along the Laotian border with North Vietnam.

No B-52 strikes have been reported in South Vietnam for three days, and informants said they have been diverted to Laos.

The North Vietnamese foreign ministry accused the U.S. raids of bombing and strafing attacks Monday against "many civilian populated areas, including a children's school," in Quang Binh province, just to the north of the demilitarized zone. The U.S. command refused to comment.

Christmas Truce Ends In Ulster

BELFAST (CP) — Northern Ireland's Christmas holiday from violence is over.

A flurry of shooting, bombing and burning, and a warning from the British army that children playing with Christmas toy guns were in peril of their lives, underscored the ending of a two-day unofficial truce.

Soldiers garrisoning the embattled country are sending out thousands of leaflets to parents in main trouble spots, saying: "If your child plays with a toy gun in the streets he may be killed."

An army officer was being interviewed about the warning by a British television crew in Belfast Monday when a gunman shot down one of his guards. Millions of television viewers saw the wounded man writhing on the sidewalk.

The condition of the soldier, 21-year-old Pte. Ronald Madge, was said by a hospital to be "not serious." The bullet passed straight through his chest and out under an arm.

Children in areas like Belfast's notorious Falls Road—scene of some of Northern Ireland's worst violence in 28 months which has brought 262 dead—have been playing a new game called "ambush," the army said.

Youngsters, sometimes only five or six years old, have pounced on army patrols, hosing away with plastic weapons.

U.S., South Vietnam Shun Talks at Paris

PARIS (AP) — The United States and South Vietnam announced today they will not attend the Vietnam peace talks session Thursday. One of the reasons cited was "the very heavy North Vietnamese attacks against unarmed U.S. reconnaissance planes."

The surprise announcement came as U.S. planes bombed targets in North Vietnam for the third successive day of heavy raids.

It apparently beat the Communists to the propaganda punch. A Viet Cong spokesman, Ly Van Sau, told reporters his side sent the American delegation a note this morning cancelling the meeting Thursday in protest against the American bombing of North Vietnam.

Sau said the Communist note to the American delegation and the U.S. notification of cancellation to the Communist delegations came "about the same time."

Redwood Motel, Lounge Sold

TRENTON (Staff) — The sale of the Redwood Hotel was announced today by owner R. L. Walmsley, Purchasers were Mr. and Mrs. Hector McLean of Keswick, Ontario.

Started in 1960, the Redwood expanded steadily from its initial 30 units to 53 today. The motel section was operated by Mr. and Mrs. James Walmsley, the owner's parents, for 10 years previous to their retirement last year.

In 1964, the Redwood was annexed to Trenton and at this point there were no dining lounges between Cobourg and Shannonville. Raymon Walsley approached Gordon Thrasher of the Dutch Mill Inn to co-sponsor a liquor plebiscite, which resulted in the first entertainment lounges in the Trenton area.

The Red Lion . . . the addition containing the lounge and dining lounge was then built and for five years featured such entertainment as Tommy Common, the Mercy Brothers, the Allan Sisters and Ray Belmonde. However, in 1970, Mr. Walmsley made what seemed at the time a bad move.

Hopping out the carpet and plush chairs and replacing them with a stone floor and hard seats, the popular Red

Marmora Girl Hit By Car

A Marmora girl was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, with leg injuries sustained in an early morning traffic accident today.

Miss Judith Rowe, 17, of William St., Marmora was struck by a car driven by James Thomas Nokes, 25, also of Marmora. The accident happened at 8 a.m. Monday, Dec. 27.

No charges were laid in connection with the incident.

Tree Limb Cuts Power

Power was restored shortly before 8 a.m. this morning after a tree limb, loaded with ice, fell on a power line serving the east hill.

Belleville Utilities Commission work crews, spent three hours replacing the line which affected Albert, Albion, MacDonald, Pine and Victoria Streets.

was changed into an authentic English pub, manned by entertainer Woody Reid, whose singalong sessions replaced the big groups. The transition was a success from the start.

Mr. Walmsley also started, in 1970, the Kitten Club, a prototype of a club franchise that was established both in Trenton and the second Kitten Club International location in Prince Edward Island.

When asked why he was selling, Mr. Walmsley replied, "two reasons . . . one is my health and not enough time for myself and my family. Life is too short to spend it all working. I think it's time to live a little."

Mr. and Mrs. James Walmsley joined Raymon in saying how much they had appreciated the help they received from the Trenton people.

"They have been marvellous to us, in particular Councillor Paul Tripp and town comptroller O. W. Larry."

Mr. Walmsley, who did not disclose the amount of money involved in the transaction, detailed the new recreational facility during night hours and weekends.

While Mr. Rickard will remain on 24-hour call as he is at present, Mr. Riley will be on hand to administrate all but the most extensive emergency conditions.

His schedule has yet to be established.

A 25-year-old Bachelor of Commerce graduate from McGill University, he is at present employed as a research assistant by the Alberta Hospital Services Commission.

Hospital Board Sets Conditions For Loyalist

Marking the end of another year, appointments to the Board of Belleville General Hospital are open for nominations.

Administrator, J. P. Sullivan, chairman of the board for the past two years, announced several positions, including his own, are open to nominations.

Following the meeting Mgr. Monsignor-Sullivan was asked by newsmen if he would serve for another year. "I'll leave this decision to the nominating committee," he replied.

Because the board operates on a rotating appointment basis, only six positions are open.

Of these, Mrs. J. E. Marsh of the Women's Christian Association has been unanimously elected. Mrs. J. E. Nelles, as president of the Belleville Hospital Auxiliary, will return for another term.

A seventh position is also open for appointments, has been filled by Dr. Gilbert Allen of Tweed. He replaces Dr. R. S. Berry.

Both the city of Belleville and the County of Hastings, are entitled to each announce their two appointees.

The executive positions will be selected by the board's nominating committee.

Meetings This Week

Public and civic meetings this week (Dec. 23 - Jan. 3) are even fewer in number than Christmas week. The Intelligencer has received notice of the following.

MONDAY

Recreation and Arena Committee capital works budget meeting, 9 a.m. at Recreation Centre, Pinnacle Street, Belleville.

Hospital Position Filled

An evening administrator for Belleville General Hospital has been appointed.

Charles Riley, of Edmonston, Alta., will assume his new position as of Feb. 1, 1972.

Hospital administrator Philip Rickard said the position was established to provide access to the hospital administration during night hours and weekends.

While Mr. Rickard will remain on 24-hour call as he is at present, Mr. Riley will be on hand to administrate all but the most extensive emergency conditions.

His schedule has yet to be established.

Psychiatric Services Need Help

At a recent meeting of Belleville city council, a recommendation to "develop and expand Belleville General Hospital's psychiatric services, particularly in the area of out-patient consultation," was forwarded to the hospital and Hastings County Council, which later supported this resolution.

At its Thursday meeting, the hospital's board of governors officially stated, "the administration and the director of psychiatric services have at all times been conscious of the need to extend and develop the services."

However, pointed out administrator Philip Rickard, the hospital is faced with a long-term impossible situation, - there are not enough psychiatrists, and they don't want to come to Belleville.

"We've advertised for additional psychiatrists. We need more psychiatrists, at least one or two, as well as additional psychologists," he said.

At present, the paramedical staff consists of a psychometrist, a full-time social worker, a part-time social worker and two social worker assistants.

"We want to expand but can't", he added.

Crash Stalls Trip

A Toronto family had their Christmas trip to Ottawa stopped abruptly as a result of a traffic accident half a mile south of Ivanhoe or Highway 62.

The car, driven by Craig John Hardy, 31, of Rexdale, went out of control on the icy roadway, causing extensive damage to the vehicle.

Mr. Hardy, his wife Elsie, 31, two-year-old daughter, Tammy, and one-year-old daughter Kimberly were all brought to the Belleville General Hospital, treated for injuries and released.

Most seriously injured in the accident was Kimberly, who sustained a broken right leg.

It's The Police!

You never know what you're going to hear next these days — particularly if it's a walkie-talkie that's slightly off-frequency. Nonplussed youngsters — (from left) Terry Calder, Terry Brown, Stephen Jordan, all 9, Michael Callaghan, 8, — found they were picking up Christmas day city police calls on walkie-talkie set Santa left. While police say they've hit no pro-

Pedestrian Injured

A Belleville man spent Christmas Day in the Belleville General Hospital following a motor vehicle accident on Station Street in the vicinity of Church Street.

Fifty - five-year-old Charles Hugh Bennett, of 22 East Moira Street, was crossing Station Street when he was struck by a car driven by Roberta Lavelle of Wallbridge Crescent.

Officials of the hospital say he sustained his injuries and possible head injuries but is resting comfortably and is considered progressing well.

The driver of the car has been charged with careless driving.

Walkie-talkies Could Be Problem

One of these yuletides the federal government may take a second look at what goes into Santa's toy sacks. Belleville's top police official believes.

Not only Santa, but at the whole question of it certain — and exciting — toy now available on the market in record years: walkie-talkie radio sets.

Sold in pairs, for a youngster, the trimmed-down version of the real thing—makes a pretty dramatic gift. It also makes him a bit with the rest of his chums anxious to get in on the communications act, messaging each other from a distance.

That seemed the way it was for one Belleville youngster Christmas Day, when he found Santa had left him a pair of the portable radios.

Everything worked splendidly.

The only problem was, says nine - year - old Stephen Jordan, he and his playmates suddenly noticed they were receiving city police calls as the youngsters set the portables crackling in their East Hill neighborhood.

They figured discretion was the best departure from dilemma for the moment, and refrained from talking back to the officers, while puzzling what to do.

What was happening, explained Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, was that the gift set was probably slightly off frequency and was therefore receiving calls on the city police radio band.

He noticed it before — when his own youngsters had a pair of the low-powered portables and found they could receive other — though not police — calls, a couple of years ago.

As yet, he'd heard of it causing no difficulties among his department's communications — but the problem could arise and multiply in the future.

Police communications become increasingly sophisticated — men in the field now carry walkie-talkies, besides the vehicles which are radio-equipped — and sales of the commercial item are not likely to decrease in popularity.

"It's a problem . . . that sometime, I guess, the government is going to have to face up to — on all those walkie-talkies that the kids have now," said the chief. (The federal government is responsible for use of such communications as radio.)

"There's a certain frequency reserved for police. But there are so many of those walkie-talkies around now and if they are off frequency they could pick us up," he agreed.

The possible problem for an emergency service like police — aside from the oft-time confidential nature of their communications — is this:

"You could be getting false calls, or your frequency could be jammed. We certainly wouldn't want any interference."

Things you should know about...

ONTARIO HEALTH INSURANCE

YOUR NEW COMBINED GOVERNMENT PLAN

The new "Ontario Health Insurance Plan" will provide all the coverage now available to you under both OHSIP and Ontario Hospital Insurance. And it will do so at a lower combined premium than you now pay for the two separate plans.

The new premiums will be payable in January, 1972, and thereafter, to cover benefit periods beginning on or after April 1, 1972. These new premiums will be:

- $11.00 a month for a single person, and
- $22.00 a month for a family (2 or more eligible persons)

REPLACES "OHSIP" AND "ONTARIO HOSPITAL INSURANCE"

The Ontario Health Insurance Plan will replace the OHSIP (medical) and Ontario Hospital Insurance plans as of next April 1, and you will then have only:

- one plan to deal with;
- one health insurance identification card;
- one health insurance number (your former Ontario Hospital Insurance number);
- one combined premium to pay.

If you now have Ontario Hospital Insurance, your changeover to the new combined plan will be automatic. No action on your part is required as the new plan will be based on the existing hospital insurance billing system.

FREE FOR SENIOR CITIZENS

(After 1-year Residence in Ontario)

As of January 1, 1972 residents aged 65 and over are exempt from paying Ontario Health Insurance premiums to cover themselves and their eligible dependents. To benefit from this exemption, insurance may be transferred to the name of the older spouse if it is presently in the name of a spouse under age 65.

Most residents aged 65 years and over have already applied for premium-free coverage, but if you have not done so, please write to the Plan giving your Ontario Hospital Insurance number, your OHSIP number, and month and year of birth.

Persons who turn 65 after January 31, 1972, should apply at the time for free coverage. If you pay your premium on a direct basis, write to the Plan for an application. If you pay through a group, advise your group. Premium-free coverage will take effect on the first day of the month in which your 65th birthday occurs. Any premiums paid to cover benefit periods beyond that date will be refunded.

PREMIUM ASSISTANCE

(After 1-year Residence in Ontario)

Effective with the benefit month of April, 1972, Individuals and families with no taxable income for the year 1972 are eligible, on application, for 100% Ontario Government premium assistance.

Individuals with less than $1,000 taxable income in 1972, and families with total taxable income of under $2,000 are eligible for 50% premium assistance. This will reduce the monthly premium to $5.50 for such individuals (instead of $11.00) and to $11.00 for an eligible family (instead of $22.00).

Taxable income is the amount on which a person pays income taxes, after subtracting from his total income all exemptions and other deductions to which he is entitled.

Note: If you remit your premiums on a direct basis, details on Premium Assistance will be mailed with your next Premium Notice. Residents enrolled in groups will be informed through their groups.

NEW IDENTIFICATION CARDS

The Plan will provide each insured single person and each insured head of a family with a new Ontario Health Insurance Identification Card to use for insured services received on or after April 1. Anyone who has not received his or her card by that date should use the current Hospital Insurance Certificate, after April 1, 1972, for medical and hospital services until the new card is received.

Your present OHSIP card should be used when claiming for medical and practitioner services received up to March 31, 1972.

IMPORTANT

As the present Ontario Hospital Insurance numbers and billing system will form the basis of the new plan, anyone who does not now have hospital insurance coverage should register without delay.

Applications are available in banks and freepaids and from offices of the Ontario Health Insurance Plan.

BE SURE YOU ARE COVERED NEXT APRIL 1st!

City Developments

With some of Belleville's more spectacular developments now behind us and functioning elements of the community the way ahead will be paved, necessarily as well as literally, in more down-to-earth fashion. We refer to the city's large-scale projections for sewer construction.

Belleville's growth in recent years dictates such practical matters and that is why work is expected to commence shortly on the Moira River sanitary trunk sewer serving the northeast section of the city and parts of Thurlow township. Next spring also should see a start on the initial phase of a $1.25 million storm sewer to drain the city's north end west of North Front Street, a focal point of the city's more recent growth.

Other projects are in the works but these are prime examples and as pointed out by City Manager J. R. Reynolds they should not conflict, from a financial standpoint, with another major project being given working study at the proposed new Pinnacle Street bridge and other phases of the north-south arterial routes that also are envisaged.

Still another improvement plan is reconstruction of Dundas Street West to provide a four-lane undivided arterial route and link up ultimately with a rebuilt Highway 2 between Belleville and Trenton.

It is all rather unspectacular compared with new plants, a mall and a hotel but all very much in the realm of progress. It is the nuts and bolts, or should we say the tar and cement, of all that is necessary to the community's onward march.

Dublin Acts

Ballyshannon poet William Allingham would never believe it if he were around today. In "dear old Donegal" police and troops have been in confrontation with the IRA and have even made two or three arrests.

And talk in the Irish republic where, although the IRA is outlawed there too, the authorities have been turning a virtually blind eye to the terrorist organization's activities. The recent murder of an Ulster senator for example is thought to have been the work of gunmen from across the border in Donegal.

Prime Minister Jack Lynch meanwhile has made overtures to the effect of bringing home Irish troops from their peace-keeping mission in Cyprus. For them it will be "from the frying pan into the fire" so to speak, albeit a chilly winter prospect compared with Cyprus. There is some prospect compared with Cyprus. There is some talk, however, of their being recalled "within three months" which could be a different matter.

It makes us think of a joke in Punch some years ago, during an earlier IRA campaign in Ulster. On the wall of a travel agency are posters of Ulster and Cyprus and the travel agent is saying to a customer: "Now for a really exciting holiday, sir!"

It is a far cry from poet Allingham's peaceful image of "Four ducks on a pond, a grass bank beyond, a blue sky of spring, white clouds on the wing;" and a little thing to remember for years, to remember with tears."

As Ulster author St. John Ervine said of the foregoing: "Is not that the whole of our story? Isn't it the only thought that all these rages and world arguments will fade out of our minds, and we shall remember, as long as we live, four ducks on a pond or a boy's bit of fun one day at school?"

We hope he is right.

Holiday Woes

The good old Farmers' Almanac for 1972 has a section devoted to "unlucky" days, as if anybody needs such visitations. It is all to do with your status vis-a-vis the moon and the earth, the constellations and all.

Take our main Christmas events. Well, that means our lucky days are Thursdays and our unlucky days Wednesdays. On the former we are told to take the initiative in all things, and on the unlucky days the opposite. But many a sforscore of Christmases these signs and portents can be all wet, as they say.

In fact our unlucky days this year came, true to form in our case, at Christmas — on Christmas Eve, indeed, in fact when the car would not start, and this after we had slept in. It was a damp rainy morning and car motors can be fickle creations in such conditions. Then another part of this the last had forgotten something and we had to turn back to pick it up.

A couple of years ago, on Christmas Day of all days, we put in many cold weather to get flash bulbs or something, not really expecting the place we had in mind would be open. Somewhere up Bridge Street smoke began to spurt from over the back roof. We had forgotten to look after the anti-freeze. Over then to a gas station on Dundas which, miraculously, was open, and then a walk home in five-below conditions. Home eventually with our eyebrows frozen but feeling pretty fit all the same. We picked up the car later, the engine block fortunately unharmed.

Ah, yes, the joys of Christmas . . .

Takes Nothing for Granted

Dief Will Be Mainstreeting Again in Prince Albert

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Would you believe that after 10 successive election victories, seven of them in Prince Albert, former Conservative Prime Minister and still dean of the House of Commons John Diefenbaker is "worried" about winning and holding his riding again, and rightly so, around?

The record in the Parliamentary Guide shows that in the last four elections, Dief has never had less than 11,000 votes.

In the old riding of Lake Centre where he was first elected before switching to Prince Albert his winning margin was narrower, but still substantial.

But the Old Warrior is wondering if Perrilly Albert which has sent him to Parliament seven times in a row will remain faithful in the next election.

Odd, is it not, when The Chief has become a non-Prince national institution, respected if not always loved even by the "Grits", as he calls the Liberals.

Elder statesman, former Prime Minister and Conservative Leader by now an unchanging fixture in an ever-changing House of Commons' survivor of 32 years in Parliament come next year's election, and a "showpiece" like the Peace Tower, for tourists and visitors, who come to stroll the corridors of power.

But even so, he frets, for he knows life and politics is seldom easy and never quite sure.

So he goes back to Prince Albert to "main-street", visit the barber shop — "a great place to meet old friends" — and call on newcomers to town, just like he was the young John Diefenbaker of 32 years ago, making his first campaign rounds in his initial Lake Centre riding.

To hear him tell it, the wise MP does never take anything especially the voters, for granted.

For no matter how much you might have done for them over it - does - no matter - however many - many - years, there is the feeling that they expect you to do more.

After 32 years and 10 elections it no longer is work, though, having become a part of every-day living.

The habit of politics can be broken only by defeat.

And if you have never been defeated, you just keep on working at winning, emptying every minute of it, even if you do not really have to lift a finger.

Like Paul Martin, who, until he was "promoted" to the Senate in 1968, could be found parliamentary rug stretching back 10 elections to 1935.

He is "safe" now, as some envious MPs might phrase it, for he is close to 70 himself, until he is 75 and he does not have to run for anything.

But he cannot break the habit, and just will not stop running.

Like down in Tampa, Florida, not long ago, when he came to the Air Canada departure lounge and found it packed with Canadians.

Made the rounds, introducing himself and shaking every hand. Even the children's.

They did not all know him when he entered, but they sure did by the time he left — to duck out of the door to introduce himself to a carload of Canadians just pulling up.

Senator Martin flies home weekends still — not to relax, like any non-politician would do — but to campaign, even if he is not running for anything any more.

Never fails Saturday morning to station himself at the exit door from supermarkets in one of a number of shopping malls in his old riding of Essex East. Shaking hands, saying hello, "just being there," as he puts it.

Prime Minister Trudeau flew into Windsor (just off Essex East) not long ago, and the staff at Holiday Inn, where there was a reception, had to turn out to greet him.

But it was "Tom Paul," as one of the Inn's bellmen called him, that they lined up to applaud, because Mr. - Martin, while now a Senator and no longer MP, was still "the man".

Senator Martin seldom enters the Centre Block by the Senate Entrance.

Too quiet. No crowds. Nobody to greet and meet.

So he goes to the Main Door where the visitors and tourists and the innumerable students line up to await seats in the Commons galleries and their turn in guided tours of the building.

Slowly Senator Martin walks down the line, eye peeled for a familiar face.

Somebody says "there's Paul Martin," and whom, on go the Senator's hands. He loves to chat, meets everyone in the group. Asks "are you from Windsor?" If they are, he jots down their names and addresses. Goes to the nearest phone and calls his secretary with them, and out go letters that very day to these people informing them, when they next come again, how glad Paul Martin was to meet them.

The names and addresses go into his files for Christmas cards, birthday greetings...notes on anniversaries, births, deaths, graduations, in fact, any family event.

He has the biggest name and address file any Parliament Hill up dated and annotated, and he still "works" it, still running although there is nothing now to run for.

Hail, Life - style of years. Like Dief. Always campaigning.

Aid Is Sought For Pakistani Refugees

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

People to People campaign, a nation-wide fund raising appeal was launched in Canada last week with the hope that many millions and thousands of individuals will join in an all out effort to alleviate the terrible agony of the Pakistan refugees. These members of the human family have already suffered too much and now have experienced the added horror of total war.

As the situation changes it is to be hoped that these same people will be able to return in safety to the land from which they fled and that they might be helped to rebuild their shattered lives. Joyce Fletcher Director of the People to People Campaign stated: We do not underestimate the magnitude of the task and have only begun the first installment. Our aim has been done by many and successfully already. Our aim is to bring this enormous human tragedy with which most people sympathize but do not feel they can do much about, to the level where an average person can do something. Consider that 33 cents a day feeds a Bengali refugee. Thirty-three cents is not beyond the means of many Canadians. Clothing could then be applied on a family level so as to adopt an East Pakistani family, families such as these co-ordinated with community effort could ensure the survival of many otherwise doomed people.

Families, churches, groups, students, children, people can give up one meal for one day or work the hours and collect for the People to People Campaign. Individuals or groups can save one life by pledging 23 cents a day which is $10 a month for six months. Money received will be channelled through reliable agencies such as OXFAM, UNICEF, INTERNATIONAL Rescue Committee who have already done so much but like all relief agencies must respond to urgent demands from other parts of the world.

Please join People to People, Lend a hand and save a life.

The following telegram was sent to over 400 major corporations and prominent Canadian individuals.

"India Pakistan War follows greatest cyclone and flood devastation in modern history. Ten million refugees fled into over-burdened India. Food, shelter, medical aid, far beyond capacity of Indian Government desperately needed. Now War adds new dimension of horror. This is a humanitarian appeal to you, and other leading Canadians for funds to aid in particular War zone victims. Please mail or wire your dollars for food and medical supplies. Tax deductible receipts available."

Has Real Meaning Of Christmas Been Missed?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

We feel that Christmas has become too commercialized. Too much emphasis is placed on the problems of commercialism at Christmastime. We feel that without a doubt it is better to believe in Jesus Christ than in Santa Claus.

Englishman Sees Another Side to Ulster

Letter in Belfast News Letter

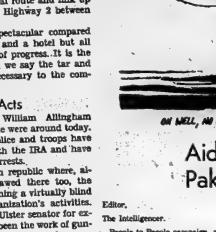
The publicity given in the violence and disorder in Ulster has tended to perpetuate a rather one-sided and unfortunate picture of the province.

As a resident of Southern England who regularly visits your shores I feel that this general misconceived view requires redress, if only to assure the people of Ulster that not all English people see your country in a state of permanent conflagration and rendezvous and political instability.

The other picture of Ulster, reflecting the ever improving quality of your environment and general way of life is not frequently mentioned and often ignored by those whose only concern is to denigrate your country.

First, your opportunities for leisure and recreational pursuits are unparalleled in any other part of the United Kingdom and the unspoilt beauty and variety of the scenery and landscape is almost equally matched by the quality of the highways which enable standards of accessibility unknown in the congested South - East of England.

Second, your slum clearance and new housing schemes establish a rate of growth to overcome on a pro rata basis to anything yet achieved in Great Britain while not experiencing the alarming inflationary pressures on the housing market now rampant in the South of England with its consequent effects on real standards of living.



Third, despite what is said about economic unemployment facing Ulster, British and foreign businessmen continue to invest heavily in new plants and machinery (particularly in the electrical and electronical plant) creating on average 6,000 additional jobs a year, and providing the basis for long term sustained economic growth within the province.

This record of job creating compares very favourably with other Development Areas and the confidence it has built for employers is a key indicator of the future viability and commercial prosperity of the province.

These are some of the facets

Cancer Source

BBC London Letter

A British scientist is investigating the possibility of using cow-farming substance in the milk of cows fed on the common bracken fern. Dr. L. A. Evans of University College, North Wales, a fresh cow complex led quantities of bracken to a cow and giving her milk to mice and rats and found that it influences cancers in them. These tests have continued now for a number of months to find out if the bracken contained any substances which include the aflatoxins, chemicals found in moulds on nuts and grain and known to be highly toxic to humans.

The common bracken itself (Pteridium aquilinum), is found on hilly pastureland in Northern Europe and Britain, and particularly in North Wales where is found in Japan, where it is a favorite human food.

Japan has the world's highest incidence of stomach cancer. Dr. Evans, in a BBC interview, points out that the highest rate of gastric cancer in British cancers in North Wales where many cows on hill farms have access to bracken, and quotes the Japanese incidence as strong circumstantial evidence to support her theory that there is a connection between bracken and cancer.

British Go for Sauna Baths

BBC London Letter

Britain is cosmopolitan today, whether or not it is true she was insular till recent years, all sorts of foreign ideas and institutions from italian coffee bars to Chinese restaurants are now part of the British way of life. Finland's sauna bath is one of the latest arrivals. Until a few years ago most of the British would have thought it rather a joke, all those Finns heating themselves on the back with birch twigs and then rushing out into the cold to cool off. But no longer.

Finland is among the principal Finns slyly introduced the sauna to Britain and it is caught on with a rush and a swing up, especially with "top people" and the well-to-do. Having a private sauna bath installed in one's house became a status symbol. The trendy London businessman no longer invited a friend to the club when he was anxious to impress him: he invited him to sauna instead. Half the male staff left at that past this stage. Its value not only for hygiene but as a physical restorative has become recognized. More and more private families and many clubs and big cities like London and Birmingham public saunas are quite common.

As British family sauna costs a little under £300 and comes in a variety of shapes and sizes. But...abreast in the Finnis traded by pouring water onto stones heated by a fire. Britain's sauna is usually electrically heated, with thermostatic controls. Apart from that, though, the atmosphere is Finnish down to the pine logs.

Hellyer's Dilemma

Montreal Gazette

Just when it appeared that Action Canada had become history in Canada, Paul Hellyer bobbed to the surface again. He is still thinking and conserving his movement, or whatever it is, into a political party. As he told the inquiring reporter in Ottawa, "Actually, we are doing very well. Better than we had hoped for," he said in the interview.

If Mr. Hellyer wants to make a case against the Trudeau government, he should be join the Conservative party, where he can most effectively be made? Or is he waiting for the Conservative party to endorse his ideas?

'People Are Still Tops'

John Balyz, 22, tries guitar after freak accident he says might have cost his sight had it not been for quick response of telephone operator, cab driver, nurses. While lying in hospital days before Christmas pondering possibility of blindness, he decided to learn guitar-playing since he'd heard some sightless folk have made a living in such a way. He's recovering — but family gave him Instrument Christmas Day.

Cabbie, Nurses Thanked

Emergency Teamwork Saved His Sight

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

It doesn't take the Christmas spirit to bring out the best in people — as a 22-year-old Bellevillian is willing to testify.

It's fashionable these days to debate how modern society has turned people off from each other, how slow individuals can be to respond to personal distress.

But these days of all times, don't talk like that to John Balyz — or his family.

"When you've really in desperate need — there's always someone there to help," says John. And the reserved rangy young man makes the simple statement with a sincerity that banishes any hint of maudlin triteness.

For John found out the hard way, after what his family calls a freak accident.

It happened like this:

The night of Dec. 14 John — who has a photographic darkroom in the basement of his home at 215 Pine Street— was alone, watching television specials while waiting for negatives to dry.

During a station break he turned downstairs to check the darkroom processing. Near the bottom, his head snared a stair. In his fall, his arms flailed, one of them striking a high-raised shelf, dislodging a can of highly corrosive cleaning crystals — a commercial product used for unclogging domestic drainpipes.

The crystals spilled onto his face, around his eyes and began burning. He found he couldn't open his eyes. He didn't know what exactly had hit him.

Presence of mind intervened — and stayed with him. For example, he didn't pour water on his face because — although he didn't exactly know what the scalding crystals were— he "was afraid water might activate it" and compound the mishap.

He felt his way upstairs, into the kitchen and toward a wall phone. He remembered the 0-for-operator slot was marked by a small, metal stop.

"I found that and I phoned the operator," recalls John, admitting by which time he was "in agony".

"I told her this was an emergency, that I couldn't see, could she get a cab up to the house for the hospital."

He felt his way toward the front door — enroute knocking over a small occasional table, a chair — and a bird cage with the family's budgie. The cage is on a long pole, since the Balyz family also has a cat.

John felt his way back to the kitchen, and put the cage on the table, out of the cat's reach, making for the front door again.

Already outside he could hear a motor running.

When he opened the door "the cab driver told me not to move. He came up and put me in the cab and rushed me to the hospital. When we got there [to Belleville General] he told me to wait and he'd get a wheel chair."

Inside the cabbie hurriedly told hospital staff what was afoot. By the time he'd wheeled John inside "the nurses were ready for me".

John's presence of mind helped too.

When the blinding mishap occurred he had felt around and found the can which had spilled its contents on him. Even then, he figured, in this way the hospital emergency's staff would have an easier task since they could immediately identify what chemicals they had to deal with.

They began pouring water on his face "trying to get me to open my eyes".

Then a doctor arrived and took over. More treatment, a calming hypodermic administered and John was in a wheelchair up to his hospital bed.

In all, he figured, from when he called the Bell Canada operator, maybe about 10 minutes had elapsed.

A doctor told him how hateful his escape had been.

In the brief time medical attention was under way, the chemical had started burning his eyelashes.

Had it reached the pupils, there might have been more dire consequences.

A doctor told him "if there had been any longer waiting period, I would have been blind. It would definitely have got into my eyes," says John.

An eye specialist took over the vigil since there was still uncertainty over his sight, said John. But, eventually after a couple of days threatened, his sight "started becoming clearer".

While waiting out the time, he wished he'd taken up the guitar earlier—in life. He'd heard of sightless folk who'd made a living that way. His ambition had been to be a professional photographer — a calling to which sight is as crucial as fuel to a motor.

Now John can use his eyes — with restrictions. He wears dark glasses for the moment to cut down strain, can read only briefly at a stretch — and must leave photography alone, for the moment. He must see the specialist again.

But he feels "pretty lucky". "Everybody was right there. Usually at this time of year, (Christmas) it's awfully hard — sometimes to get instant response from people like telephone operators and taxi drivers.

"They responded. They all did. There was no waiting at the hospital. Everyone really helped."

His father, Bernie Balyz, a city post office worker adds:

"All I've got to say is that I'm grateful and thankful to all the unknown people that helped that night.

"You hear people talk, but there's a lot of people in this world that have a true heart for helping other people."

John was home with time to spare for Christmas preparations.

And with a family reunion to see and enjoy at Napanee, they gave him a bonus Christmas present — a guitar.

Legion News Roundup

Branch 99 of the Royal Canadian Legion in Belleville continues to enjoy its growing pains. As each new membership rolls around, the branch draws closer and closer into the life of the community.

At our last executive meeting, the Red Cross was unanimously accommodated with space for a blood donor clinic January 4. Branch 99 is proud to take its turn in this worthy cause, a contribution never possible in our former premises. The ANAF, Kiwanis Club and Club Caesars have for some years made their facilities available for such activities.

Another request granted at the same meeting was to provide the local Navy cadet band with a suitable place to practise. It was given use of the third floor on Monday evenings provided there is no conflict with functions.

The branch also took out membership on the local Hotel-Motel Convention Committee, a good step in the community's well-being.

All the New Year's Eve tickets for this year were sold much sooner than had been thought possible. Attending the party will be 150 couples and, as usual, a super evening is anticipated.

The Ladies Auxiliary was extremely busy with a variety of pre-Christmas parties. It is very happy to help in this way to make Belleville a better place to call home. The ladies are also enjoying Wednesday sports evenings when they take part in darts, shuffleboard and other activities.

The back portion of the old hall, known as the Synagogue, is no more. As a result, several much - needed parking spaces have been added. Members and friends are asked to co-operate as much as possible to make the parking lot useful. Buy economy cars. But most important, do not double-park so that the other fellow can't get out. Walk a little — he may do it to you the next time.

Another addition to our new premises is a three-yard gar-

Tree Planting Encouraged

The Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority has moved to encourage reforestation by private owners on land that is not suitable for agriculture.

Under the program which will apply to the 1972 planting season a subsidy of $8 per 1,000 trees will be paid to a maximum of 5,000 to any one land owner in a given year.

Trees cost appproximately $10 per 1,000, but it is the feeling that some of the planting costs should be borne by the land owner.

Private landowners wishing to apply for this assistance from the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority are asked to write to the authority office, Box 402, Trenton and an application form will be forwarded. If more convenient, a phone call to 613-392-6527 will be sufficient to have the application form mailed out.

chairman Gerry Downs and Legion member Jim McKeever. Jim is on the educational staff at Warkworth Penitentiary. Together, they arranged a euchre party with inmates, sending 12 men (three teams) from here. This type of event is a break for the boys who are unfortunate in being on the inside.

Ted Griffen is currently in Kingston General Hospital for an operation on his other ear. Good luck, Ted. We will have to be careful what we say now.

Branch 99 would like at this time to wish all its friends and relatives Seasons Greetings and a Happy New Year. It also expresses its gratitude to Mayor Scott and the city of Belleville for the manner in which the city has supported the branch since it moved into its new premises.

Champagne and Breathalyzers Ready For Canadians Celebrating New Year's

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New Year's Eve, Canadian style: House parties, hotel parties, paper hats, tin whistles, spiced punch, champagne at midnight, and two breathalyzer machines in every police station.

The streets of just about every Canadian community will be bristling Friday night with police cars on the prowl for tipsy drivers.

And the balloon that a drinking driver is given by police to blow, up hasn't got anything to do with partying—it registers blood alcohol content. If the little needle on the machine bobs above .08 per cent, the driver may be singing Auld Lang Syne to his driver's licence for a while and a couple of hundred dollars in fines and court costs.

However, while New Year's Eve may be a bad business for police departments, it represents big business for hotels and motels.

A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows that the traditional dinner-and-dance topped off with champagne at midnight still is the strong favorite for ringing in the New Year.

But for those who shun the hospitality of the hotelier, there are some alternatives.

In Toronto, for instance, residents are invited to Nathan Phillips Civic Square where the 48th Highlanders' band will play until midnight. Hot coffee will be provided by the city.

Windsor, Ont., clubs will attract visitors from the United States. Ninety per cent of the city's business comes from neighboring Detroit.

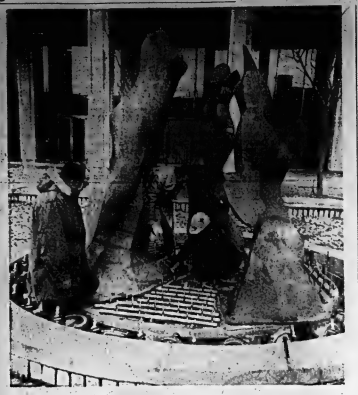
In Ottawa, police have noted a trend toward private house parties, but the city still offers a variety of downtown celebrations, including a dance and buffet at $13.50 a person in the National Arts Centre.

Lobster dinners at hotel banquet rooms, dancing, "name" entertainers and noise-makers will be the standard celebration fare in many Atlantic provinces centres.

Residents of Prince Edward Island, however, still appear to prefer house parties to commercial festivities.

Private parties also figure heavily in the western centres of Edmonton and Winnipeg, although large hotels there offer New Year's entertainment at prices ranging between $10 and $20 a couple.

Several Montreal hotels report heavy advance bookings. One offers festivities with a Mexican flavor with a trip to Mexico as a door prize.



Some Vancouver hotels offer gourmet meals, champagne and dancing for as much as $50 a couple.

Other establishments advertise rock music, but no food, for between $12 and $20 a couple.

Hotels in most Canadian cities will reserve rooms for those who celebrate on the premises, so those driving home after o[illegible] zealously toasting the New Year. Some establishments offer reduced rates.

In many cities, police say traffic patrols on the last day of the year will be more vigilant.

A police spokesman in Toronto added that all police stations "will have an ample supply of breathanalysis machines for anyone we pick up."

Heated in Winter

Sculptor Gerald Gladstone (centre) leans from behind a statue as he supervises the installation of his $65,000 three-figure bronze sculpture outside a government office complex in Toronto. Called the Three Graces, it is the focal point of a water sculpture of fountains and lights. The statues will be cascaded with a three-foot high spray tast will be heated in winter.

Cleaned Thames Once Again Attracting Birds and Fish

LONDON (AP) — The Thames once again is attracting birds—tens of thousands of them, flocking to river banks cleansed by a thorough antipollution job.

Ornithologists report sighting species of duck and wading bird on the Thames' upper estuary where they haven't appeared for generations.

Coupled with this is the reappearance of carp in the Thames, and the hope that cod fish of yesteryear will once again swim along the river into the heart of London.

"The whole estuary is coming to life again," says Peter Groom of the London Natural History Society. "The Port of London Authority's pollution efforts have made a fantastic difference."

Thousands of duck and wading birds, migrating from Russian and Northern European breeding grounds, now are wintering on the Thames, where only a few years ago there were few birds, aside from swans and gulls feeding on sewage.

Heavy fines have cut down oil spillage into the Thames, while the closure of the Surrey Docks improved conditions.

Sheldduck and pintail ducks—for 70 years a rarity in London—are now counted in the hundreds, says Groom. The heron has returned to Regent's Park, due to the Surrey Dock closure, and skylarks have been successfully in inner London for the first time in memory.

Lindsay May Seek Presidency

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York was expected to join the 1972 presidential race today with an announcement in Miami that he will enter the March 14 Florida primary election.

The following day he is expected to make a similar announcement in Wisconsin, scene of another key primary April 4.

Mayoral aides all but confirmed Lindsay's intentions as their completed plans for a two-day swing through the two states.

Wisconsin and Florida are among several states holding primary elections in advance of the 1972 presidential election. These primaries help choose candidates to represent the parties in the general election.

The 50-year-old mayor, who switched from the Republican to the Democratic party early in August, will be accompanied by family members.

Lindsay had been expected to make his declaration about mid-January. By advancing the date, he has stolen a march on the leading Democrat, Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine, scheduled to announce his candidacy Jan. 4.

Bertrand's condition was not stationary and the former premier was still very sick.

The 56-year-old United Quebec member for Missisquoi in the Quebec national assembly entered the institute Dec. 14 after what Dr. David termed "a very serious and complicated heart attack."

"I can't say what his condition will be tomorrow or the day after," Dr. David said earlier. "He requires constant care and observation."

It is a question of weeks rather than days before Mr. Bertrand will be able to leave the institute, he said.

Complications after the heart attack caused some fears but Mr. Bertrand at no time lost consciousness or reached a critical stage.

Family members of the family and exceptionally close friends have been allowed to visit Mr. Bertrand since he entered the institute.

It was Mr. Bertrand's second heart attack in three years. The first was in September, 1968, just after he took over as acting premier following the death of Daniel Johnson.

Since then he has undergone several examinations for heart pains, including one Dec. 9 at Laval Hospital in Quebec City.

Calm Harlem Man Hijacks Air Canada Jet for Cuban Flight

TORONTO (CP) — The "rational and rather calm" man who hijacked an Air Canada DC-8 jetliner and diverted it to Cuba Sunday may be charged with kidnapping.

"That's the charge we're considering," H. W. Metcalf, Crown attorney of Peel County, said Monday night.

He said after a charge was laid, the next step would be to consult the department of external affairs to see if extradition of the suspect from Cuba was possible.

An external affairs spokesman said earlier that Canada does have an extradition treaty with Cuba but "it is an old one and unfortunately air piracy is not included in it."

Mr. Metcalf, in whose jurisdiction the hijacking occurred, said Monday night he would consult with external affairs on the possibility of extradicing the suspect on kidnaping or on some other charge.

Police in Mississauga, who have jurisdiction in cases involving the airport, said they were told by the external affairs department the hijacker carried a passport bearing the name of Patrick Critton, 24, a native of New York City's Harlem district.

The man was described by the crew as well-dressed with close-cropped hair but the passport photo showed a man with big sideburns and an Afro-style haircut.

The jetliner and its crew of six arrived here safely from Cuba early Monday, a little more than 10 hours after the drama began on Flight 332 carrying 83 passengers on an 850-mile flight from Montreal to Dorval.

Shortly before the plane was due to land, the hijacker brandished a gun and a grenade in the galley and produced a note demanding he be flown to Cuba.

The other 82 passengers left the medium-range aircraft when it landed, unaware that the plane had been commandeered. It taxied normally to a terminal ramp where the hijacker was also unloaded before refuelling for the 1,550-mile flight to Havana.

Before he left the aircraft and was led away by Cuban officials, the hijacker left the crew members with a forwarding address.

He said he could write to Hijacker House in Havana and he would get the letter," stewardess Kathy Gunn Snell, 21, of Woodstock, Ont., said after the plane's return.

He did not elaborate on Hijacker House.

Helga Weteringa, 28, another stewardess, described the hijacker as "very, very rational and rather calm."

The man also told a stewardess he was going to Cuba because he participated in a New York City bank robbery in which a teller had been shot.

However, a police spokesman in New York City said there was no warrant outstanding for anyone by the name of Patrick Critton.

He said the suspect's statement was being investigated by both the New York City police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The hijacker made his move about 7:35 p.m. Sunday, when he handed a note to stewardess Jean Keldson, 21, of Toronto.

The note read:

"Think. We have fragmentation grenades and a .38 calibre revolver. Take me to the captain, we are going to Havana. This is no joke."

Although the note referred to "we" only one person was involved.

It was passed in the galley of the aircraft, ahead of the first-class section, and stewardesses said passengers were unaware of what was happening.

Captain Donald Glendenning of Winnipeg, an Air Canada pilot for 18 of his 43 years, said the hijacker made no verbal threat when he entered the cockpit "but with a gun looking at you that's threat enough."

The aircraft left Toronto at 8:45 p.m. EST Sunday for the three-hour-and-16-minute trip to Havana. It landed at 11:52 p.m. and left two hours and 40 minutes later when the hijacker was led away by Cuban authorities.

Charter Flights Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto couple whose experience with Christmas-season charter flights cost them extra money and time say the federal government should investigate the charter business.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mitchell had to pay $486 to get home from London Dec. 26 when their Lloyd International Airways Ltd. charter was cancelled. They took an Air Canada flight.

About 160 other persons, left stranded Sunday in Toronto, at border crossings, in Niagara Falls, N.Y., and in New York City because another charter flight involving a Lloyd aircraft did not show up, were told Monday the agents could not get them aboard another Lloyd charter until Thursday.

The Mitchells said they also encountered difficulties in getting to London. Their London-bound flight was arranged by a Toronto travel consultant.

The couple said they were not told their travel would be on charter flights.

They were to board a plane at Niagara Falls, N.Y., at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Mrs. Mitchell said. When they arrived, the airport was not there. Passengers were told it could not land because of high winds.

She said about 200 passengers were taken to Buffalo, N.Y., by bus where "we had to stay aboard the bus for three hours."

At Buffalo, Mrs. Mitchell said, they boarded the charter plane.

Mr. Mitchell spent Monday night returning by bus to Niagara Falls, N.Y., to get his car from the airport.

Toronto Policemen Limit Work

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto's 3,500 policemen are not worried about possible punitive action as a result of their decision to refuse to ticket motorists for minor traffic infractions, Sydney Brydell, president of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Association said Monday.

"Their only concern is whether to stay on the job or walk off," he said.

The policemen voted last week to slow down in their duties, especially those producing revenue, in protest of their 1971 contract.

A compulsory arbitration board award, handed down last week, would give them a pay increase of 8.27 per cent, making a first-class constable's pay $10,752 a year.

Increased Number of VON Visits

At the December meeting of the Board of Directors of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Miss Valerie Thomas, nurse-in-charge of the Quinte Branch, reported to those present a continued increase of visits during the previous month. There were 561 visits made by the Branch during November—which is an increase of 67 over the previous month. The meeting was held at the Belleville General Hospital, with J. Briscoe as chairman in the absence of board chairman Grant Harrison.

It was reported that there are additions to the relief nursing staff during the past month in the persons of Mrs. Valerie Thomas and Mrs. Janet Eames.

Another report told of visits to the VON by first aid orders and your students from the Edith Cavell School of Nursing.

At grade 11 student from the Quinte Secondary School RNA program was also present.

Those visits are intended to familiarize the students with the work done by the VON.

The full time nurses of the Branch attended a Chr Conference in Port Hope sponsored by the Peterborough VON. The motor mechanics instructor discussed spot safety checks of cars and also provided a number of hints to remember when confronted with winter driving.

The Board received notification of the amount of funds that the United Community Services has allocated for VON for 1972. Although it is not as much as requested the Board was pleased with the generosity of the United Community Services. Constructive plans re salaries and fee for service can now be considered.

The first meeting of the Board for 1972 will be held in January at Belleville General Hospital.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

1st BELLEVILLE LAND RANGERS

The 1st Belleville Land Rangers held their first meeting at their home in Cottage near Plainfield. At these meetings the business for the year was discussed. They also went on hikes while they were out at the cottage.

A Ranger workshop was held on Oct. 2 for Rangers of the surrounding areas. They were given talks on backpacking, orienteering and cooking.

The Belleville Rangers remained at the cottage overnight and bicycled back to Belleville the next day.

The biggest accomplishment for the fall was the hikeathon, 30 miles around the bay, which earned nearly $200. The distance was covered by ten girls and one leader.

The Rangers served refreshments for the CNIB at one of their meetings and at a coffee party for the Division.

On December 4 and 5 they camped at the Brownie house at Camp Waupoos.

MR. AND MRS. DALE CHARLES RYAN

Ryan — Robb

Christ Church was the setting for the December 4 marriage of Judy Lynn Robb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Robb, and of dale Charles Ryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ryan. Canon R. B. DeBlois Wright solemnized the marriage while John Utley, organist, and Robert Dafoe, soloist provided music for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white silk velvet styled along Juliet lines with bell sleeves adorned with a trimming of white beading. A lace head band composed of miniature stephanotis and lily of the valley held in place a three-tiered chapel-length veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Bonnie Robb, the bride's sister, wore a floor-length gown of green velvet, accented with a white fur cape and muff trimmed with red rosebuds. Her headpiece was a green velvet bow.

The bridesmaids Mrs. Pat Bean and Miss Patti Robb, youngest sister of the bride, were dressed similarly to the maid of honor in red velvet with matching capes and muffs. Miss Kimberly Bean, the bride's niece who was flower girl, was dressed identically to the maid of honor.

The best man was Dennis Ryan, the bridegroom's brother while the ushers were Dan Ryan, the bridegroom's cousin, and Gary Ryan, brother of the bridegroom. The ring bearer was Mark Ryan, another brother of the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the Tartan Lounge. A N A P Hall. Greeting guests was the bride's mother in a floor-length gown of royal purple with gold accessories and a corsage of bridal roses and lily of the valley tinted to match her gown.

Assisting her, the bridegroom's mother wore a pink lace dress with accordion pleated sleeves, black patent accessories and a corsage of pink bridal roses.

For the wedding trip to points West, the bride chose a three-piece purple pant suit with silver accessories and a corsage of bridal roses tinted to match.

Upon return the couple will live in Cayuga, Ontario.

To Wear--Or Not to Wear A Bra

Dear Readers: I didn't realize how many people had such intense feelings about the bra. A recent column berating the braless female who shamelessly bounced and flopped and wiggled in public touched off a nationwide debate (to the consternation of the salespeople) created a deluge of mail. The braless women demanded that they be heard. So let's listen—if they can lower their voices to a scream.

A reader from Richmond wrote: Since that creep has described us as cow-like creatures, it's only fair that you print the udder side. In your day, grandmother was queen. Today, they are out. Thank the Lord we are no longer ashamed of our bodies. Women have been liberated and we want the world to know—Born Free

Fresno San Juan: Wake up. The dolls who are wearing bras wear them for only one reason. they are padded with foam rubber. I say, if you've really got it, flaunt it.—One Who's Got It

Texas Waxlegs: I am one of those idiots who had a beautiful full bosom when I was 17. That was three years ago and now I look like I've nursed six kids. My breast muscles couldn't support the weight. Sign me—Saggy And Sorry

Fresno Vic: Did it ever occur to you that not every girl who goes without a bra is trying to look sexy? Some of us don't need a bra. Not everyone is built like Raquel Welch and Sophia Loren.—Relaxed

From Eau Claire: If a woman is normal she has breasts. If a man is normal he knows it. What's all the static about?—Hanging Loose In Wisconsin

From Chicago: The question "to bra or not to bra" can be easily answered if the undecided woman will apply this test to herself. Take an ordinary woodcase pencil. Put it under one breast. If the pencil stays there, you should wear a bra. If it falls, you can go braless.—One Who Tried

From Denver: My husband does not like me to wear a bra. He says it makes me look too sexy. The natural look is less provocative, he claims. The bra is out. Sweaters are out. So play that on your violin, granny.—Unfettered

Dear Ann and All: Thanks for writing. I get the message. For those of you who want to let it all hang out—be my guest. I still say 95 per cent of the women look better with a bra than without one. Most of us ought to wear one for two very obvious reasons.

Dear Ann Landers: My problem has become so haunting that it's beginning to be an obsession. Please help me.

My husband and I have been married 16 years and we have no children. I work with him in our business. Last December I came home a day early from a few day's visit with my sister. I caught my husband in bed with a friend of mine. I was shocked and horrified. He begged me to forgive him and I said I'd try. Well, I was so hurt I decided to get even by seducing the woman's husband—which I had no trouble doing. I was ashamed of myself immediately and told him we couldn't see each other anymore. Now he won't let me alone. I am filled with guilt and wonder if I should confess to my husband. I hate myself for getting into this mess. How do I get out of it?—Dessa

Dear Dessa: You need to talk to somebody—but not your husband. I suggest a clergyman or a professional counsellor. Those who believe such confessions are good for the soul learn to their sorrow that they can be very bad for a marriage.

Not Enough Told About Helpful Services

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I think the little Public Relations Hand book for Social Workers should prove most enlightening.

You write well, Doris and I trust the Handbook may be put into practice on a wide scale. Such a dearth of data exists pertaining to what social workers actually do! — Jean McTaggart, Retired Social Worker.

Dear Jean: We used to work together at spreading the glad news of social work, didn't we? When we received our year-round public relations committee, it started me on a road which I have continued to pursue — that of interesting social work.

Not nearly enough of us know about the wonderful help professional social workers are able to give to people who are trying to make something of their lives, and trying to get along with the people they are about.

Readers: Many requests permeate me that this little handbook will be handy for P.R. chairmen of many other service organizations besides social work. Twenty cents and a large stamped, envelope and you can have its timand ideas to help you.)

Dear Doris: I am retired and I want to travel. Do you suppose I could find someone with a camper or trailer and share expenses?

My second choice would be to travel as a companion to an elderly or handicapped person with money, who could pay my expenses and a small salary.

I know my sons will repay me later but I must help support them now in their final push for their degrees and so I don't want to put off travelling while I am still strong and healthy. — Foot-Loose

Dear Foot-Loose: If you have a yen to travel, go for it! I'd suggest your second choice as being most likely. Clubs for seniors in your area might come up with a member or two who would like your companionship and care to share trip — for a start. This way you could get acquainted with your prospects and find out whether you can enjoy each other for days and nights and weeks at a time.

Dear Doris: Since the day we got married we have been living in the same yard with my husband's folks. His mother started running our life from that day and when our child was born she took over again.

If I didn't do like she instructed then my husband would get after me and we would fight. He always sides with his mother because he has lived with her all his life and figures she knows everything.

Our marriage is breaking up because of our fights over his family. My husband needs a mother, not a wife. — Fed Up

Dear Fed Up: Most of the men in the world lived with their mothers during their early years; and yet they managed to mature and detach themselves and eventually make their own decisions. That is what growing up is supposed to be about.

The physical set-up in your parental backyard doesn't help much. If you really mean that breaking up your home, try, first, getting it moved to a spot too many miles away for constant interference from you-know-who.

Then stand up to all comers, without shutting your husband out of your child-rearing calculations. Share your problems and suggest that he consider you the other half of his homemaking aspirations.

Prior to her recent marriage Mrs. Dale Ryan (nee Judy Robb) was honored at a miscellaneous shower held by Mrs. Walter Buskard, great aunt of the bride, with Mrs. Robert Brownlee as co-hostess. The bride was presented with a gift from the staff of North Walpole Elementary School, where she teaches.

Village Couple Honored On 25th Anniversary

FRANKFORD — The Dr. McMullen recreation centre was appropriately decorated for the 25th wedding anniversary of Audrey and Phillip (Buster) Turner. About 120 friends and relatives attended and brought their good wishes.

Mrs. Turner was the former Audrey Grills, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Grills of RR 5 Campbellford. Mr. Turner is the son of Mrs. Maggie Turner of Bayside Nursing Home.

The couple were married December 4, 1946, at the home of the bride's parents by the Rev. P. J. Lambert of the Seymour Charge. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Grills who were present with them and their family.

They have six children, Mrs. Robert Clendenin (Bonnie) of Burlington; Mrs. David Lloyd (Margaret) of Wooler; Laurie, Jacqueline, Tammy and Kevin at home.

The couple received many lovely gifts in silver and a card table and chairs from their family and a gift of money.

Everyone enjoyed an evening of dancing and a buffet lunch was served at midnight.

Guests were present from Niagara Falls, Burlington, Hamilton, Peterborough, Cobourg, Warkworth, Marmora, Stirling, Campbellford and Trenton.

Numerous Suggestions for Party Dinners, Buffet Suppers

By ALICE DENHOFF

From what we hear, it would seem that the week between Christmas and New Year will be quite a patrified time, with dinner and buffet suppers planned.

A good dinner built around a superbly prepared turkey and bright with some special "trimmings" is a sure-fire pleaser. Nice it is, that the especially fine gobbler is in good supply and reasonably priced. The bright hostess remembers that nearly everyone is calorie-conscious these days and proceeds accordingly. She knows that many, faced with rich fare, spend the holidays making the unhappy choice of going hungry or abandoning their diets. What a treat for a guest whose thoughtful hostess has provided a bountiful spread of low-cholesterol and low-calorie dishes!

So, with the bird, a platter of delicious hot vegetables, a compote of frozen fruit and cottage cheese salad, a tray of unusual breads and rolls (for the nondieters), aged food and sherbet complete the meal.

A good trick, one in favor with the best professional chefs, is to brush the turkey with pure, imported olive oil to give it rich color and flavor. A dribble of olive oil added to the dressing, with the moistening called for, is another good suggestion.

Good to know that olive oil is made without additives, is free of cholesterol, low in saturated fat and high in unsaturates, since we are all so health-conscious these days. So, with the bird prepared, let's move on to a salad and dressing that is low in calories and flavorsome:

FROZEN FRUIT AND COTTAGE CHEESE SALAD

2 cups (1 pound) skim milk cottage cheese
1-3 cup non-fat dry milk crystals
1-3 cup ice water
Juice of ½ lemon
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup undrained crushed pineapple
1 cup diced peaches
1 cup sliced strawberries
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Lemony dressing (recipe below)

Mash cottage cheese until smooth. Combine non-fat dry milk and water; beat with an electric mixer until soft peaks form. Add lemon juice; beat again until thick. Fold whipped milk into cheese. Fold in sugar, fruits and vanilla. Pour into mold or into two ice cube trays lined with foil and freeze until hard. Keep covered until ready to serve. Serve with:

LEMONY DRESSING

1-3 cup imported olive oil
Juice of 2 lemons
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon paprika

Combine all ingredients in a tight-fitting jar; shake until smooth. Cut salad into one-inch-square cubes; place on desired greens. Spoon dressing over all. P.S. Lining the trays with foil makes it easy always to lift out contents. Serves six-eight. Now for some elegant vegetable ideas, such as this one for:

SHERRIED BEETS

2 tablespoons olive oil
1 large onion, sliced
2 cups canned sliced beets
¼ cup sherry

Heat olive oil in skillet; add onion and saute five minutes. Add beets and sherry. Heat until bubbly. Nice garnished with finely chopped parsley. Serves four with gussied up, party beets. Same thing goes for:

BROCCOLI AMANDINE

1 bunch broccoli, cleaned and trimmed
3 tablespoons olive oil
1 clove garlic, chopped
½ cup slivered almonds

Cut broccoli into small flowerets. Heat olive oil; saute garlic and almonds until golden. Remove almonds and add broccoli spears. Braise slowly until broccoli is tender but still crisp. Pour into serving bowl and top with almonds. Season to taste with salt, if desired.

Try this carrot special:

PARSLEY ORANGE CARROTS

2 tablespoons olive oil
1 bunch carrots
1 can (11 ounces) mandarin oranges, drained
¼ cup chopped parsley

Heat olive oil in skillet. Saute carrots that have been scraped and sliced thin. Cook slowly until carrots are crisp-tender. Stir in mandarin oranges and parsley. Season to taste with salt. Another vegetable idea is:

BLACK-EYED PEAS

1 package (10 ounces) frozen black-eyed peas
1 large onion, chopped
3 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons catsup
½ cup crumbled crisp bacon
½ cup water
Salt and red pepper to taste
Saute onion in olive oil until golden brown. Add next four ingredients. Cover and simmer 20 minutes or until peas are tender. Season to taste.

Cheese Dearer Than Butter

CLINTON, Ont. (CP) — The chairman of the Huron County Cream Committee said Monday that Canada's butter production was down 14 per cent in the first half of 1971 and the shortage will have to be made up with imports from the United States.

Lloyd Stewart also told a meeting of Dairy industry officials and politicians in this community 35 miles northwest of Stratford that the wholesale price of cheese has increased to 78 cents a pound from 35 cents in the last 12 years while producers of butterfat have received an increase of four cents a pound.

"This is the first time in history that cheese has been dearer than butter," Mr. Stewart said in a brief. "Anything for the farmer is too little and too late."

Jack Matthison, a representative of the Ontario Cream Producers' Marketing Board, said Canada faces a serious shortage of butter this year as a result of quotas on cream production and fines.

The farm industry representatives asked members of provincial and federal parliaments to work for changes in quota systems and financial aid for family farms.

Ontario Hog Farms Face Loss

CLINTON, Ont. (CP) — Ontario hog producers will lose $15 million of a $30-million loss facing Canadian pork producers for 1971, a result of federal policy on Western grain, the chairman of the Huron County Pork Producers Association said Monday.

James McGregor told a meeting of Huron County politicians and farmers that "producers in Western Canada are getting cheap feed grain because of the surplus and the market competition isn't fair to our area."

He said a surplus of pork has pushed prices down and the federal policy has not alleviated the Western grain surplus.

Mr. McGregor said successful hog producer need large amounts of capital, rather than efficiency or good management, and Ontario is the only pork-producing province not receiving financial assistance from government.

"The grain situation in the West is even overflowing into beef," he said. "There's no way hog producers in our area can compete with other provinces where big piles of feed grain are available cheaper."

Blood Refused Child Is Made Ward of CAS

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP) — A two-month-old girl, declared a ward of the Children's Aid Society because her parents refused to allow a blood transfusion, was in critical condition Monday night at York County Hospital.

Melanie Aldred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Aldred of nearby Tarzwell, was admitted to hospital Sunday suffering from a type of pneumonia.

Her parents refused to sign a document authorizing the transfusion because they are Jehovah's Witnesses. When the child's condition deteriorated, Juvenile Court Judge Joseph Sweeney was called to the hospital where he held a hearing and declared the child a ward of the society.

Freezing Rain Slows Traffic

TORONTO (CP) — Freezing rain that turned southern Ontario streets into skating rinks ended Monday night, but highway officials warn that dangerous driving conditions will continue east of Toronto and in Northern Ontario.

Major highways were sanded during the night, and temperatures rising slightly above freezing eased dangerous conditions on such major arteries as the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway and Highway 400 north to Barrie.

But freezing rain mixed with snow is expected in the area east to the Quebec border and north into the Ottawa Valley, where roads already are slushy and slippery.

Light to heavy snow in the north makes driving conditions poor, especially in the Sault Ste. Marie area where there is heavy drifting. Northern highways generally are snow-covered or centre-bare and slippery.

Quebec highways west from Montreal to the Ontario border are slippery and dangerous, police warned Monday night. Sanders are busy on major highways but secondary roads have received little attention.

Dozens of minor accidents were reported in both Ontario and Quebec Monday as freezing rain caught motorists retroiling from Christmas holidays or driving into downtown set-ups for Boxing Day sales.

Toronto International Airport runways, shut down for a time Monday, were reopened after sending but many flights were delayed.

There were at least 30 accidents reported on Highway 401 within Metropolitan Toronto, none serious, while traffic on the freeway east of the city crawled along at 20 miles an hour.

Dozens of cars were stopped on the shoulders of Highway 400 as drivers scraped ice from windshields or tried to wait out a dense fog that cut visibility to 40 feet.

Although temperatures in the south should rise above freezing in most areas today, secondary roads are likely to remain dangerous with light snow today followed by cold, clear weather Wednesday, adding rutting to slippery conditions.

North Dislikes Big Dump

SUDBURY (CP) — A proposal to set up a provincial garbage dump in Northern Ontario has been criticized by provincial and municipal politicians from the Sudbury area.

"This goes along with what I've always believed southern Ontario thought of us," said Mayor John Valiquette of Sturgeon Falls. "I would certainly be opposed to it."

Flegel Laughren, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Nickel Belt, said his reaction to the suggestion of the dump is "one of repulsion."

Both Metropolitan Toronto and provincial officials, faced with rising garbage volumes and fewer places to put it, are looking at the proposal but not talking freely about it.

The dump, at least 10,000 acres in size, would be connected to municipalities across the province by shuttling refuse trains.

"I wouldn't want to disclose anything that might upset the plans," Metro Chairman Albert Campbell said last week.

But a provincial spokesman confirmed that the proposal has reached the "intensive discussion" stage.

Elie Martel, NDP member of the legislature for Sudbury East, said Mr. Campbell "can keep his garbage."

Mayor Joe Fabbro of Sudbury said he would accept the idea if the garbage was recycled before being brought north.

However, he said he would "barricade the rail lines" if they tried to bring in raw garbage.

Reeve Gilles Pelland of Rayside Township said the cost of shipping by train would be "way out of line."

He said he would join with other mayors and reeves to fight any attempt to set up such a dump in the area.

Sailors Released By Cuba

MIAMI (AP) — Radio Havana said Monday that crew members of two seized Panamanian freighters, "who were not implicated" in anti-government activities, were allowed to leave Cuba with a three-man Panamanian government delegation.

In a broadcast monitored in Miami, the Cuban radio said some crew members of the ships Layla Express and Johnny Express left after a farewell ceremony at Havana's Jose Marti Airport, but the broadcast did not say how many crew members departed and how many were detained.

Christmas Weekend Accidents Kill 69

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Traffic accidents have accounted for 26 of 69 accidental deaths in Canada so far during the Christmas holiday weekend, exceeding the Canada Safety Council's prediction of 45 road deaths for the period.

The count began at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight tonight, local times.

Monday's death toll was four: two in traffic and two in fires.

A survey by The Canadian Press showed that in addition to the 26 road deaths, five persons died in fires, four in snowmobile accidents, one by asphyxiation, one by freezing, one by collapsing in heavy snow and one in a shooting accident.

A total of 28 died in Ontario, all in traffic.

In Quebec, 23 persons died accidentally, 19 in traffic, three in snowmobile mishaps and the one who froze.

Newfoundland had four deaths, three in fires and one in traffic.

Manitoba's count was three, including a road death, a fire death and a man who collapsed in heavy snow.

Saskatchewan had two traffic victims and a fire death.

In Alberta, two died in traffic and one in a shooting accident.

British Columbia's fatalities were in traffic.

In Nova Scotia, one person died in traffic and another by asphyxiation.

The only New Brunswick fatality was a snowmobile mishap.

Prince Edward Island was fatality-free.

The 56 traffic deaths, plus 55 during the previous week, bring to at least 3,046 the number of persons killed on Canadian highways since Jan. 1.

The survey does not include industrial deaths, slayings or known suicides.

Commons Reconvenes After Christmas Holiday

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons reconvened today after a four-day Christmas recess to make another attempt to pass legislation creating national marketing boards for farm products.

The government insists this measure, before the House on its agriculture committee for months, be passed in all stages before the Commons adjourns until Feb. 14.

Some Western Conservatives have been vocally insistent that the farm bill exclude cattle. Most Liberals and the NDP feel cattle should be included.

There were frantic private negotiations among the parties last week to try to reach a compromise. Agreement was believed close but did not quite come off.

As a result, all proposed agreements are cancelled and the negotiations started again from scratch today with a meeting of the four floor leaders planned before the Commons convened at 2 p.m.

There is a possibility the Commons will sit New Year's Eve in an effort to pass the farm bill, the only bill the government wants to see through before adjournment.

Mosquitoes Go Despite Bunny

OTTAWA (CP) — Still without approval from the International Ice Hockey Federation, a team of Ottawa youngsters started off on a trek to Finland Monday and a series of games they hope will not be cancelled.

Members of the Ottawa Road Voyageurs, a mosquito league team of youngsters nine and 10 years old, had an extra thrill of excitement added to their Christmas vacation when plans were made for the trip to Finland and four exhibition games against Finnish players in the same age grouping.

A threat by John (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the IIHF, that Finland could lose the 1974 world championship if the Canadian youngsters were admitted then was reported here, threatening to put cold water on the club's plans.

Pete Belanger, an organizer of the trip, said he tried to telephone Ahearne Monday to learn whether any possible obstacles had been cleared away.

He was told to leave a message and his number, but still had not received a reply when it came time for the Ottawa youngsters to board the bus for Montreal and their flight to Helsinki.

"The Finns have said come ahead and that's what we're going to do," Belanger said. "Everything is on as far as we know."

The Voyageurs had trouble getting their trip cleared with the IIHF. They said Ahearne told them proper procedures had not been followed by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, a claim denied by CAHA officials here. Voyageur officials said Ahearne threatened cancellation of the 1974 world games in Finland if the Canadian youngsters were allowed to play.

Voyageurs are scheduled to play their first game in Helsinki Wednesday night.

The Canadian defence department told Voyageur officials that if the team's schedule is cancelled, the Ottawa youngsters could play against other Canadian children at the forces base in Lahr, West Germany. But Belanger said this could be difficult.

He didn't know whether air transport could be arranged. When Canadian defence officials were sounded out on the idea of ferrying the team on military aircraft, they told them there is only a skeleton ditty staff available during the Christmas season.

But organizers of the Finnish end have been working hard to get the games cleared, Belanger said, and Voyageurs had decided to forge ahead and take their chances.

'Clean' Hornets Impress Hosts

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Gak Hornets defeated AIK of Stockholm 3-2 Monday night in their opening game in the Absarve Cup hockey tournament.

John Nickerson, John Beechey and Sandy Trail scored for the Hornets, with Gunnar Lindqvist and Jan-Ove Kroon replying for the Stockholm squad.

The 18,000 fans who turned up expecting to see a rough game were treated instead to clean competition.

Gak made a fine start, denounced Nickerson's scoring after 16 seconds against AIK's goaltender Reuben Edqvqvist, who tends goal in the Swedish national team and toiled out with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

The referees penalized three Canadians during the first six minutes of the game, apparently in an attempt to avoid incidents.

AIK tied the score after a solo raid by defenceman Lindqvist but the Hornets regained the lead in the second period on Beechey's hard shot.

Teal .22, got the winner in the third period, scoring with what was later described by most Stockholm sportswriters as "the hardest shot this season in Stockholm."

Billy Harris, Canadian coach of Sweden's national team, expressed satisfaction with the play of his countrymen.

"They played real hockey," said the NHL veteran, entering the dressing room after the match to congratulate his compatriots.

Lapointe Sits Out

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens will be without the services of defenceman Guy Lapointe for the next 15 days as a result of an injury suffered in Saturday night's National Hockey League game against Pittsburgh Penguins. Dr. D. J. Kinnear said Lapointe had suffered a slight fracture of his cheek bone.

Quarry Camp Wants Rematch With Ali

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — A British boxing promoter said Monday he is trying to arrange a rematch in London between Jerry Quarry and Muhammad Ali, knockout victor Sunday over German heavyweight Jurgen Blin.

"Mickey Duff and I have contacted both parties and we are attempting to arrange the match for London in March," said Jarvis Astaire, the promoter.

Astaire said the purse for the proposed bout would be about $600,000.

"I have no intention of losing the kind of money that we lost on the Ali-Blin fight," Astaire said, adding that the Swiss promoters lost at least $250,000.

Ali earned $250,000, knocking out Blin in the seventh round. Blin, who is a contender for the European heavyweight title, got $45,000.

Strike Three!

Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., 28-year-old right-hander for the Chicago Cubs, is Canada's outstanding male athlete of 1971, only the second man ever to win the honor three times. Jenkins, who won in 1967 and 1969, ties the record of Maurice Richard. The poll is conducted by the Canadian Press among sport writers and broadcasters across the country.

Hull Back in Thick Of Goal-scoring Derby

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks appears to be blazing his way back into contention for the National Hockey League's goal-scoring crown—a title he has two seasons ago to centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins.

Hull, the powerful left winger who will be 33 next Monday, scored four goals in Chicago's two games last week to increase his total to 25—the 13th consecutive season he has reached that figure.

His current total leaves him with three fewer goals than Esposito's league-leading mark of 28, and one more than left wingers Vic Hadfield of New York Rangers and Richard Martin, Buffalo Sabres' prize rookie.

Two weeks ago Hull trailed Esposito by four goals. He now has scored at least one goal in seven games in a row and in nine of Chicago's last 10 contests.

During the seven-game stretch, Hull scored 10 goals and had 13 in the 10-game streak.

Hull led the NHL in goal scoring for a record four straight seasons from 1965 through 1968-69. He also was the leader in 1962 and 1961-62 and shared the honor with Boston's Bronco Horvath in 1959-60.

No player previous to Hull won more than five goal-scoring titles, and only the now-retired Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings and the late Charlie Conacher of Toronto Maple Leafs had won three in a row.

Esposito's passing of the 31-hit straight goal-scoring crown, having ended Hull's reign in 1939-70 with 43 goals while the Chicago playercounted 38, was down smashing Hull's 58 goal record—counted one season earlier—with a 76-goal splurge last season.

However, in the individual point parade, Esposito is threatening to turn the race into a one-man show.

He widened his lead over runner-up Jean Ratelle of New York to four points and now has 61, a total which is 16 more than third-place Hadfield.

BOBBY HULL

Rod Gilbert, right winger on the high-scoring New York line of Hadfield, Ratelle and Gilbert, is fourth with 34 points, while Boston defenceman Bobby Orr is fifth with 45.

Hull is sixth with 45 points, 17 fewer than Esposito, while Ratelle leads the league in assists with 36.

Chicago's goal-scoring pair of Gary Smith and Tony Esposito continued its league-leading pace and now has a combined average of 1.68 goals against.

Veteran Gump Worsley and Cesare Maniago of Minnesota North Stars have a combined goals-against average of 1.97 for second place in the goalie race.

Darn It, D'Arcy!

Kingston goalie D'Arcy Walters kicks out the scoring effort of Belleville Bobcat winger Dave Horwood during Sunday's Eastern Ontario Junior B battle. The Frontenac backstop consistently foiled the home team's attempts to help Kingston to a 4-4 tie with the third place Bobcats. Walters was tested 42 times during the course of the contest while his teammates could manage only 24 shots on the Belleville goal. The tie extended Belleville's unbeaten string to six games.

Juniors Change Name But Tune Still Same

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

Scrooge is alive and well and playing in the Kingston Frontenacs' goal. Actually, his name is D'Arcy Walters, but if you asked him what he thought of the Belleville Fairways scoring chances it's probably certain that he'd reply, "Bah, Humbug!"

Walters was the major factor in holding Belleville to a 4-4 tie in Sunday's Eastern Ontario Junior B bout at the Memorial Arena.

It was the first game for the Belleville B's under the banner of the Tender Bobcats. Manager Jim Matthews announced Sunday night that local barrister Robert Temple had assumed sponsorship of the team, which had been backed by a local golf course for the past season and a half.

Walters, in his third year of Junior B competition, turned aside 43 shots in goal for the Frontenacs while Bob Harrison, at the other end of the rink, was called upon for only 24 stops.

"This game should have been played Christmas, instead of the day after, the way we were giving things away out there," moaned Belleville coach Moe Hunter.

"Still, we didn't play that well, but came out with a tie so I can't complain too much."

Both defences were kept in their own half of the ice, accounting for the dearth of lies in the contest. The Bobcats failed to take many clears as far as hitting was concerned, while 'skitsy' icing bumps from the slick surface forwards who were sending two men deep into the offensive zone.

It was much the same story at the other end of the rink as Belleville pressed the Frontenac defence into making costly mistakes.

The most glaring error by the visitors occurred when an attempted clearing pass was laid on the stick of Brian Cousins who slammed the puck past a surprised Walters to knot the game at 4-4 at the 18.30 mark of the third period.

The goal scooped to scant a home team's wish. Counting just three minutes later on a deflection from just outside the crease. Jeff Howard ran the score to 4-4 when he connected with a screened drive from the circle after Mark Woodward had won the draw in the Kingston end.

The two-goal lead appeared to put Belleville in command until Tim Bryant went to work in the final few minutes. The lightweight Kingston centre pulled his team to within one with an unassisted tally at 15:34 and sank the tying goal less than a minute later when he broke through the Bobcats defence to ram the puck past Harrison.

Jim Cain, who has moved to Toronto but will be available for some weekend contests, was the only Belleville rearguard to apply the body to Kingston. His crushing check in the game's dying minutes sent Phil Treacy to the dressing room on a stretcher, but after examination it was felt that the Kingston forward suffered only a bruised side.

On the front lines, the Woodward - Howard - Meagher trio continued to shine for the locals, who have now been unbeaten in their last six games. Howard and Meagher each connected for a pair of goals, while Woodward picked up three assists.

Penalty killers Rod Palmer and Tim Yoho came up with fine showings the three times that they were sent to work. Kingston was penalized only once during the course of the contest.

Belleville's next game will be Sunday afternoon in Peterborough against the first - place Lions.

Belleville's 8 - 6 - 2 record leaves them in third place in the six-team standings.

Gilmour Helps Aces Trump Quintes

KINGSTON — Dave Gilmour has proved to be not only an addition, but a welcome addition to the Kingston Aces.

The re-instated pro scored twice and added an assist to pace Kingston to a 5-3 win over the Belleville Quinte Capes Sunday, lifting the Aces into a sixth place tie with their Eastern Ontario rivals.

Gilmour, who played last year with the Rochester Americans, was added to Kingston's line-up on December 3rd along with former pro Dick Cherry. The pair have now helped the Aces to four wins in their last five starts after a dismal first half of the season.

Rookie Mike Flanigan and Queen's University student Pete Kennedy connected for one goal each Sunday with the other tally going to veteran Tom Carty.

Belleville had opened the scoring on a tally by defenceman Greg Marchen before Gilmour's goal at the 19.00 minute mark deadlocked the score at 1-1 after the first period.

In the middle frame Carty, Flanigan and Kennedy connected for the Aces to more than offset Mike Healey's marker. It was the first senior game for the big Belleville rearguard, who had been on skates only twice in the past three weeks.

Centre John McConnell cut the Kingston lead to 4-3 with a third period score before Gilmour etched matters with his second goal of the night.

Mike Lovett was called on 42 times in the winners' win, while Belleville goalie Steve Rene faced 41 Kingston drives.

Quintes' captain Ralph Plane logged 28 minutes in penalties in the contest which included battles with Gilmour and John Ford. The rugged left winger drew an automatic game misconduct after picking up his second major penalty of the match. The losers were assessed a total of 19 penalties against seven for Kingston.

Towers' Formula Works..for Them!

The scoring formula that proved a success for the Towers Food City novices wasn't quite so successful for the Western Tire juveniles at OMHA action this weekend.

Towers got a trio of two-goal efforts as they downed Kingston 9-4 Saturday. Glenn McQuaid, Billy Rowe and Steve Molina each managed to deal the twine twice for the Belleville all-stars. Rounding out the scoring were Mark Crawford, David Plaus and Darrell Coltman with one goal each.

Western Tire also had three marksmen with duplicate scoring effects, but it wasn't enough to prevent a 7-4 Monday night loss to Trenton. Rick Meagher managed two goals and two assists for the local juveniles, while Mike Goegan and Brian Rumbles had two each.

The Kinsmen bantams were successful in their only weekend venture emerging with a 3-1 win over Kingston Sunday. Scoring for the Kinsmen were Mark Foster, Mike Crawford and Rick Barbeau.

The Eno Cup Wash misers managed a 3-3 tie with Sterling Sunday but were set back 8-2 by Middleton Park the following day.

Dan Duffy notched two goals and Andy Plaus one for Belleville while Barry Dasford had a goal and assist for Sterling. Brad Jotham scored two goals to lead Middleton Park to their Monday win while Duffy and Plaus counted once again for the Cup Wash.

The Wilson Concrete tykes doubled up Wellington 4-2 on two goals by Peter Bleder and single counters from Paul Hounslow and Steve Taylor.

Imperials Back in 'B'

ORILLIA (CP-Staff) — The Blake Kerr Imperials took a turn for the better on familiar ground during the Orillia Midget Hockey Tournament Monday.

Defending consolation round champions the Imperials were pushed into consolation play again this season with a 4-3 loss to Brantford in their opening game. In consolation play it was a different story, however, as the Belleville midgets blasted Barrie 9-5.

The defending champions of the tournament, Barrie were eliminated 4-1 by Allen Park, Mich. Barrie had defeated Orillia 5 - 4 in the opening game of the tourney.

Play in the eighth annual event will be completed Wednesday.

Mustangs Upset Leaders

The Mustangs had the horses Monday night to hang a 4-3 defeat on Jim's Pizzeria, the Gas House Hockey League leaders. In the other game played Rollins' Lumber jumped two third place tie by downing Mead Johnson 3-1.

Eric Maher, Pug Kellar and Randy Lambert looked after all of the winners' scoring. Maher connected for two goals and as many assists, while Kellar and Lambert counted one of each.

For Jim's, Dave Middleton, Steve White and Alan May each tallied a goal and a helper in suffering only their second loss in nine starts. The losers drew three of the game's four penalties.

Damon Richardson rapped in two goals to lead Rollins' to their 3-1 win over Mead Johnson. Thewsitcroy created a headache for intra-place between the two clubs.

Bill Nolan added a goal and assist to the Rollins' effort with Mike Wardaugh scoring the only Meads' goal.

Curlers Rebound

TORONTO — Belleville's junior curling entry at the Ontario championships managed to bounce back in the second round of play.

The Quinte curling club rink dropped a 7-5 verdict to Guelph in their first bout, but managed to stop Northern Bay 8-4 in their second outing.

The Belleville foursome, consisting of skip Pete Reston, vice-skip Ross Riley, second Jim Sullivan and lead Jim Lovett, is competing against top junior rinks from across the province.

The Quinte entry will play one game today and three more Wednesday to complete action in the round-robin event.

Oast Chiefs in Overtime

Dolphins Take Longest Route to Upper Berth

By AP-UPI

Miami Dolphins, one of four teams to survive the first weekend of National Football League playoffs, made everything else anti-climactic after dumping Kansas City Chiefs 27-24 Saturday in the longest game in pro football history.

Cyprus-born Garo Yepremian kicked a 37-yard field goal to hand the fevered Chiefs their first home loss of the season after the teams had battled through one hour, 22 minutes and 40 seconds of play.

Miami running back Larry Csonka set up the winning three-pointer by picking up 20 yards on a roll-right keep play that put the Dolphins at the Kansas City 36 with some seven minutes gone in a second sudden-death overtime period.

Yepremian's kick punctured the Chiefs' dreams of a second Super Bowl victory and made the Dolphins hosts for next Sunday's American Football Conference championship game with Baltimore Colts.

The Colts came up with a rugged defensive effort Sunday to oust Cleveland Browns 20-3.

Two game balls were presented to rookie Dan Nottingham, who carried the ball 23 times for 89 yards and the game's only two touchdowns, and to Baltimore defensive captain Fred Miller.

Hulking defensive end Bubba Smith blocked two Don Cockroft field goals — from the 6 and 43-yard lines — to spark the Colts' defensive charge. Baltimore's defense, bad in the American Conference with just 140 points allowed in a season that produced a 10-4 record, intercepted three passes by Cleveland quarterback Bill Nelson, dumped him for losses four times, and recovered one of his fumbles.

The defense also took top laurels in the Dallas Cowboys' 30-13 National Conference win Saturday over Minnesota Vikings.

The game's key play was a 30-yard interception return by second-year safety Cliff Harris in the third quarter. That set up a 13-yard touchdown run by Duane Thomas to give the Cowboys a commanding 13-3 lead.

Harris' interception was made off Bob Lee, who was replaced at quarterback by Gary Cuozzo in the fourth quarter with the Vikings trailing 20-3.

The playoff setback was Minnesota's fourth straight since they started winning Central Division champion ships in 1968.

Meanwhile the Cowboys, who lost out to Baltimore 16-13 in last year's Super Bowl, will get another chance to advance to the Jan. 18 showdown when they play host to San Francisco 49ers next Sunday in the National Conference championship game.

The 49ers pounced on a bevy of Washington Redskin mistakes Sunday to win their NFC playoff semi-final 24-20.

The Redskins coughed up the ball three times to the 49ers — twice on fumbles and once interception by free safety Roosevelt Taylor. The steal by Taylor set up a two-yard touchdown pass by Joon Gordie to Bob Windsor that gave San Francisco a 17-13 lead and capped a 14-point third quarter. Earlier, Brodie's electrifying 78-yard pass play for a touchdown by wide receiver Gene Washington turned the tide.

The 49ers scored their winning points with 3:20 remaining when Washington punter Mike Bragg fumbled away centre George Burman's low snap in the end zone. Bob Hoskins of the 49ers fell on the ball to give San Francisco a 24-13 lead. 49'Ters ended the Redskins' most successful NFL season since 1945. Their 1971 regular-season record was 9-5-1.

Filion Finishes Record Year with Seven-win Flourish

OTTAWA (CP) — Herve Filion came in out of the snow with two more winners at Connaught Park Monday night and called it a year.

His winning drives with Billy Goose and The Songwriter give him a total of 543 victories for the season, a record unparalleled in harness racing anywhere, and 3,460 during a career that started in 1953 when he was 13.

When he returns for the opening of Roosevelt Raceway at Yonkers, N.Y., next month, the Angers, Que., native will have only his own world records to shoot at.

He eclipsed Billy Haughton's lifetime mark of 3,445 winners earlier this month. The 543 winners this year improved on Filion's own record of 496 set last year.

And the 51-year-old driver wound up his year with a flourish, driving seven different horses to victory at Windsor, Ont., Sunday night for another world mark. He had shared the previous record of six with four other drivers.

His official total of winnings will not be known until the figures are released in January, but it is expected to approach $1.8 million, another world record.

of his life, William Knapp kept enough of his salary to buy pet food and pay rent f... t...e ramshackle, four-room house where he lived, a relative said. The rest he gave away.
None of his friends or rela tives know where the money went.
"He did it kind of secretly," said Kassie Barton, his sister-in-law.
"There wasn't a person who would ask him for money for a good reason who wouldn't get it," said Rev. Harry Mey-

Church.
When Knapp died Dec. 16,
he left $35 and a few posses-

funeral.

Casals Nears 96th Year

SAN JUAN, Puerto Ri (Reuter) — Still carrying h one-man crusade for peace, a writing music, the man gene ally recognized as the world greatest living cellist, Pablo C sals, celebrates his 95th birt day Wednesday.

Fiery as ever, Casals has lo sense of his love for humani nor any of his hate for war an killing.

He once wrote: "I am a mu first, an artist second."

As if to prove the dictum st stood for him after nearly century, Pablo Casals said du ing an interview:

"Savages . . . we are all sa ages. The savages are less sa ages than we are."

He had just been looking at newspaper that prominently di played a photograph of Bengal separatist guerrillas torturi victims during a flush of victor in their newly proclaimed stat of Bangla Desh.

"To obtain peace at the rat we are going will take anothe 300 years, but we must start work now," he added.

The Spanish-born musici who went into self-imposed exil after Gen. Francisco Franc won the Spanish civil war i 1939, outlined his "theory" o peace.

"You have to start with chi dren when they can understan the meaning of the word. You have to teach the child at abou the age of nine, the miracle th marvel he himself is.

. . . That he has them things (pointing to his own eyes kling blue eyes) . . . to see to hear . . . to think. All this a miracle."

If the child realized this, taught him responsibility, "If each individual feels th way about peace, then society will be ready to work for peaceful world," the maestro explained.

Looking out from the porch o his suburban home, nestling i a hillside overlooking San Juan he declared the fact that nation institutionalized and celebrate killing.

"We still cannot have the he rizon of a better world. Teach ers and parents teach only ma terialistic things to children. This is ignorance, stupidity, . We are barbarians."

Casals at the moment is com pleting a sonata for violin.

His next scheduled concert be still plays with enthusiasm will be during San Juan's an nual Casals Festival in th spring.

Nigeria Fights Corruption

LAGOS (Reuter) — Nigeria is about to crack down sharply on corruption in an anti-crime campaign that already has dealt severely with armed robbery.

Early this month, the head o state, Gen. Yakubu Gowon, an nounced that a decree would be issued shortly on "combatting corruption.

It would empower the govern ment to investigate people known to have enriched them selves dishonestly and to deal swiftly with all cases of corrup tion.

The move could have ominous portents for the corrupt. In Au gust, 1970, the government faced with a crime wave after the end of 30 months of civi war, issued a decree ordering public executions for armed robbery.

Special armed-robbery tribun als were set up and more than 30 persons have been publicly executed since then. In October, however, the government de cided that the tribunals should now be presided over by High Court judges.

Cases of corruption have been dealt with by the courts and several persons have been freed on legal technicalities. The gov ernment now wants to eliminate the long process of court trials so that offenders can be deal with as swiftly as armed rob bers.

Gen. Gowon's relief to nouncement comes almost a year after he pledged to turn the nation from "the edge of the precipice" of rampant greed, corruption and double-dealing.

His new move comes amid growing public concern about bribery and other scandals.

Passenger and goods-carrying trucks still have to make the traditional "sacrifice," or euphemism for a bribe, at po lice control points to continue their journey.

Businessmen are reported to have to offer more than the usual 18-per-cent cut to obtain government contracts. But major concern comes from irri tating delays and bottlenecks created by bribe-seeking junior civil servants for performing their duties.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
B L O N G F E L L O W
One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Havlicek Murder In Last Second

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Havlicek is tough enough for 47 minutes and 59 seconds, but in that final second he's pure murder.

The Boston Celtics' star beat Detroit rookie Tim Stoker with a basket at the buzzer and Monday night he did it to Golden State Warriors 99-97 with a long turnaround jump shot as time ran out.

In the only other National Basketball Association games Philadelphia 76ers held off Buffalo Braves 121-112 and Atlanta Hawks downed Portland Trail-Blazers 135-121.

In the ABA, New York turned back the Carolina 113-111 and Dallas beat Pittsburgh 97-92.

Havlicek tied the score with 16 seconds left on a jump shot and the Warriors worked the ball to Jeff Mullins. Cazzie Russell misfired on a 25-footer, but Don Nelson grabbed the rebound and passed to Havlicek, who turned and fired as the buzzer sounded.

Havlicek and Nate Thurmond of the Warriors shared scoring honors with 28 points apiece.

Atlanta and Portland were tied at halftime 61-61 but Glenn of the Hawks scored 11 of his 17 points in the third period to help his team pull away.

Lou Hudson was scoring leader with 31 points, led 8 fourth-quarter flurry as the Hawks iced the game for 32 points. Geoff Petrie paced the losers with 30.

Billy Cunningham, Bob Rule and Kevin Loughery led the way as Philadelphia ended a six-game losing streak and extended Buffalo's string of losses to the same number. Cunningham scored 25 points, Rule 25 and Loughery 21.

Ron Sauer paced the Braves with 24 points.

Law Laid Down Twice

LONDON (CP) — Denis Law scored two goals to give Manchester United a 2-2 tie with Coventry Monday in an English First Division soccer clash.

First-place Manchester United dominated play but Law's Dunne put the ball into his own net, but recovered for a draw and a record of three points ahead of Manchester City. Steve Coppell, Coventry's top scorer, carried off, injured with two minutes to play.

Skate on the Other Foot When Referee Tries Coaching

NEW YORK (CP-AP) — A couple of weeks ago the referee of a minor hockey game in Toronto called three penalty shots, all against the same team.

The second one was squarely at centre ice," moaned the coach of the penalized team. "It's no penalty shot unless the foul occurs in the attacking zone. But no-red wouldn't listen to me."

Scotty Morrison, referee-in-chief of the National Hockey League and spare-time coach in a Toronto minor league, was finding out how the other half lives. That particular penalty shot cost his team a 2-1 defeat.

Even as he told of the incident, Morrison remained a staunch defender of the officials, a target of abuse whenever the game is played and particularly in the 14 NHL rinks.

"These people can sing your ears pretty good," he said after spending a night among the unwelcome visitors at Madison Square Garden.

"Friday, one of the NHL's senior officials, was refereeing the game Montreal was watching and had a case of the flu with temperature of 103 degrees. After 60 minutes up and down the ice (having Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers, Friday collapsed in the dressing room.

"That's the part the fans don't see," said Morrison. "Maybe if they did, they'd go easier on the officials."

Unlike players who spend perhaps 90 seconds at a time on the ice, officials are out there for the full game. It can take plenty out of a man and by the time he is in his mid-40s, an NHL official must start thinking about retirement.

That's why when Morrison looks for new talent as experience decreases the officialing load, he most find young men who can endure the pressure. "Sometimes it's tough to find someone with enough maturity who's still young enough to give you a few years of service," said Morrison.

Right now, the NHL is concerned with another expansion next year which requires more additions to Morrison's staff of 37 officials. What's more, there is the fledgling World Hockey Association which might lure some of the current NHL officials away.

"All referees in professional hockey are under contract to us," said Morrison. "We know they are the best. How the World Hockey Association will operate, I don't know. I would think they'll have to start by appointing a referee-in-chief. But as for rumors that applicants for that job have come from my staff, well, I'll take that with a grain of salt."

China's Diplomatic Setback in Backing Pakistan Only Minor

HONG KONG (Reuter) — China appears to Hong Kong analysts to have suffered only a minor diplomatic setback in Pakistan in a year that has seen Peking move into greater international prominence, especially since its seating in the United Nations.

One thing the conflict in East Pakistan has done, however is to throw Soviet-Chinese differences once again into sharp focus.

Peking chose to back the central government of Pakistan, with which it has had cordial relations for nearly a decade, and opposed Indian support of the Bangla Desh separatists in the eastern wing.

Addressing the United Nations Dec. 15, Chinese Ambassador Huang Hua denounced India's "aggression" in East Pakistan in support of the Bengali separatists as "aggression."

He also accused the Soviet Union, which backed New Delhi, of "social imperialism." He described the Russians as "new tsars, who are all nothing but doing evil."

Diplomatic analysts believe the Indian victory means a setback for Peking's policies. They forecast that now may try to counter Soviet influence in the Middle East by stressing that the Indians, diplomatically supported by Russia, invaded a Moslem country.

China also seems certain to maintain its stream of bitter denunciations in the UN of both the Kremlin and New Delhi, according them of expansionism in South Asia.

Certainly, relations between China and its two giant neighbors to the north and south seem at their lowest ebb in years.

The day after the Dec. 16 East Pakistan surrender to Indian troops, a speech at a Peking reception by Chinese Premier Chou En-lai on the conflict so aroused Soviet Ambassador Vassili Tolstikov that he stalked out of the reception.

Diplomats considered the walkout indicated that Sino-Soviet relations are at their least friendly point since the 1969 border clash.

China's stand on the Bangla Desh issue may have damaged its strategy in seeking leadership of the world revolution and as a critic of the so-called Communist "revisionism" which it considers emanates from Moscow.

Many of the world's leftists have been surprised by Peking's attitude. Spy some of them have attended government's policy seemed to smack of repression of the people of East Pakistan in their attempts to seek more autonomy.

Peking cannot be unaware of criticism from such quarters, but has chosen a policy of open support for the government in Islamabad with which it has been friendly for some time. China's campaign seemed aimed at keeping Peking criticising India and Russia.

Perhaps some hinting of its resource cans in one bitter attack in which China accused the Russians of "settling Asians against Asians"—a phrase usually used to attack U.S. policy in Indo-China.

Diplomats here now are waiting to see if Peking will try to capitalize in the Middle East on Soviet support for Pakistan.

They noted that Peking hosted the visit last month of the vice-president of Sudan, who had been bluntly critical of alleged Soviet support for an unsuccessful coup in his country last July.

And when it signed a trade agreement in August with Kuwait, a close friend of the Soviet Union, and with Iraq last year, it was reported that Peking planned to establish trip-crossings of Sudan, who had been bluntly critical of alleged Soviet support for an unsuccessful coup in his country last July.

And when it signed a trade agreement in August with Kuwait, a close friend of the Soviet Union, and with Iraq last

PC Director Already Preparing for Next Ontario Election

TORONTO (CP) — With an Ontario election out of the way about two months ago, the Progressive Conservative party's new executive director is busy drawing up charts for the next one.

For 25-year-old Ross DeGeer, the 1975 provincial election is the "next big event" in his life.

"The only way to operate is planning. That is the secret to success in anything. If you don't plan yourself, you're dead. You might be over organized but you can never be too organized. . . .

You might wonder why the party that won a smashing victory in the Oct. 21 election, increasing its seats to 78 from 68 in the 117-seat legislature, is worrying about the next campaign.

"It was perfect," says McFeGeer modestly.

"Could it ever be as good again? That's what we're doing now, worrying about the next one."

The new wave, heralded by Premier William Davis when he was sworn in as premier March 1, has swept over the Ontario political scene. It has meant the arrival of political technocrats who are willing to give up lucrative business careers so they can work full time to ensure the re-election of the Conservatives.

"Within the Who's Who of the party, Ross would be described in anybody's list of the top dozen," said a Conservative official.

Mr. DeGeer started in politics in 1955 when he was asked to be a poll clerk for a Conservative candidate. There was not, nor is there now, any deep philosophical reason for his being a Conservative rather than a Liberal or New Democrat.

. . . There was no magic to it, no philosophical reasons for it, except they've provided the best government in this province."

He worked in some capacity in every federal and provincial election since, and in 1967 was in charge of the floor demonstrations at the federal leadership convention for Robert Stanfield. He spent months planning how several hundred persons could "spontaneously" move around the floor for 10 minutes.

A year ago, he managed the provincial leadership campaign for Allan Lawrence, now attorney-general, who came within 1,000 votes of defeating Premier Davis.

After that, he was named tour manager for Mr. Davis in the last election.

Now he has left his job as a stockbroker—at a substantial cut in pay—to take a post in the $30,000 range with the 464-year-old Conservative party machine and the headaches ahead.

Mr. DeGeer says he is intrigued about working at something that has been his hobby.

"I'm very excited about the election," he emphasized.

And in the near future, the Big Blue Machine—the party's election organization—will be in action for the federal campaign for which Mr. Davis has already committed support.

"Very often I sit back and say what am I doing this for". Mr. DeGeer says. "I spend a lot of time relaxing and just sort of looking up at the sky."

And then if everything goes the way the chart says it should and the 1975 results are just as good as the 1971, it won't bring him great personal happiness.

"I tell you, I get so involved in the specific activity, that very often the end result is anticlimactic."

Robert Simpson Company Ltd In Business for Century

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Simpson, a Scots immigrant, started out with a modest dry-goods establishment on downtown Toronto's Yonge Street in 1872.

His business soon succeeded, and in 1894 he expanded to a $500,000 building in the same area.

The building promptly burned down.

Undaunted, Mr. Simpson bought an advertisement in a newspaper the next day:

"Will rebuild immediately! Greater and Grander than before!"

In January, the Robert Simpson Co. Ltd. will observe a century in business—during which time it has added 19 more locations to 11 stores in Toronto, Montreal, Halifax, London, Regina and suburban centres.

From its original drygoods line, Simpsons has branched out into such ventures as travel, photography and bride counselling.

Mr. Simpson ran the business until his death in 1897. It then was acquired by Joseph Flavelle and H. H. Fudger, under whose direction the company made its first expansion.

A store was bought in Montreal. A mail-order department was set up. Buyers' offices were set up in the commercial centres of the United States and Europe.

In 1911, C. L. Burton, a former office boy in Mr. Fudger's fancy goods store, was hired as assistant general manager.

By 1925, Mr. Burton had acquired 15 per cent of the company. A group headed by Mr. Burton and J. H. Gundy acquired the business in 1929.

Today, his son, G. A. Burton, is chairman.

In between, C. L. Burton was succeeded by his son, Edgar, who began his career as a shipping clerk for a Chicago firm in 1922. He returned to Toronto in 1925, and became general manager of the store in 1937 at the age of 36.

"Like all the things they say about nepotism," says his younger brother, G. A. Burton, "he very nearly inherited the firm. "But on the other side of the coin, he has worked very hard sons since I was three years old."

He started out at the bottom —in the stock room for $12.50 a week while attending university.

By the first half of 1971, profit of Simpsons Ltd.—of which the Robert Simpson Co. Ltd. is a wholly-owned subsidiary—had risen to more than $1 million from more than $2.3 million in the corresponding 1970 period.

Blood Sugar in A Diabetic Can Drop to Too Low A Level

By G. C. THOTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thoteson: Would you discuss the problem of a diabetic having no appetite? A recent experience prompted me to write.

A friend thought she had flu, and after two weeks discovered it was from low blood sugar. (She was on oral medication).

Also mention use of the acetone test in diabetics—Mrs. J.O.

Yes, a diabetic can be "too negative." The essential problem in diabetes is the presence of excessive amount of sugar piling up in the blood—but the sugar level can go too far the other way, also.

The art of controlling diabetes is to maintain the right balance —not too much sugar in the blood, but not too little, either.

The sugar level can be kept down easier by insulin or by use of the several oral medications. Now let's suppose that the patient skips some meals or, by too much exertion, uses up too much energy in the form of blood sugar.

What happens? A person at too low a sugar level just doesn't feel up to par—tired, weak, jumpiness, nausea, visual disturbances, headache and dizziness. A combination of such symptoms could easily have led your friend to think she had flu.

She needs to get back into proper balance. Medications of varying degrees of power are available. An adjustment in the medication may be in order—or perhaps a little more carbohydrate in her diet, more regular meals, or less strenuous activity may be sufficient answer.

Now the acetone test. Sometimes illness, especially an infection such as a cold, causes a loss of sugar-tolerance in the body. Carbohydrate is not utilized properly—a problem that already is affecting a diabetic anyway.

The system then falls back on stored fat for energy. As this fat is broken down for use, acetone is produced as a by-product. A fruity odor can be detected on the breath, and the urine can be tested for acetone.

It would be wise for all diabetics to have periodic tests for acetone, perhaps along with urine tests by the doctor. Such a test becomes much more important at time of illness.

The usual indication of the presence of acetone is the need for more insulin, adjustment of oral medication or reduction in carbohydrate intake until the patient is well again, and back in proper balance. For acetone can be an ominous sign, a precursor of diabetic acidosis or coma.

Dear Dr. Thoteson: I have many bowel movements in the morning, and at the first one, the stool is mostly black, but no blood—sometimes as I'm 63 and had a goitre operation many years ago. What causes the black stool?—B.R.

The probable explanation is bleeding during the night, the blood progressively turning to black. Even though there is no pain, this should immediately be examined into to find out the cause. It would not be related to the goitre operation. See your doctor without delay, x-rays of the stomach and colon are in order.

Opening lead—six of clubs.

Bridge is not as difficult as it sometimes made out to be. Bids of plays requiring exceptional skill are few and far between, and the chief challenge of the game consists of avoiding the everyday errors that occur.

Thus, it would be easy for the defense to go wrong in this deal where South arrives at three notrump and West leads a club. If the defense functions correctly, South must go down, but the average defender slip ever so slightly and "errs" comes home with eight tricks.

Declarer wins the opening club lead in dummy with the ten and naturally attacks spades, for that is his most promising source for tricks.

But when he leads a low spade from dummy at trick two, East and West must both play low and declarer will make the contract.

Thus, if East plays low on dummy's five of spades, South likewise plays low and cannot be stopped from making four spade tricks and the contract.

But if East puts up the ten of spades at trick two, South cannot afford to duck—he would go down at once with a club return—and he is forced to win the spade with the ace.

Again the defense must select perfect, for West can play the high queen of spades on the first lead. If he doesn't, South makes the contract by forcing out the ace with the nine of spade lead with the queen, thus entering eight tricks.

If West is alert to the situation and does play his queen on the lead, South must eventually go down one. Plainly, trick two is the critical point of the hand. If East-West do not falter, South is doomed. Tomorrow: Disrupting communications.

Canoeist Rescued In Haitian Waters

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Fritz Sprandel, whose first attempt to canoe Staten Island Sound, N.Y., to Los Angeles landed him only in Cuban jail for 46 days, has been rescued in his second attempt after clinging to his cracked canoe for two days in Haitian waters, an associate says.

Norman Morris of Allentown, a business associate who is sponsoring Sprandel's trip, said the 27-year-old adventurer told him in a telephone call Monday that he was picked up 12 m les from Cap Haitien on the northwest corner of Haiti Dec. 21.

"Fritz said either a storm or a rock cracked his canoe in two places," Morris said.

Sprandel, said Morrus, is in "excellent condition, although he's tired and weak."

Sprandel now is assessing whether he'll continue or be paired. If it can't, he will purchase another and continue his trip, Morris said.

—Sprandel's first attempt began in August of last year when he left New York in his 17-foot canoe.

In May of this year, Sprandel was blown off course after pushing off from Key West, Fla., and washed up on Cuban soil. He remained under constant surveillance by Cuban officials and was released after paying a $2,000 fine for violating Cuban territory.

Veterans Still Blockade Statue of Liberty

NEW YORK (AP) — Government lawyers sought a court order today to force 16 anti-war veterans to remove their barricades from the Statue of Liberty, which the veterans occupied in a symbolic protest Sunday night.

The group rejected Monday night a government compromise offer that would have reopened the monument to sightseers while allowing the veterans to remain on Liberty Island and continue their protest.

Flying an American flag upside down as a symbol of distress, the veterans reiterated their position that they would not leave until their demand that the protest be publicized in U.S. troops was met.

Similar anti-war protests were carried out Monday at the Betsy Ross home in Philadelphia and at a ward in a hospital at Travis Air Force Base near San Francisco.

All three protests were organized or aided by the Vietnam Veterans Against the War in an effort to create pressure on President Nixon to set a definite date for withdrawal of American forces from Southeast Asia.

Members of the VVAW have been encamped at Valley Forge, Pa., since last week. Spokesmen claimed that the New York and Philadelphia protests were launched from there.

Twenty-three men and two women occupied the tiny Philadelphia home where Betsy Ross fashioned the first American flag. They left peacefully when police broke in 45 minutes later.

At Travis, 18 army men just back from Vietnam took over the floor of an observation ward for 18 hours to protest their enforced treatment for what the military said was opium use.

In New York, the 12-acre Liberty Island was closed to sightseeing boats which connect it with the tip of lower Manhattan. About 2,000 persons a day normally visit the landmark at this time of year. The National Park Service has jurisdiction over the island.

Bangla Desh to Try Military 'Criminals'

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Indian government appeared Monday night to have made a decision to permit Pakistani soldiers taken prisoner in East Pakistan —as well as civilians—to be tried as war criminals by the Bangla Desh republic.

The government's views on the controversial war-crimes issue were revealed to Indian reporters at a special briefing by Foreign Secretary T. N. Kaul.

Foreign correspondents were not invited and so were not bound by the ground rules of the briefing, which required the Indian reporters to quote only official sources as the basis for the story.

United News of India, which had a representative at the briefing, said the sources stressed that the Geneva Convention on handling prisoners of war affords no protection to soldiers "who had been charged with commission of heinous crimes unless these were committed in the performance of their duty."

"Otherwise, there was no protection, and they could be tried for atrocities indulged in by them," the man conducting the briefing was quoted as saying.

Concussion Bomb Next Thing to 'Nuke'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two scientists who visited South Vietnam in August said Monday that the United States Air Force is using a relatively new bomb in Southeast Asia that is so intense its concussion kills every thing within a radius of 3,200 feet.

The bomb, which produces a mushroom cloud, was developed primarily for "the instan- cessation of clearings in dense jungle which can be used as landing zones for assault helicopters," the scientists said.

But they added they had learned the weapon has been used as an anti-personnel weapon. They said they received confirmation of this from an official in the U.S. embassy in Saigon.

The report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science's 138th annual meeting came from Dr. E. W. Pfeiffer, a zoologist at the University of Montana, and Dr. Arthur H. Westing, biology department chairman at Windham College in Putney, Vt.

Pfeiffer and Westing said most information about the bomb, referred to as a "commando vault" and "an explosive bulldozer," is not classified, but that the air force is being quiet about its use.

A film showing the bomb exploding was shown to them, the two men said, but the air force refused to provide a copy. The scientists said they obtained a copy elsewhere and released two photographs of the mushroom cloud effect of the concussive blast, at about 30 seconds and about one minute after detonation.

In their report, the two scientists said the weapon "provides a concussive blast surpassed only by that of a nuclear bomb."

Pfeiffer, in an interview before his formal presentation, said the bomb creates a "lethal zone" covering of 730 acres in which everything; trees, wildlife and humans, is killed. An injury zone extends beyond the lethal radius by another 1,500 feet.

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman said the bomb has been used for some time and there has been no secret about it. He declined to discuss the blast range but said one kilometre, or 3,280 feet, is "very close" in diameter, more than 11 feet long and weighing 15,000 pounds.

The weapon is designated the BLU 82-B general-purpose high-explosive concussion bomb, 4.5

Thousand Police Seek Bank Robbers

SAARBRUECKEN (AP) — A thousand West German police hope to close in today on the three Cologne bank robbers who freed their hostages unharmed and fled on foot into a forest near the French border.

The bandits, armed with shotguns, abandoned their two police hostages and the mini-bus in which they escaped and disappeared Monday night into the Kirhseir forest about six miles from the French frontier. They carried their loot—about $27,000 —in a black attache case.

Police tentatively identified the robbers as Kurt Visnik, 44, an Austrian; a Frenchman and an Italian. A fourth man, Roger Roch, 37, of Marseille, was arrested in Cologne and he tried to contact Visnik after the holdup.

The robbers entered the branch of the Deutschebank about 10 a.m. Monday, drove their guns and ordered everybody to lie on the floor. A bank employee happened to be talking by phone with a customer and told him: "There's a holdup." The customer called the police, and a patrol car arrived within a minute.

Witnesses said the robbers began discussing hostages when they realized police were outside the bank. Two hours of negotiations with police followed while thousands gathered outside in the cathedral square.

Through it all the police acted with restraint, obviously mindful of public criticism after a bank robbery in Munich last August when a woman hostage was killed along with one of the robbers.

After two hours of negotiation Cologne Criminal Police Chief Werner Hamacher, 46, and a district police chief, Klaus Krauss, 51, volunteered to substitute as hostages for three bank employees seized by the gunmen.

The bandits were given a guarantee of safe conduct and a getaway vehicle, the police having shot the tires of the car the trio planned to use in their escape.

For eight hours, Hamacher and Krauss sat in the front of the escape truck, four shotguns trained on them, with Hamacher driving and paying for gasoline.

Israeli General Divorced

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — Israel's defence minister, Gen. Moshe Dayan, and his wife Ruth were divorced today after 26 years of marriage.

The couple, have two sons and a daughter.

The divorce between Gen. Dayan, 56 hero of two Israeli wars against the Arabs, and Mrs. Dayan, 54 was granted by Tel Aviv's rabbinical court this morning at the request of both parties.

The marriage had been reported to have been under strain for many years. Several years ago, Israel's first premier, David Ben-Gurion, is said to have intervened to prevent a divorce.

Before the divorce was granted, Gen. Dayan told the newspaper Maariv: "Our divorce is strictly a private matter and I am not prepared to make any statement."

Mrs. Dayan also told Maariv she regarded the divorce as a private matter and added: "We shall remain friends."

A MESSAGE FROM The Unemployment Insurance Commission

A few months ago, the Hon. Bryce Mackasey, Minister of Labor, instituted a program which involves the Unemployment Insurance Commission with people in addition to the payment of benefits. The program is entitled Claimants Assistance and the claimant's participation is voluntary.

The purpose of the program is to provide information about methods of seeking and securing employment and how best to utilize the skills of an unemployed person.

The interviews are strictly voluntary and the information discussed is not made available even to the other branches of the Commission.

It is a program to help people to help themselves.

Most people who have taken advantage of this service find they are better equipped to search for work with confidence and self assurance. People declare every day that the service they have received has been of considerable help to them in their search for work.

If you receive an invitation to a Claimant Assistance Interview, you would be well advised to attend with the assurance that it has been extended with your interest in mind.

Self-Stick Carpet Tiles

Do it yourself and save. Nylon shag tiles are cushion-backed for added comfort. Super-strong adhesive holds them firm

12" x 12" TILES 89c EA.

Here's a great idea in floor decorating. Shag tiles that give you family-room informality and guest-room elegance. They're so easy to install even a child could do it. All you do is peel off the protective backing and stick them down. They're made of nylon—the toughest wearing fabric there is—so you can use them in rec rooms, play rooms or dens. Easy to clean, too: most spots and spills just wipe away with a damp cloth. Regular vacuuming keeps them bright. Choose one color or use your imagination to create multi-colored patterns. To determine the quantity you require simply measure (in feet) the length of your room by the width. The answer tells you the exact number. Add a few extra for replacements. When ordering please state color preference by number.

News Blackout Hides North Vietnam Raids

Massive Blows Are Continuing

SAIGON (CP) — Mass U.S. air raids on arms dumps, airfields and anti-aircraft installations in North Vietnam went into their fourth straight day today with the U.S. command maintaining a complete security blackout on the operations.

U.S. official sources predicted the bombing—the heaviest since former president Johnson halted daily bombing of the North in November, 1968—would continue throughout this week.

U.S. diplomatic sources reported 330 planes and helicopters flew more than 300 attack strikes and hundreds more support missions in the first 3½ days of the round the-clock bombing that began Sunday.

The carriers Constellation and Coral Sea, stationed in the Gulf of Tonkin, are supplying about 150 fighter-bombers to the force attacking North Vietnam. The rest of the aircraft come from bases in South Vietnam and Thailand.

Radio Hanoi claimed that a seventh U.S. plane was shot down Tuesday, in Quang Binh province just north of the demilitarized zone. It said nothing about the crew. Radio Hanoi reported earlier that five planes were shot down Sunday and a sixth Monday. It said a number of the pilots were killed or captured.

The U.S. command refused to comment on the report of the number of strikes flown. Hanoi's claims of seven planes downed are its report that the raiders had killed or wounded many civilians. The command said that for security reasons it would disclose no details of the operation until it was completed.

The official U.S. justification for the raids is that they are protecting the lives of the dwindling number of U.S. troops in South Vietnam, which has been widely taken to mean that the targets include ammunition stockpiles and only anti-aircraft batteries.

Since 1968, U.S. planes have only struck at such anti-aircraft installations in the North when they directly threatened U.S. aircraft.

Meanwhile, North Vietnamese President Ton Duc Thang called on his countrymen to keep "both vigilance" following the resumption of bombing.

Policy Called Futile

WASHINGTON (CP) — Opposition to the United States air assault on North Vietnam grew today as the defence department insisted that the bombing did not represent a return to the policies of the Johnson administration.

Three Democratic presidential contenders, members of Congress, UN Secretary-General U Thant and anti-war groups all condemned the bombing.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told a questioner in the Canadian Commons Tuesday the Canadian government condemns any action that would widen fighting in Indochina.

The leading contender for the Democratic presidential nomination, Senator Edwin Muskie of Maine, called on President Nixon to halt the bombing. "Our present policy in Vietnam is a dangerous one and a futile one," he said.

Another presidential contender, Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, also demanded an end to the bombing and asked for an extended ceasefire through the new year and Tet lunar new year holiday up to Feb. 15. Senator George McGovern of South Dakota described the air attacks as a shocking escalation of the war and 30 Democratic congressmen sent a telegram to Nixon calling for an end to the raids.

The Big Push

Now that Belleville General Hospital's new $200,000 laundry is open, approximately 400 hours of overtime per year, will be cut. Part of this is owing to a new overhead rail system which selects laundry bags by computer. Here, employee Cork Hannah empties one of the monster bags into one of the washers. European Conference Not Likely Before 1973

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (Reuter) — President Nixon and West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, in their summit talks at the Florida White House, have agreed that a European security conference is unlikely before 1973, informed sources said today.

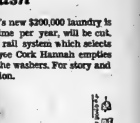
The two leaders drew this conclusion after reviewing the situation Monday at the U.S. president's home overlooking Biscayne Bay, the sources said.

Reasons for the expected delay are the U.S. presidential election next year and because the ratification of West Germany's non-aggression treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland is not expected before mid-summer.

The inability so far to persuade the Soviet Union to move towards negotiations with the West on mutual and balanced force reductions is another obstacle to bringing about a European conference in the coming 12 months, the sources said.

Nixon and Brandt were expected to conclude their two days of talks today with virtually complete agreement on all aspects of their European policies.

The chancellor and his party were buoyed Tuesday by an assurance from the president and State Secretary William Rogers that the United States will not reduce its troop strength in Europe and remains committed to a continuing strong NATO alliance.



Rogers, reporting on his meeting with West German Foreign Minister Walter Scheel, told a press conference: "I think the most important conclusion that I would make is that relations between our two governments are excellent, and we are proceeding on parallel courses."

Bhutto Is Called Pakistan's Kennedy

RAWALPINDI (AP) — "It's been rather like Kennedy, at least to us Pakistanis," said the dapper man in the foreign office after Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's first week as president of Pakistan.

The fiery, fast-moving Bhutto, a wealthy landowner turned populist, is giving his people a whirlwind style of government they have never before experienced.

The Pakistanis still remember the late John F. Kennedy, when he took office as U.S. president in January, 1961.

"This is a government of information," said a television official after Bhutto swore in his cabinet at 3 a.m. Friday.

The president, 44 next month, has swept his predecessor, Gen. Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan, and other members of his junta into retirement, eliminated every active admiral from the navy and moved the East Pakistani leader, Sheik Mujibur Rahman, from jail to house arrest.

He also has distracted the Pakistanis from the humiliation of their shattering defeat in the East and unconditional ceasefire in the West with promises of reform to help the common people.

The government television network went on the air seven days a week instead of six; under Yahya diplomats joked that it was possible to strike the military president to dinner only on Mondays when the television screen was dark.

Bhutto's governor in the Punjab ordered the tea break in his secretariat limited to 20 minutes at 11 a.m., responding to an order in Bhutto's first presidential speech that "tea parties must come to an end."

The same day the new finance minister, Dr. Mubashir Hasan, called his first news conference to announce he was stripping 19 persons of licences the previous government had given them to start factories.

Sub Will Hunt For Minerals

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 90-foot submarine, mothballed since used for underwater sightseeing tours on Lake Geneva during the Swiss National Exposition in 1964, has arrived here to be used in offshore exploration for oil and minerals.

The Auguste Piccard, built in Switzerland for famed oceanographer Dr. Jacques Piccard, was acquired by Hyco Maritime Explorations Ltd. of North Vancouver.

The 103-ton vessel which arrived Monday aboard a freighter, will be refitted before undergoing tests, Don Morecombe, a New York engineer and general manager of Hyco, said Tuesday.

Britain To Quit Malta

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain announced today it is preparing to withdraw all its forces from Malta.

A statement by the foreign and Commonwealth office said the decision was made because of demands by Maltese Premier Dom Mintoff for another $11,050,000 to allow British forces to remain on the island.

British forces on the island form part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's forces in the Mediterranean.

Mintoff said in a message sent Dec. 24, he was not willing to allow British forces to remain after Dec. 31 unless the payment was made to the Malta government.

Today's statement said the British government then repeated an offer by Defence Secretary Lord Carrington to go to Malta this week or next previded Mintoff withdrew his demand and was willing to seek a basis for a new defence agreement.

"They also restated that they would not seek to keep their forces on the island against the wishes of the Malta government," the statement said "In a message received this morning, Mr. Mintoff reiterated the demand made in his message of Dec. 24. In these circumstances the British government are selling in hand preparations for the withdrawal of British forces from Malta," it added.

Blacks Fighting Rhodesian Pact

SALISBURY (AP) — Militant blacks are seeking to block settlement of Rhodesia's independence dispute with Britain on terms negotiated last month.

Spearheading the movement is the new African National Council or ANC. It rejects the proposed agreement as a "constitutional rape of Rhodesian Africans by both the British and Rhodesian governments."

The extent of ANC influence among more than five million blacks is not clear. But it is significant that top members of two banned Black Power parties, the Zimbabwe African National Union and Zimbabwe African People's Union, have joined hands in the ANC. Black nationalists call this area Zimbabwe.

Bishop Abel Muzorewa, 46, the first black leader of the United Methodist Church here and the driving force behind the ANC, is highly regarded by many urban blacks. The government's action last year in banning him from tribal trust lands led to several protest demonstrations.

The bishop insists the ANC is not a political party but a united front formed to tell blacks of the dangerous implications of accepting the proposals." He has described the settlement as a "vicious and subtle device" for British recognition of UDI, Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence.

County Warden's Position Can Lead to Higher Office

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

One-year terms for the office of warden has been the policy in Hastings county council for nearly 100 years.

Harbor Ice Dangerous

Don't put your athletic muscles to the test on the Belleville harbor or the Bay of Quinte yet.

You'll find you're skating on thin ice.

Belleville Harbor Master Don Barrett today issued the warning.

Ice in the harbor and the Bay area around the city is still dangerously thin and shouldn't be used until after a prolonged spell of cold weather thickens its surface.

Mr. Barrett — who said he noticed some people skating in and near the harbor during the Christmas holiday — said the ice still is only about two inches thick.

A minimum six-inch thickness is required before the ice can be considered safe, he said.

At least one near escape — involving two youngsters — was reported yesterday by staff at Belleville General Hospital.

An employee, eating in the hospital cafeteria — which overlooks the bay — noticed one of the pair suddenly crash through the ice.

Police and firemen were called but, before they arrived, the second youngster had pulled his companion to safety, said a hospital official.

Shallow ice also has long-delayed opening of one of the city's most popular outdoor rinks. In fact, the unreliable pattern of winter weather has affected his department's entire outdoor recreation program, city recreation director Lorne Williams said today.

Biggest outdoor rink is at Zwick's Island lagoon on the Bay.

But at least six inches of ice are needed before equipment will be permitted to clear the rinks, said Mr. Williams.

After that, if it proves safe with machinery, the department may consider it safe for people.

In all, 21 outdoor rinks are involved in the department's winter outdoors program.

However, there were hopes that the rink at the Quinte Skating Club would be opened today, said Mr. Williams.

"But it will only stay open as long as we get the (suitable) weather," he added.

Benjamin of Hungerford township and A. F. Wood of Madoc village, either had a strong desire to continue in office or else fellow councillors felt no one was capable to take their place.

Mr. Benjamin was elected in 1851 and remained in office for six years until Nathaniel Ripley of Tyendinaga took over for a two-year term.

Then Mr. Benjamin was turned as warden for another term this time for four years.

But A. F. Wood of Madoc village had the distinction of being county warden on three separate occasions.

He served four years from 1863-66, then five — year term from 1869-73 and another one-year term in 1874.

That ended the era of multiterm wardens but since then several father-son combinations have indicated that the call of municipal life sometimes runs in the family.

The first of the father-son wardens were Peter and Isaac McLaren of Tyendinaga township. McLaren father held warden in 1917 and his son Leslie 38 years later in 1957.

Another father-son combination was the Rollins family from Wollaston township, with Charles Rollins being warden in 1924 and his son Clarke in 1950.

Still another father-son combination for the wardenship was R. M. Mitchell and his son Fred C. Mitchell of Thurlow township. The father was county warden in 1923 while Fred was warden in 1964.

Since 1874, the wardenship has been strictly a one-year term but a number of county council heads have used their municipal experience as a springboard to higher roles in government.

Charlie T. Rollins is the current representative in the Ontario Legislature for Hastings riding, while Joe Grills, who was county warden in 1952, is a Tory representative in the House of Commons at Ottawa.

Still another former warden Lloyd Price of Elzevir, who headed county council in 1958, was elected riding MPP and served a term at Queen's Park in Toronto.

But regardless of whether the wardenship leads to later election as a senior government representative, the honor of heading county council is still a much sought after role.

Evidence of this are the prospects for next year when the less than five reeves will be seeking the honor.

On the campaign trail with hopes of succeeding this year's warden, Kenneth Smith, are reeves Carman Gibson, Tyendinaga; Horace Casey, Thurlow; Russell Sills, Huntingdon; Jack McKenzie, Faraday and George Lyons of Tudor.

Who will they make run will be determined when council meets for its inaugural session in January.

Hotel Fire Victim Remains 'Critical'

KINGSTON (Staff) — A spokesman for Kingston General Hospital this morning reported the condition of John Psoras, 46, of Belleville, as "still critical."

Mr. Psoras suffered severe burns to 70 per cent of his body during Monday night's fourth-floor fire at the Queen's Hotel on Front Street. Mr. Psoras, former hockey and long-time resident of the hotel, was burned as he fled along the fire - filled corridor.

The second resident of the top floor, George "Scotty" Wilson, 53, is still listed in "fair condition" at Belleville General. He suffered burns to his face, hand, and back.

Man Shot Accidentally

PICTON (Staff) — A Prince Edward County man is reported in satisfactory condition in Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital today after being wounded accidentally with a shotgun yesterday afternoon.

Cyril Patrick Mowbray, 35, of RR 2, Picton, apparently had been over with his shotgun crackled in front of him when it discharged, wounding him in the chest.

The incident occurred at 3.45 p.m. yesterday at the farm home of Babes Forbes, Concession O n., south of Black River, near Milford.

Mr. Mowbray was with his brother - in - law Frederick Guernsey of Oakville, when the shooting occurred. The injured man was treated by Dr. Leroy Hall of Picton.

Constable Don Thoms of Picton OPP investigated.

Cleanup Asked

DELORO (Special) — The Hastings County roads engineer will be requested to clean up County Road 14 at the entrance to this village.

Because this road provides the entrance to Deloro, council felt that the present state of the roadside was "not a helpful factor" to a visitor's first impression.

Police Charge Wilful Damage

At 1.45 a.m. today, the blinking mechanism light at the junction of North Front and Pinnacle Sts. was smashed.

City police officers watched a youth and a girl cross the upper bridge. The youth was observed as he kicked out the light, fell to the ground and then ripped out the blinker's wires.

Gerald Francis Sagriff, 21, will be summoned for wilful damage.

Thief Breaks Into House

Sometime between 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. yesterday, the home of Frank Hendricks, 274 Coleman Street, was entered.

After gaining entry through an unlocked north window, the thief made off with $6 in coins, two Elvis Presley records, a quantity of shotgun and rifle shells.

Winter Works Projects Picked

DELORO (Special) — This village will become involved in the provincial Work Incentive Program with the following work to be undertaken:

Candy Coating Process Perfected for Apples

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

PICTON — Prince Edward businessman Sam Gentile has supplied "the forbidden fruit" with the added inducement of a flavor coating to develop the county's newest industry.

At a small factory located at Lake-On-The-Mountain apples are dipped in soft colorful coatings for sale to stores in Toronto, - Kingston and Prince Edward County. Locally the confections are sold at a Picton chain store and a Bloomfield greenteria.

Mr. Gentile explained that his idea for the fledgling industry began when he was employed as manager of the county's cold storage plant.

He learned that many of the apples grown each year cannot be sold because they are undersized or undercolored. For these reasons they are processed for apple sauce or apple juice and the farmer receives a low price for them.

Mr. Gentile added that regulations of the Ontario department of agriculture and food demand that apples must be 2¾ inches or more in diameter before they can be sold in stores. Also the apples must show 30 per cent color.

Smaller and greener apples which cannot be retailed for these reasons can be tasty treats according to the former Picton grocery.

These apples can be bought from the farmer at higher prices and used for coating by Gentile Foods Ltd. to create the convenient fruit snacks now being marketed.

The flavor coating process developed by Mr. Gentile is described as a "first", perfected following weeks of detective work.

The businessman observed that it is very difficult to preserve coating on an apple because the apple "breathes", releasing moisture and loosening its candy covering.

Even candy apples sold at county fairs cannot be preserved successfully, since their sugar coatings crystalize and crack.

Mr. Gentile noted that "they said it couldn't be done" but perseverance paid off and a successful coating has been developed for use at his factory.

Interest in his industry has been expressed by the department of agriculture because "it is original, and never has been done".

The apples used in Mr. Gentile's operations are Snows and McIntosh, chosen because they are soft apple varieties with lower acid levels than others such as Greenings.

A minimum of eight persons will be employed at the Lake - On - The-Mountain factory as Mr. Gentile's industry swings into operation. Eventually 25 workers may be hired, depending upon the demand for the colorful fruit treats.

"A machine does it all," said Mr. Gentile, describing factory operations.

He explained that processing is highly sanitary and his factory is equipped to handle "many many apples" in a day's work.

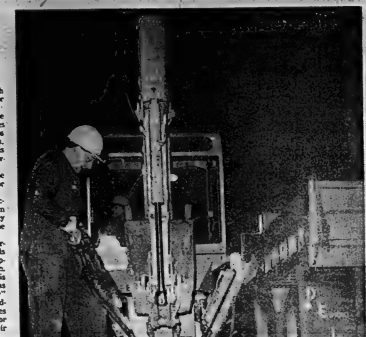
Volume is important in reducing overhead costs, according to Mr. Gentile.

"It's a clean industry with no pollution," remarked the businessman.

Mr. Gentile commented that his flavor coated apples provide "healthy" snacks since skim milk powder and pure vegetable shortening supply two of the ingredients in the coating recipe.

He suggested the fruit treats would be ideal for lunch boxes, children's parties or simply for snacking.

Now sold in cellophane covered four packs, the apples are placed in small foil cups which hold discarded cores. The apple coating itself is soft and smooth with no drawbacks of stickiness.



The coated apples can be kept at room temperature or refrigerated if desired.

Apples now sold at one Picton chain store are colored in soft coral, one of the many pastel shades possible for the snack coatings.

Mr. Gentile is looking forward to a rainbow of pastels and plans to introduce a raspberry flavored coating soon.

The new business venture is described by Mr. Gentile as being "good for the economy" since farmers now find an additional market for apples formerly sold for juice or apple sauce, because of their size and color.

As sure as God made little green apples, a new industry has located in Prince Edward County with plans for development and expansion

Post Office Messenger Mugged

An 18-year-old sub-post office messenger was jumped from behind last night and robbed of approximately $258. In cash plus several cheques.

Timothy LaBrash, an employee with Kelly's Drug Store on Bridge Street, was delivering the day's post of fice receipts to the Belleville Plaza branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce when the heist took place.

In his report to city police, Mr. LaBrash said he was proceeding on foot to the bank, along Bridge Street, when he noticed three youths lounging around the corner of Herchimer.

He paid them no heed.

Shortly before arriving at the plaza, he was jumped from behind by these same youths.

One removed his glasses, without which he has difficulty seeing any distance.

A second, he reports, said "you have something under your coat. Let's have it."

The messenger's jacket was unzipped, and the money bag removed.

The youths fled on foot, to what Mr. LaBrash believes were homes near either Bridge or Carl Streets.

Although he was uninjured during the short fracas, the thieves have either stolen or thrown his glasses away.

They were described as youths between the ages of 17 and 18 years of age. Two wore ski toques, the third his face with a scarf.

City police Chief Douglas Crosbie this morning speculated that the trio "knew what he was carrying and knew where he was going".

Water Cracks Asphalt

A broken six-inch water main on North Front Street, took 11 hours to repair, as public utility employees dug beneath cracked asphalt to find the source of the eruption. Shortly after 7 p.m. yesterday, water began bubbling through the cracked road surface. "The water was quite bad," reported PUC foreman Peter Lewis, who worked with his three-man crew until 6 a.m. this morning. "It was touchy. The break was hard to locate." As water bubbled onto the road, visible here, city road crews funded 100-foot area in front of the Sun Luck Gardens, to prevent ice from forming.

Tender Accepted By Parks Board

City parks board at a special meeting Tuesday voted to accept the tender of Wieger DeJong Construction of Surling, in the amount of $185,357.54 for the construction of its new garden and supply centre.

Acceptance of the Wieger DeJong tender will be recommended to council. The recommended method of financing will be $180,000 from the 1971 capital works budget and $13,000 from the park board's 1972 current budget.

The additional funds over the contract price are to cover architect's fees and other incidentals.

The Wieger DeJong tender was the lowest of five bids received for the project.

A January construction start is expected for the garden centre, which is to be built on the hill on North Park Street just south of Highway 401.

Snowmobilers Criticized

DELORO (Special) — W. Thorpe has lodged a complaint with Deloro village council stating that snowmobilers are trespassing on private property. He requested a controlling bylaw be instigated.

Other than deciding to approach machine owners in the village in an attempt to solicit their co-operation in curtailing thoughtless snowmobile operation, council took no direct action.

Police Warn Early Skaters

PICTON (Staff) — Skaters ignoring pools of open water in Picton harbor have been warned by police that the ice is still unsafe for winter sports.

A spokesman for the Picton police department said that constables investigated several reports of skaters on the thin ice during the holiday weekend.

He added that in most cases teenagers and adults, not young children, were skating in and beyond the harbor.

Most of them resented or ignored police warnings of the dangers of thin ice, according to the constable.

With temperatures in the mid-thirties yesterday, youngsters skated on newly frozen ice in the harbor.

Sweeps Winner To Share Prize

"It'll be helpful," was all William Larcombe of Trenton could say yesterday after hearing that he was the winner of about $1,190 in the Irish Sweepstakes.

One of two local winners the other was Don Campbell-ford owner of ticket EAK 69460 — Mr. Larcombe said he had no immediate plans for the money.

"I was disappointed not to have won more after reading in the paper that my ticket had been drawn," he said.

His horse, Aldaw, was among 59 entries which either finished out of the money or failed to run.

Mr. Larcombe will actually keep only half of the winnings.

"An aunt of my wife's in Midland and I decided to share the ticket after we got our stubs confused. We'll go halves."

The Quinte - area winners were among 254 lucky Canadians sharing in the jackpot — including five who collected a first prize bonanza of $122,000.

A MESSAGE FROM
The Unemployment Insurance Commission

A few months ago, the Hon. Bryce Mackasey, Minister of Labour, instituted a program which involves the Unemployment Insurance Commission with people in addition to the payment of benefits. The program is entitled Claimants Assistance and the claimant's participation is voluntary.

The purpose of the program is to provide information about methods of finding and securing employment and how best to utilize the skills of an unemployed person.

The interviews are strictly confidential and the information discussed is not made available even to the other branches of the Commission.

It is a program to help people to help themselves.

Most people who have taken advantage of this service find they are better equipped to search for work with confidence and self assurance. People declare every day that the service they have received has been of considerable help to them in their search for work.

If you receive an invitation to a Claimant Assistance Interview, you would be well advised to attend with the assurance that it has been extended with your interest in mind.

ANAF News

This is the last club news for 1971 and it is hoped that it has given several chuckles. Information on events past and future, and kept up to date with the sick list. To all a most happy and very healthy New Year and "long may ye're lum reek".

Friday afternoon there was a real big crowd relaxing after the very busy shopping of the past few weeks. Greetings and wishbishings could be seen and heard accompanied by happy, smiling faces. The annual Christmas social hour was appreciated by all with final farewells at 5.30 p.m. as bundles were gathered up. Although there may have been a feeling of unreality without the usual glistening snow, that had to journey any distance certainly had a lovely day for it.

Now everyone is getting fled up together for the big New Year Balls that send old man 1971 down the long road and welcome the 1972 trial Newcomer and wonderings just what kind of things he has in store for us.

President Johnny Browning is reported to be slowly recovering in room 718 and Cole. A. Crawford is in room 708, both in the Belleville General Hospital, Cole. Doug Stork is in room 364, Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston. Best wishes to all. May they be home soon again.

Last Thursday evening Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201 was again the recipient of a useful and very welcome presentation. President Ted Brandon and Secretary Ernie Bellanger of the Belleville Yardmen Rod and Gun Furst offered a folding wheelchair to be used for any purpose the unit saw fit. First vice-president Bill Ford and secretary George Stoughton, on behalf of the president and unit, were very pleased to accept this generous gift. By coincidence, just the week previous, a request for a folding chair had been received on behalf of an oldtimer whose leg condition was gradually worsening to where he would soon be bedridden.

By this time it is expected Cde. George Wallace is reconced happily in the wheelchair and will be able to manipulate it satisfactorily.

A bit of disappointing news was a letter from Cde. Don Bland changing his decision to stand for entertainment chairman. This makes Cde. Ted Newman an acclaimed choice to fill this important chairmanship. Congratulations, Ted, from the members and have a successful year.

Put a circle around Thursday Jan. 13 on your new 1972 calendars to remind you to attend the first general meeting of the year and to elect your choice of members for the executive that will guide the destinies of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201 through 1972.

Once again, Happy New Year to all.

Son for P.M.

Christmas is over for another year and we hope it was a happy time for all. It was a singularly notable time for Prime Minister Trudeau and his wife in that Christmas day marked the arrival of their firstborn.

Justin Pierre are his names and there is an aristocratic ring to them which is appealing and of course they seem to confirm that the Prime Minister is still concerned with the creation of a "just society" for this and future generations of Canadians.

Opposition parties of course might not agree with the government's sincerity on that score, but on this happy occasion they will surely be swift in conveying their good wishes to Mr. Trudeau and his wife.

As it is, Mrs. Trudeau could not have chosen a more fitting and less partisan moment for the birth of her son. The Prime Minister for his part was spared from the slings and arrows of party politics in the Commons, while awaiting news of his offspring. One wonders how Opposition leader Robert Stanfield or the NDP's David Lewis could have refrained, in all sincerity, from shafting the P.M., as they have been doing with increasingly regularity of late, to appropriate words of congratulation on word of the birth by two or three days previous.

The Christmas Day event made it all the easier for everyone, and none more so than the Trudeaus.

We think of one other notable Christmas Day birthday — Princess Alexandra's. And we see that among the early messages of congratulations arriving in Ottawa were those from the Queen and Prime Minister Heath.

A Strange Winter

The weatherman is certainly pitching some strange curves this winter. The absence of snow can be a mixed blessing, for mild temperatures have brought freezing rain which, everyone knows is possibly the greatest hazard of all.

It was a curious experience to be heading for town and church on Sunday morning and seeing a solid mass of small craft there on the bay on the Trenton side of the Bay bridge. And there was the weather man on a Rochester television station talking of a colleague who had nine holes of golf over the Christmas weekend.

Back to the bay again, off Massassaga, we spied a trio of youngsters skating along at a fast clip and through the binoculars it looked like an old Christmas card scene. Later though we heard of a Carrying Place youth who went through the ice; he made it ashore, but this is a reminder that care should be taken to ensure that conditions are suitable for skating.

It has been so mild that we are reminded of a January a few years ago when the temperature staggered into the low fifties, but perhaps it is best not to repeat the subject of that.

It is a bad deal for the snowmobilers, although we hope by the time the snow comes around again they will remember not to go hot-rodding it along public roads.

Tough also on the winter resort areas where there must be a lot of gnashing of teeth just now.

One more thing, is it not possible for the sand trucks to have the rural roads sanded earlier? Some, veritable skating rinks, were not sanded yesterday until 10.30 a.m.

Hotel Fires

Fires are often an unfortunate accompaniment of the winter season and the last few days have witnessed a number of serious outbreaks, notably in hotels.

There was the blaze in the Queen's hotel here in Belleville resulting injury to two residents. Another, in Seoul, South Korea, took more than one hundred lives and was one of the worst of its kind in history. A third conflagration occurred in the Sheraton Mount-Royal hotel in Montreal but the 750 guests were evacuated safely.

Fire, as we are reminded by these occurences, can strike with alarming swiftness. It is a menace that must always be guarded against with routine precautions such as checks on wiring, avoidance of accumulations of paper and so on.

Again!

Aircraft hijackings are becoming more and more bizarre — and closer to home into the bargain. Who would have expected a domestic flight from Thunder Bay, of all places, fetching up in Havana. The man involved talked of having a mission, but likely as not he will end up in the jug. Oddballs who force aircraft to Cuba seem to ignore this fact.

The Art of One-Upmanship

How to Succeed in Conversation Without Really Trying

By FARMER TESSINGTON

OTTAWA — Seeing as how this is the season to be jolly, I thought it might be appropriate to pass on a few tips and hints on how to cope with the numerous cocktail parties, dinners, receptions, and the like, that Canadians suffer through during this Christmas-New Year interval of festivity.

One of the major problems for many people is how to carry on a sparkling conversation at these affairs, particularly if you haven't been your host and the other oddly assorted guests for several months or, perhaps, since the last period of pickled palaver. And even more particularly if you don't really care if you see them ever again.

We've all experienced the sinking feeling of standing around among a group of semi-strangers, desperately groping for something intelligent to say beyond inane stuff like what how you fixed the carburetor on your snowmobile with a hairpin, or how many Christmas tree lights have been stolen from your front lawn.

Even more infuriating is to be part of a group dominated by the always-present extrovert, the human expert on all matters. His kind are authoritative tones seem to lend weight to his every pronouncement on everything from seal hunting in the Gulf of St. Lawrence to what's wrong with the Prairie Grains stabilization Act.

To overcome these problems, I am about to provide you with some interesting conversational material which is almost guaranteed to win you instant attention in any group of three or more drinkers.

Imagine, for instance, the blush that will fall over the room if you suddenly interject with: "Say, did you hear the federal government has bought 2.95" tent poles at prices of $20.00 and $20.75 each?"

While you still have the upper conversational hand, it might be wise to follow up with another, equally timely gem by casually mentioning: "And, of course, the department of national defence got an excellent buy on those 300 packing cases for technical field equipment it bought recently."

It's possible, of course, that your fellow imbibers may not be quite as interested as you are about these business coups by the Trudeau administration. So, anything I've left to chance, set relationship to sex is bound to earn you close attention. Try this for size: "Health Minister John Munro indeed one just the other day that in the expected debate relating to the matter of abortion, it may develop that a definition of abortion becomes advisable."

I find it wise in this situation not to quit when you are so obviously ahead. Take a second smashing success with these items, you should press on to hold your advantage and the floor. Here's another zesty one grabber: "The customs people tell me that the importation of pornographic literature from Denmark, as described in tariff item 99301-1 of schedule C of the Customs Tariff, is prohibited under section 14 of this tariff (RXC 1970)."

Try to be topical as possible and show that you are au courant, as we say here in Ottawa and Hull, what is going on in the nation's capital. That, of course, means you should be ready at the drop of someone else's cliche with a smart rejoinder in any mention of the tax reform bill.

"Probably the most devastating ploy you can employ here is to comment airily

"Speaking of the tax reform bill, did you chance know that section 127 (3b) of the bill says that the assumption is made that the amount of the earnings for the control of, and was available for payment of dividends of each corporation, other than the control corporation, control of which was acquired by the controlling corporation by virtue of its acquisition of control of the controlled corporation, were computed as if each corporation that controlled the chain corporation, at the time the controlling corporation acquired control of the controlled corporation, has acquired control of the chain corporation at that time?"

It's possible that some jealous cad may challenge the authenticity of your finest bon mots. Fear not. I can prove conclusively that each and every item I have given you is the gospel truth. After all, I culled them straight from the pages of the parliamentary bible—the Hansard report.

So, there you are. With some concentrated memorizing you should be pretty well equipped to cope with any social occasion in the next few days. And, you are almost certain to be regarded as not only extremely erudite, but maybe even a crashing bore. With real luck, you may not get asked back next year.

"I GUESS EVERYBODY'S BE HAPPIER IF OUR DAYS DWINDLED DOWN TO A PRECIOUS FEW!"

Canada Spends Only $1.40 Per Capita on the Arts

Montreal Gazette

Several million Canadians visit museums each year. Over two million go to symphony concerts. Thousands more attend opera, ballet and other performances. They far outstrip attendance at sports events.

All told, Canadians spend several millions annually on the arts and everything that fits under that broad heading.

Yet at the same time, orchestras are in the red, museums are being forced to curtail services and many find arts organizations are balanced on the edge of bankruptcy.

In spite of increasing interest the arts are not flourishing. For example, when the Toronto Symphony Orchestra was organized many years ago, it served a city of nearly two million. Today it is still the only major orchestra in a metropolitan area.

Unfortunately broadcasting networks do not lay out great chunks of cash to televise the "Symphony of the Week," etc., as they do with pro football and other sports.

And just as if society was reaching into the till and taking the money away, inflation is lowering the ability of the public and of artists to serve the community. The ability of the people to give is being cut by the same inflation.

Business can raise prices when its costs go up. Government can raise taxes. But what are the arts to do? To raise ticket prices beyond certain limits is to exclude the public. To reduce costs is to cut the very services the community demands.

"I believe we must ask for a wholly new priority for the arts in this country," says Amyas Ames, chairman of the board of New York's Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts. "We should do for the arts and humanities in the 1970s what we did for the sciences in the 1960s and 1950s."

Current funding for the arts provides several solutions. But this is not adequate.

Ames asks support for new legislation to provide federal aid equal to at least 10 per cent of what Americans now spend on the arts. This should be an aim of Canadians too.

Presently Canada spends $1.40 per person on the arts while it is spent in Sweden and Australia and $2.42 in West Germany. It is only 1 per cent of what is spent on roads in a year—the cost of about 15 miles of superhighway.

It would still leave 98 per cent of the support of the arts to be paid from ticket sales and from the gifts of individuals, corporations and by local government subsidy.

What is asked is modest when measured in terms of other federal projects. It is a wholly new priority for the arts and humanities — for that which gives our lives richness and meaning.

Investments Bring Some Quebecers Little Reward

Grashy La Voix de l'Est:

The Quebecer complains of the bend he is supposed to do now provide. He is right. And he will be less and less the master of he does not take steps to become the master.

If, for example, he places his assets in secure investment sectors and leaves the field open to foreign capital in the industrial and commercial sectors, he will make a good but he will never really be rich and, above all, he will not control anything.

The others become rich at his expense by investing in most important businesses and the most promising natural resources.

Is it not because he has been afraid for the last two decades to invest where there are really profits to be made?

Isn't it true to say that fear of what, one asks, has stopped him from making his capital in businesses, from taking good risks, any hope of profiting from opportunities at his disposition in order to make his assets bear fruit?

Isn't it true that he has always chosen secure investments such as government, municipal, school and parish bonds?

All this time, others, particularly those responsible for possessing wealth and controlling the Quebec economy, have been ensuring wherever they can make he most profits . . .

It would be more logical to put investments where they would freely attract some form of control of the economy rather than in; foreign capital take over the most promising sectors.

The Quebecer will always be obliged to accept foreign capital, but the need would be less and these investments less dangerous if Quebecers would accept capital risk investments.

Let us hope that one day they will be more realistic. Otherwise it will be impossible for them to be masters in their own province.

Sarnia MPP Could Succeed Nixon

By DON O'HEARN

From the Queen's Park Bureau of The Intelligencer

TORONTO — One man we should be hearing a lot about in 1972 is James Bullbrook, the Liberal member for Sarnia.

Mr. Bullbrook shapes up as perhaps the top contender at present to replace Bob Nixon as Ontario Liberal leader.

Whether he gets the job or not could depend a great deal on whether we do hear a lot about him in the months to come.

As of now the Sarnia member probably would have the support of most of the members of the house.

He has made a very strong impression since he was first elected in 1957.

A 39-year-old lawyer, he quickly established himself as a dodgier. Both cool and incisive, he was soon recognized as one of the best critics in the house.

Along with this he demonstrated a good house "manner," and an excellent grasp of wide range of provincial affairs.

He was obviously leadership material and a man to watch.

Now that it appears there will be a chance for leadership, however, the circumstances (and definitely is a contender) faces the serious problem that he isn't known.

He, as it happens, has a good background, geographically, for leadership. He spent his early years in North Bay, part of his education in Kitchener and has been practising law in Sarnia. His roots are rather strong. But they are little known, outside of the house and his home riding.

Red Tape in The Sale of Property

Brockville Recorder and Times

Property owners in Leeds and Grenville counties, outside of Brockville, Prescott and Gananoque spent over $13,000 this year to date just to get permission to sell or give away a piece of property. Under certain conditions it's the law now.

A property owner in the counties must get the approval of the land division committee before property, not included in a plan of subdivision, is sold, gift taxes have to be on a conditional basis, or should, be pending the approval of the committee. And approval isn't automatic. Of the 1,000 applications processed to date, 453 have been granted, 14 rejected, five deferred, six recalled and 47 are pending. Two property owners turned down by the committee have appealed the decision to the Ontario Municipal Board. The department of municipal affairs is also appealing one of the decisions of the committee with which it finds fault.

UNICEF's Great Achievement

Brockville Recorder and Times

It was 25 years ago, December 11, that United Nations Children's Fund was started with a meagre $11 million in the bank ahead of it. In those 25 years it has performed a monumental task. But to date it has only scratched the surface.

Among its accomplishments are:

Nearly 400 million children have been vaccinated against tuberculosis.

Nearly 8 to 245 million children have been examined for trachoma, a disease which can cause blindness, and 6 million treated.

During 1970 alone, some 27 million children were protected from malaria.

UNICEF has helped to equip over 2,500 teacher-training institutions and nearly 40,000 associated primary and secondary schools.

Close to 12,000 main rural health centres and 30,000 subcentres in 106 countries, along with several thousand pediatric and maternity wards, have been equipped.

When it began UNICEF was aimed at aiding the children of countries ravaged by World War II. Emergency relief, such as in East Pakistan or Bengla Desh and India recently, is now a responsibility of UNICEF. In years in between the organization added to its objectives aid to children in a billion of them, in developing countries ravaged by World ogne one of giving milk and vaccinations. It was to help other shift has taken place. Now UNICEF is attempting to deal with the whole problem of helping the child between birth and school age.

Under other United Nations agencies, UNICEF's work has directness and tangibility in cause and effect. For instance, $5 can stock three village ponds with fish for a potential source of supply; $100 can buy a set of tools for a village's fire primary school; $2,000 can provide basic equipment and supplies for a rural rural health centre and three subcentres.

A Son for the Trudeaus

Montreal Gazette

The birth of a child to Prime Minister and Mrs. Trudeau will have a special place in history. It is the first time since Canada's first prime minister, Sir John A. Macdonald, that a child has been born to a prime minister in office. And to make it more memorable still, the birth has taken place on Christmas day.

There are times when all political differences are dissolved and the enduring human things matter most. This is just such a time. All Members of Parliament, and Canadians everywhere, will extend their warmest congratulations and good wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau.

Domestic happiness, essential for anyone, is more than ever needful for those under the glare of public life. Canadians will watch with interest the family scene that the Prime Minister's residence will now represent. Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau's happiness will be shared by the nation.

Cable TV Could Offer Way To Guard Against Fire, Theft

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Some Canadian cable television subscribers could look forward to a number of new services in 1972 and more within the next five years, Robert C. Short, president of the Canadian Cable Television Association, said Tuesday.

In a speech to a service club luncheon, Mr. Short said he is confident several Canadian cable companies will install 20-channel capacities for their subscribers during the coming year.

Such capacities could allow subscribers to have unoccupied homes or businesses monitored against fires or break-ins or access, providing they pay an extra fee, to special programs — first run movies, concerts, sports series or special educational programs.

During the next five years, Mr. Short said, cable systems may also be used for reading residential electrical and gas and oil — consumption meters, telephone shopping, providing up-to-the-minute stock market reports or reserving tickets for sports events or plays.

The technology for such services was already available.

"These services will only come about, however, if people want them. The fact they are technically feasible does not guarantee their public useful ness and acceptance," he said.

Carton Anxious to Protect Public Using Charter Flights

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon Carton, minister of financial and commercial affairs, said Tuesday he wants more protection for persons paying for charter aircraft flights.

Mr. Carton, in an interview, said he will be looking into the possibility of Ontario legislation that would ensure money paid by passengers for charter flights be put in trust until the flight takes place.

He said he favors a scheme that would ensure people get their money back if charter flights fail to materialize and would eliminate the possibility of somebody skipping with the money.

Mr. Carton was remarking on reports of a Toronto couple's return charter flight from London being cancelled, forcing them to pay $486 to get home Boxing Day.

The report also mentioned the plight of 100 persons left stranded Sunday when their charter flight did not materialize.

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democrat MPs pressed in the Commons Tuesday for government intervention to prevent passenger stranding or long delays by charter flight operators.

Lorne Benjamin (Regina-Lake Centre) referred to a recent "charter flight boondoggle" by Lloyd International Airways and asked Transport Minister Don Jamieson whether the law would be refused landing rights in Canada.

Referring to the line leaving passengers stranded during the Christmas weekend, he said the landing rights should be lifted until passengers are repaid for buying new tickets on regular lines or for other expenses due to the stranding.

Mr. Jamieson said that if it is in his or the government's authority to do something, "I will look at it in a very sympathetic way."

But he said if the charter flight organization is a travel agency, this would be under provincial jurisdiction.

John Skoberg (Moose Jaw) asked Ren Basford, consumer and corporate affairs minister, to step "unconscionable operations" by charter lines.

Mr. Basford denied any responsibility, saying that "what legislative authority exists, exists within the department of transport."

Prince Philip Accused Of Knocking Poor

LONDON (CP) — An Anglican Church editor accused Prince Philip Tuesday of "knocking the poor" by his recent suggestion that one way of keeping down the population explosion might be to tax people for having children.

Addressing a conference on birth and the environment, Canon Edward Carpenter of Edinburgh University Dec. 17, Philip suggested various ways of controlling the swelling birth rate, including easier abortion and manipulating the family allowance system.

"We now subsidize people for having children," the Queen's husband—himself a father of four—told the conference, which was sponsored by Edinburgh doctors.

"You could argue that it might be possible to tax people for having children. This is not to say that it will step up—but it makes it more expensive."

Nicholas Fegg, editor of the Anglican publication Christian Action, said this showed that an early-Victorian knocking-the-poor approach.

Fegg told a press conference

Tantalizing Dessert With Apricot Base

By ALICE DENHOFF

'Tis new year's eve long, long to in an old Southern plantation home. The traditional bum of eggs, blackeyed peas and punch adorn the holiday ble. Family and friends will son assemble to usher out the old" year and welcome in a new page in Father Time's ook.

From such colonial days comes the typical festive fruit dessert of Ambrosia, fresh oranges, coconut and tangy pineapple enhanced by refreshing flavors to our modern palate, with bright red maraschino cherries adding a colorful touch.

Other tantalizing desserts also start with apricots, that healthful delicious fruit, fresh, canned or dried. Prepare an old-fashioned fruit pudding cake from dried apricots, prunes, cherries and pecans. Easy to make is trend to serve especially when topped with ice cream. Here is the recipe for:

AMBROSIA

1 can (30 ounces) whole apricots
4 large oranges, sectioned and diced
2½ cups pineapple juice
1½ cup shredded coconut
1 tablespoon candied maraschino cherries

Drain apricots, reserving ½ cup syrup. Combine orange sections, orange juice and reserved apricot syrup in glass serving bowl. Sprinkle ¼ cup of the coconut on the fruit. Arrange apricots on top. (Remove pits, if desired). Garnish with remaining coconut and cherries. Chill before serving. Serves 6.

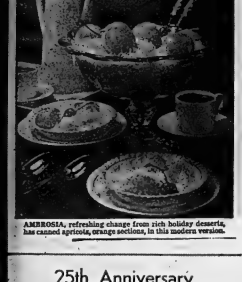
FESTIVE APRICOT PUDDING

4 eggs
1 3/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 1/2 cup fine dry graham crumbs
1 cup chopped California dried apricots
3/4 cup chopped red glace cherries
1 cup chopped toasted pecans

Beat eggs and sugar in large bowl until light and fluffy. Stir in remaining ingredients. Pour into a buttered 10-quart baking dish; bake in 350 degrees Fahrenheit over 20 to 25 minutes or until a wooden pick inserted in center of pudding comes out clean. Serve warm with ice cream. Serves 8 to 8.

One cup of the fried apricot halves is about half of an 11-ounce can. Let the family munch on the remaining apricots for snacks. They're not only tangy and tasty—but nutritious, too. One-fourth cup of dried apricots (6 to 8 halves) supplies at least 75 per cent of the recommended dietary allowance of vitamin A needed each day by adult, teenager or child. Nice when something nice is good for you.

APRICOT TARTS



1 package (10 ounces) pie crust mix
1 can (30 ounces) apricot halves
1 package (3½ ounces) vanilla pudding and pie filling mix
1 cup heavy cream
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons sugar Almond slivers

Prepare pie crust according to package directions; roll dough to slightly less than ⅛-inch thickness. Cut pastry into nine 4-inch circles; fit into fluted 3½-inch tart shells. Bake in 425 degrees Fahrenheit oven 12 to 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool.

Drain and reserve syrup from apricots; drain 9 apricot halves on paper towels. Blend pudding mix, 2-3 cup of reserved apricot syrup and cream in medium saucepan; bring mixture to a boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; spoon into tart shells. Place a drained apricot half in centre of each tart.

For glaze, blend cornstarch and sugar in small saucepan; stir in ¼ cup reserved apricot syrup. Bring mixture to a boil, stirring constantly. Cool about 1 minute, then spoon enough glaze over tarts to coat surface. Sprinkle apricot with almond sliver. Chill tarts until serving time.

Chill remaining apricots and serve another time.

AMBROSIA, refreshing change from rich holiday desserts, has canned apricots, orange sections, in this modern version.

25th Anniversary

A surprise party was given recently in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Sprackett of Belleville to mark the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

The event was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wessels, Pringle Drive when over 50 guests gathered to offer best wishes and congratulations.

Mrs. Norman Wessels was master of ceremonies for the program and upon arrival the honored guests were escorted to a love seat appropriately decorated for the occasion. Games, contests and singing were enjoyed, followed by accordion selections by Miss Carolyn Wessels and Miss Nancy Hunt, an impressive mock wedding concluded the program with Bill, Arnold Sr., and Norma Wessels, uncles of the bride, Mrs. Violet Post, Arnold Wessels Jr., Miss Nancy Post and Patrick Wessels taking part. . .

Mr. and Mrs. Sprackett were married December 28, 1946 and have lived in Belleville ever since. The bride of 25 years ago is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wessels of Belleville. Both maid of honor and best man were present for the celebration.

The bride was seated in a large swivel chair, one of the many gifts received and with the assistance of her husband opened the remainder of these for which both expressed sincere appreciation.

A buffet lunch was served and the honored guests cut and served the anniversary cake. A social hour followed.

Influence of Women's Lib Opens Doors for First Time

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

Masculine strongholds where a chauvinist can grouch in peace about the oddness of women are getting scarcer all the time.

Here and there, in 1971, doors were opened to women for the first time. If feminists sniff an air of tokenism about some of these "firsts," they represent a n improvement nevertheless.

In the Ontario and Manitoba legislatures and in the Senate, girl pages bloomed for the first time.

Senate Speaker Jean-Paul Deschatets said the appointments there were the result of the report of the royal commission on the status of women, which advocated equal opportunity.

Ontario's retiring Speaker Fred Cass said: "The all pervading influence of women's liberation has to be served."

In the fall the federal justice minister named Mabel Van Camp the first woman Supreme Court.

In Alberta, Elizabeth Ann McFadyen was appointed director of the federal public department's Edmonton regional office. She is the first woman director in the department.

Nova Scotia broke a 220-year tradition when Sandra Oxner of Halifax last June became judge in a provincial magistrate's court, the first woman to exercise a provincial judicial function in Nova Scotia.

Renaude Lapointe, a former newspaper woman, was appointed to the Senate late in the year. Earlier The se Casgrain had retired.

In October, Irene Johnson was appointed deputy minister as one of the three commissioners of the public service commission. Mrs. Johnson, who was born in Winnipeg, succeeded Ruth Addison.

Away from governments and cities, the University of Toronto has its first woman chancellor. Pauline McGibbon was elected to a three-year term beginning in July.

And Lee Edith Johnson is the first woman member of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. The feat was made possible by a change in bylaws that took the word "male" out of the description of membership requirements.

Some legislation affecting women made news in 1971.

In Ontario the women's equal employment act, which took effect late in 1970, was used to deal with complaints about sex discrimination. The new Manitoba human rights commission found a lot of its work was dealing with similar complaints. New Brunswick passed a new human rights act largely to include sex in its prohibitions against discrimination.

A Canadian precedent was set in October when an arbitration board in Ontario ruled that a pregnant employee is entitled to paid sick leave under a collective agreement providing time off with pay during illness.

The borough of York, the employer in the case, may appeal the decision if agreement cannot be reached with the Canadian Union of Public Employees that sick pay as paid only if the employee returns to her job after maternity leave.

Jeannette Lavell, a 28-year old Ojibway married to a non-Indian, in Toronto has been trying to have the law changed so she may retain her rights as an Indian.

Under present law, an Indian woman who marries a non-Indian cannot confer the status of Indian on him or her children, her name is stricken from the band list and she loses the right to inherit property that would be hers if she kept her status. Indian men retain their status and band rights.

A decision by the Federal Court of Canada in her favor was challenged by the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians. The case is now before the Supreme Court of Canada. It could affect about 5,000 women and their families.

In two instances in 1971, organized women indicated they were ready to stop being exclusive.

In June, the Canadian Women's Press Club became the Media Club of Canada with a membership open to both men and women.

In October, Kay Macpherson of Toronto, president of the Voice of Women, said the group is considering opening its membership. She said such a move would reflect the changes in the role of citizens' concern groups.

The battle over abortion laws goes on, with some women's groups still working to get changes made so that the decision about whether an abortion should be performed is made by a woman and her doctor.

Club Activities

BELLEVILLE
SENIOR CITIZENS

The annual Christmas banquet of the Belleville Senior Citizens' Club was held in Christ Church parlors recently when members of Chapter 59 Order of Rainbow catered for the event.

President Mrs. Kathleen Adams welcomed everyone and the invocation before the meal was given by Rev. Canon R. B. DeBlois Wright. A toast to the Queen was proposed by past president Harry Taylor.

Following the tasty meal president Adams introduced members of the club executive; also Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Williams and Mrs. Wilma Summers of the Recreation Centre. The minister of the church who gave an inspiring address and his wife Mrs. Wright were also introduced.

Mrs. Adams also expressed thanks to everyone and especially the caterers who had prepared such an excellent meal.

For the program all enjoyed a sing-song of carols with Mrs. Lulu Adams at the piano. A reading was given by Mrs. Vera Morris. A song was rendered by Miss Helen Sulman, and Don Ward favored with several selections in keeping with the Christmas theme.

Wishes for a happy holiday season were extended.

Previous to the Christmas party a meeting was held with attendance somewhat lower due to inclement weather conditions at the time, but those who were present were given a report by the president, Mrs. Kathleen Adams.

Mrs. Lulu Longhurst, acting recording secretary read the minutes and correspondence and the financial statement was given by Mrs. Elsie Jackson. A report on the sick list was given by Mrs. Gist.

After a short business, euchre was enjoyed with the winners being: Mrs. Kathleen Adams, Mrs. Amelia Cavanham, Mrs. Margaret Allen, Joe Bailey, Frank Longstreet and Mrs. Ada Scales. The draw was won by Mrs. Lulu Longhurst.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONNELL

Is an easily tempted husband happy?

NOT completely, otherwise a husband would not even recognize the temptation that is all around any man—or woman, for that matter—who mixes with others socially and professionally. If a husband does entertain so-called temptations, perhaps he is beginning to have doubts about his own ability to contribute to his marriage. He may need the attentions of other women to prove to himself that he is still attractive.

Can Mom explain away a toddler's fears?

NOT VERY WELL, because an adult doesn't realize a little child does not understand the words being used. Then, too, mother often tries to act as though there was nothing for the child to fear. This "strategy" frequently fails because the mother may be afraid of the same things her child fears. If, as an example, she never got over her fear of lightning, she may communicate her troubled feelings about this phenomenon to her young child.

Does a betrayed friend crave revenge?

NO, not if he is a true friend of the one who betrayed him. It would be relatively easy, too, since the individual who took advantage of friendship to betray a friend is also vulnerable to betrayal. But a friend feels only sorrow. Revenge could only mean that he was hoping for the same thing that motivated his friend: a sop for flagging self-esteem. Revenge would do nothing to win a possible renewal of friendship.

Most newspaperboys are banking part of their savings for higher education.
Even if you can easily afford to send your boy to college, you might consider this—the boy who works and saves for part of his education is the boy who will get the most out of college.
He'll appreciate Pop and the checks from home more if he's already had a taste of earning money by working himself.

A Few Tips for Men Who Wear Hairpieces

Dear Ann Landers: I felt sorry for that fellow who wore a hairpiece, but it was always on crooked, or getting lifted in a high wind. My uncle had the same trouble. To add to his problems, one night he got his hairpiece hooked into his lady friend's earring and had to take it off his head to free himself.

Here are a few tips for men who wear hairpieces. First, buy a good one. The cheap pieces look like yarn after a few washings and you can't clean them properly. Also, the color fades. Next, make sure the hairpiece is fit by a stylist who will tell you how much of your own hair to let grow so it can be properly tapered. Next, use a good adhesive agent to insure against slipping. Nothing is more embarrassing than to look in a mirror and discover that your toupe is on sideways.

I hope this letter will be of value to you. Ann.—Chapel Hill Fan

Dear Chap: If you're hinting that perhaps my husband might need a hair-i-nation, he doesn't. He has a wonderful head of hair. But I thank you in behalf of my readers who are not as fortunate.

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice to "Yuba" was logical but not human. I say it's better to sound like a fool than to keep the resentment bottled up and get an ulcer. Since that husband refused to fully exonerate by confessing to an affair which happened 13 years ago, his wife was entitled to the satisfaction of phoning the woman and telling her she knew. I speak from experience.

Several years ago, my husband and a woman employee had an errand to do in a truck. They decided on the spur of the moment to check into a room. When he told me about it five years later I was furious. I telephoned the woman 2,500 miles away and the call cost $14 but it was worth it. She swore on her Eastern Star ring that my husband was imagining things. I knew she was guilty but she lied her fool head off and sweat bullets. Needless to say, my husband did a little sweating, too.

I might be addle-brained, but we've been married for nearly 40 years and I don't have an ulcer.—Newport Beach

Dear New: You sound like a person who doesn't get ulcers, but I'll bet you've given a few. Thanks for writing about the joys of vindictiveness and the pleasures of revenge. I'm from a different school, myself.

Dear Ann Landers: I like your sense of humor. Sometimes you get off a real corker, but you exceeded the limits of Sweets to Sweet and Nuts to Nuts in a recent Confidential when you said "Nuts to you" to a reader who complained because her letter did not appear in print. This was especially unkind to you. Sorry I can't make Sweet to the Sweet. I believe an apology is in order.—Just Thinking Out Loud

Dear Just: I'm glad you decided to "think out loud" on this occasion because I'd hate to have you go around believing I was rude. Your letter is an excellent example of the damage that can be done by one small misunderstood error. Actually, the person who wrote said nuts to me.

The column should have read as follows: "Confidential to Sweets to Sweet and Nuts to You: Sorry I can't publish every letter in the paper." It came out: "Confidential: Nuts to you. Sorry I can't publish every letter in the paper."

I appreciate the opportunity to clarify the foul-up.

Memory May Slip; But Thinking Doesn't

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: How do you improve a memory? I was greatly interested in your Charlotte Whitton story about this, as it appeared the very day I had been talking with my dear mother-in-law, who had told me that her once-excellent memory is slipping.

She is very much worried about this (which probably worsens the problem!), and I think if I could get her a positive method of working at improving her memory, she'd would feel better. She is a sensitive, intelligent, talented and wonderful person, and it is sad to see her with this problem. — Bunny

Dear Bunny: Memory may slip a little with age but the ability to think doesn't — if you keep thinking. If you become semi-conscious in front of a television set, or, spend half the day doing exactly nothing which would stimulate the brain, it doesn't grow any, and that's for sure.

As long as you keep your muscles, arteries, joints, busy they will keep working for you. All muscles have to be used to be healthy. If Grandma reads, throws in a hobby or two to challenge both brain and hand, she is not likely to become senile.

Memory can be helped some. You just don't give in to forgetting a name or place: You look it up, you write it down, you drill yourself. Then when you do forget something you think you should have remembered, for heaven's sake laugh it off.

Dear Doris: I am 54 years of age, and a housekeeper.

This last place, the mother wants me to play cards with the five-year-old. She lets him eat his meals in the living room so he can watch television. If parents trained their children right, they could keep a housekeeper longer. — Sitting Duck

Dear Sitting Duck: A housekeeper is hired not to criticize, but to take care of the house. And who says a five-year-old doesn't need the companionship of a game of cards sometimes?

A good housekeeper can become a family idol by helping to keep the household running smoothly.

You are full of resentment and anger. I'd suggest you look for work in homes with adults only — or improve your skill at tiddly-winks.

Dear Doris: My son, a Roman Catholic is in love with a Protestant girl. I'm sure marriage for them would never work. I admit she is a sweet and lovely girl. I have been trying to break them up. I have hurt her many times, but she has never shown any anger towards me.

My husband says, "Leave them alone." Should I?—Worried

Dear Worried: Whether you succeed in breaking it up or not you will reap a harvest of grief and resentment if you keep up your prejudice.

Their marriage is their business. This girl sounds like a gem, and could be a great joy to you in years to come if you would permit it.

Doris has studied human behavior and can shed light on your dilemma. Write to her, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Best Ever Yule Party

MARMORA — "The best ever" was the opinion expressed by the members of Marmora Senior Citizens' Association about their Christmas party held recently in St. Andrew's Church Hall with 43 members present.

A delicious turkey dinner with all the trimmings and prepared by members of St. Andrew's U.C.W. was served at 12.00 o'clock following which the members met in their clubroom of the memorial building.

Mrs. E. Post presided for a brief business session.

A two-minute silence was observed in memory of Mrs. Ida Nichol who was a charter member of the association.

Mrs. R. Bonter reported on the number of cards sent out during the month to members.

It was decided that flowers or a plant should be sent at Christmas to four members who are permanently shut-in.

The first card party of the season will be held in the clubroom at 8:00 p.m. on January 19.

Miss Grace Warren was in charge of the entertainment which consisted of humorous readings by several members.

Santa sent two of his helpers, Colin Robinson and John Bicheer to help with the exchange of gifts.

A collection of Christmas Carols sung by St. Andrew's junior choir under the direction of Mrs. Robert Sinderson, provided a fitting climax to the afternoon.

Housing Answers Available

TORONTO (CP) — There are ways to solve the Canadian housing problem but they aren't being used, say two young Toronto architects.

Jack Diamond and Barton Myers, partners in a firm formed only sout five years ago, say they believe that the necessary research has been done and alternatives shown to exist, and they've drawn the plans to prove it.

Their plans show how to double, triple or quadruple existing residential densities while preserving worthwhile old buildings. They don't say that the common approach of bulldoing everything in sight to make way for high-rise development is necessarily the answer.

"We could house four times the population of Toronto within the city's present boundaries," Mr. Diamond says, "while providing more park and recreational space than now exists.

"And we wouldn't build any building over six storeys high. We would do it by making goood use of space that now is unused or badly used."

The wasted land is often not readily visible, but Mr. Diamond says any city is full of it.

"One major way of providing good low-rise family housing is by infilling residential blocks, filling in the unused central area and vacant spots in a city block. You probably can't realize just how much housing this can provide until you apply it practically.

So they set out to apply it to a city block in an old, low-income neighborhood on the fringe of Toronto's downtown core.

To do so, they made use of the backs of existing residential lots, now little used except for private garages. They came up with a plan for row housing built along the lane and lot backs. The row would be three storeys high, but each unit would be two storeys, and they would be staggered vertically, much like Habitat in Montreal.

This would give each unit a large sundeck, or an enclosed sun porch or a patch of yard. Each unit would receive natural light from above and have underground parking right underneath. An enclosed pedestrian mall would connect the units, opening to the street at each end. There is provision for a playground for small children, a day-care centre, a swimming pool and convenience shops.

Present owners who decided the backs of their lots for the project would receive underground parking in return.

The architects have calculated that if the project were built as a co-operative, those deeding land would realize something in excess of $4,000 a year for life, sufficient to allow low-income families to remain in their old neighborhood homes instead of being forced out by development of apartments they couldn't afford.

Using the infill system, the present density of about 11 dwelling units to the acre in the model block would be increased to 35 or 36.

Execution of the plan is considered unlikely. Otherwise say it, is too innovative, too new, too different, although infilling has been done in Philadelphia for more than 10 years. Besides, present zoning bylaws are weighted heavily in favor of high-rise development.

Both architects, Incidentally, are products of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

In areas where existing buildings are too run-down to save, they have another scheme to provide high-density low-rise housing.

Instead of high-rises, with their large and largely unused landscaped areas, they would build six-storey buildings in a sort of chequerboard pattern, with the red squares left open to form intimate courtyard's more in scale with the people living in the building. They would tend up with more open space; it just wouldn't be in such large chunks.

Another of their plans has been drawn for student housing at the University of Alberta in Edmonton. It involves mixed land uses—something not now encouraged —and covered streets in the European tradition.

Now in the Bag

Hundreds of pounds of lint from the Belleville General Hospital laundry are now gathered in large bags by a filter. Laundry manager Lionel Cormier last week showed Mrs. J. E. Marsh and Mrs. J. E. Nelles, members of the hospital Board of Governors, some of the lint which the hospital had previously been forced to release in the open air.

Museum's Warehouse Like Gigantic Attic

TORONTO (CP) — Some of the items on display at the Royal Ontario Museum are world-famous. But it has plenty of treasures hidden away—and to some of the staff they should stay that way.

The museum itself, famous for its Oriental items, stands in mid-town Toronto among buildings of the University of Toronto. Some distance away, in a nondescript industrial plaza, it has 25,000 square feet of warehouse space for things it hasn't room to show.

Looking through the unmarked warehouse is like rummaging through the world's largest attic. It contains pieces ranging from the iron grill-work at a European castle to crates of prehistoric mice teeth.

"For 20 years the question of space has been vital; now it's impossible," said museum director Peter Swann.

The museum directorate stresses that most of the stored items are fine pieces for which there is simply no display space. There was also some excess material described as the "mistakes" of previous curators or collector's items that turned out to be fads. Sometimes these can be sold anonymously or perhaps traded off to other institutions.

One thorny problem is the bequest of pieces from private donors who cherished the articles more than the receiver.

Although the museum's standard gift form stipulates the ROM can "dispose" of gifts it cannot use, officials say some donors can get so sticky after signing an item over that the museum will never dispose of a piece without the giver's consent.

"Dispose" usually means sell, with the proceeds going to buy another piece which is displayed in the donor's name.

Henry Hickel-Szabo, curator of the European department, said many donors of unusable goods are like the grandmother who gave the kids a train three years ago. It may have been tossed in a closet but grandmother still asks on her visits if they are still playing with "that lovely train."

Thus the museum is sometimes forced to acquire things it does not want—and cannot dispose of—to get the things it does want.

Mr. Hickel-Szabo recalled the woman who came to sell a large number of pieces from her estate. She wanted $3,000 for the lot. The curator offered that sum just for the few pieces that interested him.

The woman refused and left in a huff. Later she returned and offered the pieces he wanted for $1,500—if he would agree to take other pieces as well.

The ROM, which has done some of the major archeological work of our times, can't show its findings—they're in storage," said Mr. Swann.

"There are some age, bronze age things the public has never seen."

Mr. Swann expressed some hope.

Say that expansion plans, using the $12.5-million government grant we just received, are about to get under way. The only question now is, where to.

Much of the question of expansion lies in the possibility that University of Toronto might surrender the necessary land.

Hospital's Automated Laundry Does Better Job in Less Time

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Launderers and laundresses at Belleville General Hospital are cleaning up their dirty linen by computer these days . . . and saving a bundle of time in the process.

This is due in part to a new multi-track "sling" system which stores thousands of pounds of hospital laundry on an overhead trolley.

Until the end of November, the laundry was operating on an average of 400 hours of overtime per year in their cramped facilities in the older part of Belleville General. Several weeks ago, this all came to an end, as did the old suds factory.

Began in spring of 1971 the spanking new second floor laundry, which cost in the neighborhood of $200,000, opened its doors. Administrators and members of the governing board last week had a guided tour of the new facility dominated by the new multi-rail wash collector.

Under the old system, used linen had been gathered in large laundry bins, which accumulated in any available space . . . a real traffic problem, says laundry manager Lionel Cormier. The bins have virtually been eliminated because of the new tracking system.

"Because patients rubble up an enormous amount of fresh linen . . . a sheet, a bedspread, two pillowcases, two bath towels, and two facecloths, averaging a total of 15 pounds every day . . . a constant flow of dirty linen is shipped to the first floor service bins. Here, employees sort laundry into the 75-pound slings.

From the first floor, the bags start on their journey to the gigantic, 450-pound and 135-pound capacity washers. A flick of several switches and each bag is shipped along the rails until it becomes positioned at the mouth of one of the four washers.

On the official tour, laundry employee Cork Hannah demonstrated how easily the new system works. In position at the mouth of a washer, the bags start on their journey through the door. A quick pull of the tie string at the bottom and dozens of bed sheets cascaded into the waiting drum.

Mr. Cormier said the hospital replaced two 200-pound washers with a new 450-pound machine at a total cost of $22,000.

The hospital also has installed a new $18,000 dryer to supplement the two 100-pound units.

With all these improvements and new machines, Mr. Cormier says the laundry will now be operating at less than full capacity, and with no overtime work required. Given the additional machines and space, the present staff of 25 will be able to handle linen from 50 additional beds without an increase in manpower. The hospital plans to convert present administration office space into a 40-bed ward when the new office building is completed.

Although time is being saved, all staff have been retained to man the updated facilities.

One of the newest ideas to be adopted by hospital laundries, the overhead rail sorter is in use in both Toronto and Cornwall. "This helps mass production," Mr. Cormier added.

The hospital is also pollution - conscious. In the past, lint from the washing and drying processes was blown into the open air. Passersby knew when laundry was being done, admitted Mr. Cormier.

Beneath the new second-floor facility, a large bag accumulates the day's lint waste.

Still to be completed is a floor cart room. By the end of January, the hospital expects to have the new sorting room completed.

Here, workers will pre-prepare bundled linen for both patients and the operating room. Hospital staff will be able to wheel prepared linen kits to respective rooms.

This work is now being done within the limitations of a basement room.

Belleville General handles a massive amount of laundry. Their flow, runs an average of 165,000 pounds per month.

Automated Laundry Train

Belleville General's new hospital laundry is complete with this overhead rail system which allows employees to sort and store dirty linen ease of operation during a recent tour of the $200,000 second floor facility.

Welland demonstrated the mass production laundry machines, which will now process (linen) loud by 300 mail hours per year.

Pesticide Study Began Years Ago

LONDON (CP) — Concern about the effect on the environment of pesticides and industrial wastes has appeared only relatively recent times but some laboratories have been studying the problem for years.

One is the toxicology research unit of the British Medical Research Council which began in 1948 at the Chemical Defence Research Establishment in Porton, for years the main centre of British chemical - welfare research. Scientists there had before the war began studying dangerous gases and bacteria.

The toxicology unit, which moved to Carshalton near London in 1950, has been used by the World Health Unit since 1967 as a reference centre for evaluating toxicology of pesticides.

Most of the work at Carshalton is concerned with finding out exactly how and why a particular compound is poisonous. This is for two reasons, first because a full understanding of what makes something poisonous is necessary before an effective antidote can be devised and, secondly, because a proper understanding of how poisons act can often lead to understanding some previously mysterious aspect of human physiology at the molecular level.

One study concerns the possible harmful effects of some tin and lead compounds when absorbed by human beings. Organic compounds of tin have proved effective as fungicides and now are likely to find a variety of uses. Work at the unit has shown how tin compounds can cause nervous disease in rats and has also helped towards defining safe levels and means of administration for such compounds when used as fungicides on farms.

Lead compounds, already used on a vast scale as antiknock gasoline additives, are under investigation for the detailed mechanisms by which excessive intake of organic lead compounds can cause disturbances in brain metabolism. This work is playing an important part in the whole complex question of legislation to limit pollution of the atmosphere by gasoline fumes.

Another project at Carshalton is work on the little-understood human response to inhaled asbestos dust. Research there has already given doctors some new ideas about the best ways to treat patients suffering from shock symptoms after such injuries as extensive burns. Yet another aspect of the work has been concerned with the possible cancer-causing effects of widely-used industrial chemicals.

Work carried out has already helped public health and agricultural authorities to advise on the best means of storing and transporting such common crops as peanuts so as to eliminate or at least reduce such risks.

Giant Laundry Press

Modern would certainly envy employees at the Belleville Hospital laundry as they feed 12 to 15 sheets per minute through the automatic folder and cross-folder. This gigantic linen ironer and folder can process 100 bed sheets per minute, with the finished product whirled through conveyer belts, ready for stacking. Administrators and members of the board inspected the unit last week toured the hospital's new $200,000 facility, taking in the Record Field Set For Sasky Games

SASKATOON (CP) — When a record field of 1,020 athletes kick off the seventh annual Saskatchewan Indoor Games today, elementary students will be just as important as invitational competitors, most planners say.

Wally Stinson of Saskatoon, former president of the now defunct Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, said Tuesday night:

"We think the future of track is getting kids interested and keeping them at it."

Stinson, 53 a member of the education department at the University of Saskatchewan.

He said performances of young athletes have improved since the indoor games began in 1965.

"More of them are trying out. More are enthusiastic."

Stinson, head track referee at the 1967 Pan-American Games at Winnipeg, said the Games have helped track and field tremendously.

"It is sort of the stimulus for indoor track on the Prairies. It's the first major indoor meet in North America."

Lakers Looking Back

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Lakers are alone at the top of the pro basketball world, but coach Bill Sharman keeps looking for new mountains to climb.

"Seattle is the team we have to beat," the coach said Tuesday night after the Lakers had lengthened the National Basketball Association's longest-ever winning streak to 29 games with a 106-87 victory over Buffalo Braves.

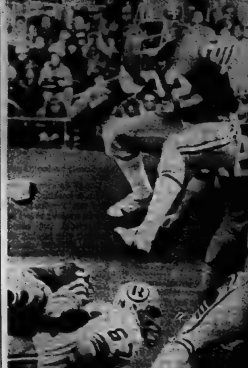
The SuperSonics, Los Angeles' next opponent in Seattle Thursday night, have been the victims three times during the streak, but Sharman reminded his listeners: They are the only team to beat us on the road this year and they are the 2 to 1 favorite.

What he didn't mention was that Seattle trails the Lakers by 14 games in the Pacific Division.

The Lakers' fantastic streak is overshadowing some other burgeoning winning skeins. Boston Celtics, down by 16 points in the third period, rallied to score 9 nine in a row with a 120-118 triumph over Philadelphia 76ers.

New York Knicks ran their string to seven straight victories from Detroit in the second quarter and trounced the Pistons 119-118. And Chicago's streak reached six as the Bulls battered back Milwaukee Bucks 116-105 with Bob Rule getting 27 points in the second half and outscoring Kareem Jabbar 41-38.

Elsewhere, Baltimore Bullets walloped Cincinnati Royals 118-97 and Cleveland Cavaliers whipped Portland Trailblazers 112-111.



In the ABA, it was Virginia 129 Carolina 126; Indiana 111 New Orleans 104 and Denver 114, Pittsburgh 104.

The expansion Braves gave the Lakers an argument most of the way and might have won but for 30 turnovers. A rash of Buffalo ball-handling mistakes helped the Lakers on a 25-6 blitz in the final 11 minutes of the first half, and another series of errors by the Braves late in the third as Los Angeles lead safe after it had developed to 89-82 with 9½ minutes to play.

Elmore Smith, Buffalo's seven-foot rookie, fouled out with 10-foot hooks over Laker centers Wilt Chamberlain all night.

Smith scored 17 points in the first quarter, when the Braves took a 34-27 lead, and wound up with 32 points and 20 rebounds, both game highs.

Jerry West led the Lakers with 24 points and Chamberlain added 23.

High Hurdler

Among competitors for the two-day met, up from about 1,700 last year, are 38 international athletes. Officials said "about 600 elementary students," were featured in the meet at the Saskatoon Arena.

Abigail Hoffman, 24, of Toronto, middle-distance Brit, 17, of Hussey, B.C., Penny Werthner of Ottawa and Doris Brown of Seattle head the list in women's events.

Miss Hoffman won a Pan-Am gold medal at the 1971 Games in Cali, Colombia, over the 800-metre distance, outrunning Miss Brown, who finished second, and Miss Werthner.

All three will renew their battle tonight in the invitational women's 800-metre race.

Miss Brown is co-holder of the world indoor record for 880 yards at two minutes 7.2 seconds and is world indoor record holder in the women's mile in 4:40.4.

Miss Brill, recently named co-winner of the Canadian female Athlete-of-the-Year award, will be featured in the high jump where she now ranks as the world's best. She is holder of the Pan-Am Games record—5 feet 9¾ inches.

In the Games here, she'll be facing stiff competition from Brenda Stafanson of the University of British Columbia and Patti Flath of Winnipeg.

Leading a group of 33 U.S. athletes are 800-metre specialist Tom Von Ruden of the Pacific Coast Track and Field Club and Joe Dench, Calif.; Dennis Phillips of Corvallis, Ore., pole vaulter Dave Stroud of Los Angeles, 300 metres; Martin McGreeff of Los Angeles, 600 yards and George Young of Casa Grande, Ariz., two miles.

Ack Ack--No Racing Hack

NEW YORK (AP) — Ack Ack, who won from 3½ furlongs to 1¼ miles and on grass and dirt, was named Horse of the Year for 1971 by the Daily announced Tuesday by three organizations connected with thoroughbred racing.

The three-year-old horse, who won seven straight stakes before illness forced retirement, received three first-place votes to swing the consensus choice in the balloting by governors of the National Turf Writers Association, editors and writers of the Morning Telegraph-Daily Racing Form and secretaries of racetracks belonging Associations' member tracks.

E. E. (Buddy) Fogelson, a Dallas lumber and real estate and his actress wife, Greer Garson, owners of Ack Ack, will be presented an Eclipse Award at the inaugural Sheaves Circle Dinner in New York Jan. 10.

Division winners also will be honored with Eclipse Awards at the dinner.

The winner of the three-year-old colt division was Canonero II, who came out of Venezuela to become the darling of the press with victories in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness. He failed in his Triple Crown bid by finishing fourth in the Belmont Stakes.

Other divisional winners were Riva Ridge, two-year old colt or gelding; Forward Gal, Acorn, two-year-old filly; Turn'in Thunders, three-year-old filly, Shuvee, four-year-old and upward filly or mare; Run The Gantlet, turf horse; Shadow Brook, steeplechase or hurdle horse, and Ack Ack, sprinter.

Each of the divisional winners received three first-place votes except Ack Ack as sprinter, and Shuvee, Duck Dance received a first-place ballot as best sprinter and Double Jay got one as best older filly or mare.

Ack Ack, a Kentucky bred by Battle Joined out of a Turn To mare, Fast Turn, finished second in his 1971 debut, a six-furlong race, then won the next seven. All eight races were in California.

In his second start Ack Ack won at seven furlongs, then at 1 1-16 miles and at 1¼ miles. On March 13 he won the Santa Anita Handicap and followed it with victories in the 3½-furlong Express Handicap and the 1¼-mile American Handicap on the grass.

In the final start of his career Ack Ack carried 134 pounds, the highest impost ever assigned at Hollywood Park, in the 1¼-mile Billy Gold Cup. He won by 9 lengths and was timed in 1:50 4-5.

The career earnings for the Charlie Whittingham-trained horse were $533,641 almost $400,000 coming in 1971.

Kapp Making Movie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It snows on Mt. Shasta even more than it does in Minnesota around playoff time, but that doesn't stop quarterback Joe Kapp from keeping his throwing arm limber.

"I'm getting a pretty good spiral with the snowballs," said Kapp by telephone from his movie set. "But you throw too many spirals and you get interceptes."

Kapp, two years ago voted the outstanding player in professional football, is taking time off from his bar in Vancouver to shoot his first movie. Meanwhile, his lawyer is wrangling with the National Football League over the legality of his non-standard contract declinically known as a Memorandum of Agreement—with New England Patriots.

NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle has ruled that Kapp must remain ineligible until he signs an orthodox contract with football's exclusive broker of the pair a detached retina in his right eye. He played in the first game of the regular season, but has missed all games since.

MOSCOW (AP) — Vasily Alexeyev, European and world weightlifting champion in the super-heavyweight class, has been named Soviet Athlete of the Year. The poll by the Federation of Sports Writers of the U.S.S.R., was announced Tuesday by Tass, the official news agency.

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Hockey League, which early in November awarded franchises to Long Island, N.Y., and Atlanta, said Tuesday it will meet the owners by the end of the week.

"I would hope the announcement could be made by Thursday noon," NHL president Clarence Campbell said after the league's expansion committee weighed bids from three Long Island groups and another from Atlanta at a six-hour meeting.

William Putnam, who was president of the original group that purchased the Philadelphia franchise when the league first expanded six years ago, heads the Atlanta bid.

Atlanta will play in a newly-constructed 15,500-seat coliseum.

Roy Boe, president of Long Island Sports Inc., owner of New York Nets of the American Basketball Association, is being challenged by two other groups for the suburban New York franchise which will occupy the 15,700-seat Nassau Coliseum, scheduled to open in the spring.

Thomas Dewey Jr., son of the former governor of New York state and a Wall Street investment broker, heads one group, and millionaire real estate developer William Levitt was also one bid.

Ullman Scores Three In Win Over Penguins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seventeen years in the big leagues haven't dulled the performance of Norm Ullman. To the contrary, his value appears to be on the rise.

Ullman, 36 last Sunday, scored three goals Tuesday night, including one into an empty net while steering Toronto Maple Leafs past Pittsburgh Penguins 4-2 in the only scheduled National Hockey League game.

"Tonight the Leafs return home to face St. Louis Blues while California Golden Seals visit Montreal Canadiens, Philadelphia Flyers are in New York against the high-flying Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks entertain Boston Bruins, Vancouver Canucks Wings play the Sabres at Buffalo and Toronto Canucks take on the Kings in Los Angeles.

It's been two years since the slick Leaf centre scored three goals in one game but he's the first to admit Tuesday night's production was anything but luck.

Tenacious forechecking and playmaking has been Ullman's lot in life with Toronto, and it was evident in his play against Pittsburgh.

He was on the spot to cash in on Denis Dupere's rebound to open the scoring in the first period, tipped in Jim Dorey's blast from the blueline in the second, then slid in Paul Henderson's pessoral to close the scoring with 18 seconds left in the game.

"The second goal actually was in self-defence," admitted the Provost, Alta., native after the game. "I saw the puck coming and was trying to get out of the way.

"I'll be one and deflected into the net" behind goaltender Les Binkley.

Ullman's third score of the night was his 400th career goal.

Referee Wally Harris handed out few penalties in the rugged, wide-open game witnessed by 11,138 fans, a record weekday crowd for Pittsburgh.

Elsewhere in the NHL Tuesday, Detroit pared its roster to 20 players by sending Winger Al McDonald and Brian Conacher, McDonald, 35, was assigned to Fort Wayne, Telegram club in the American League while Conacher, 30-year-old son of former NHL star Lionel Conacher, went to Fort Worth Wings of the Central League.

Tonight's big game sends two of the hottest clubs in the NHL into a showdown at Chicago Stadium.

Boston has lost only one of its last 19 games, and Chicago is on an eight-game win streak—longest in the NHL this season.

The Bruins have had little luck in Chicago recently, losing their last five games at the Stadium.

Boston coach Tom Johnson named veteran goalie Ed Johnston to face the Hawks in a bid to get the Bruins off to a good start on their seven-game road trip.

The game also brings a match-up of two of the current shooters in the league—Boston centre Phil Esposito, the leader with 29 goals, and Chicago winger Bobby Hull, who brought his season total to 25 with 18 in the last seven games.

Morton Switched Roles With Cowboy Rival

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas fans voted him their "favorite Cowboy," but that was a year ago.

Now, 12 months after he quarterbacked the Cowboys to a National Conference championship, Craig Morton sits in the stands alone.

More precisely, he stands in them, conferring with coach Tom Landry and watching the action from the bench while Roger Staubach does the quarterbacking.

"We're winning, aren't we?" Morton asked as he and the rest of the Cowboys went through a workout in preparation for their National Football League NFC title rematch with San Francisco 49ers Sunday at Texas Stadium. "That's the important thing."

The personable, soft-spoken seven-year veteran, who let the No. 1 job in Staubach midway in the season, expressed mixed emotions about his back-up role.

"I want to play," said Morton, who directed the Cowboys to a 17-10 triumph over San Francisco a year ago and came close to doing the same in the Super Bowl before Baltimore Colts eked out a 16-13 decision.

"Any man who said he didn't want to play wouldn't be true to himself or anybody else," Morton said. "And I wouldn't be telling the truth if I didn't say I want to be in there awful bad.

"But let's face it: Roger's doing the job. He's brought us up to where we are today, so I'm not going to try and win him."

It was on Oct. 31, after the Cowboys had lost to Chicago Bears, that Morton became No. 2 behind Staubach.

Prior to that, Dallas didn't have a No. 1, as Landry decided in a pre-season game between the Bears, shuttling his quarterbacks in and out on alternate plays.

After that debacle, Landry—calling the plays from the bench as he had all year—went with Staubach. The result was a 16-13 victory over St. Louis Cardinals, followed by seven more victories, including last year's 24-3 romp against Minnesota Vikings in the NFC semi-final.

"I don't really know why. I lost the job," Morton said. "Coach Landry just never explained it to me." But a check of the statistics shows that while Morton's were good, Staubach's were better.

"Now I just stay in shape, keep up with the training, like studying and everything. Just as you never know who might though I was No. 1. After all, happen. . . ."

Hornets Win Second Game

KARLSTAD, Sweden (Reutr) — Gall Hornets defeated Farjestad of Sweden 5-3 Tuesday night in an Ahearne Cup hockey tournament game here.

The Hornets skated to their second consecutive victory in the tournament on two goals apiece by Dennis Hextall, Red Pete Brennan and a single marker by Bruce Reiser. The Canadian and Swedish squads are tied 1-1 after the first period and 2-2 after the second. Then the Hornets broke loose.

Kent-Erik Andersson had two goals and Hans Ake Rita each got the other for Farjestad.

The game was fairly cleanly played, with the defending Allen Cup senior champions picking up three minor penalties and the Swedish team one. Attendance was 6,431.

Gall deged AIK of Stockholm 3-2 earlier in the opening game.

Spartakaka of Moscow, favorites to carry off the cup, showed their class when they crushed Djurgarden 14-4.

The Swedes led 3-2 in the second period but the Russians put some more speed into the game and scored three goals in 1:40 flat.

AIK downed Finland's IFK Helsinki 4-1 in Helsinki.

Stewart Warner netminder Wayne Parrinder turns aside the scoring thrust of Hospital defenceman Wayne Craig in Gas House Hockey League action Tuesday night. Craig managed to even matters later in the game by scoring his team's first goal en route to a 6-1 win over Stewart Warner. The win by the Hospital kept them in a group of seven teams bunched within three points of the league lead.

Wilson Concrete Takes Top Spot In Gas House Hockey Scramble

Wilson Concrete flagally managed to salvage its top of the clogged Gas House Hockey standings with a 3-2 win over Cassidy Electric Tuesday. The victory moved Wilsons one point ahead of Jim's Flowers, who have held top spot for most of the season. No less than seven teams are jammed within three points of top spot in the 11-team loop.

Goals by Keith Parks, Vaughn Cunningham and Carl Hainey carried the cement men into first place. Gary Richardson and Bill Dunn managed replies for the tenth place Cassidy team.

In other games played last night the Teachers and the Intell moved into a third place deadlock on the strength of 5-1 and 4-1 wins over Wannamakers Esso and the Mustangs. The Hospital remained in contention for the league pennant by subduing a stubborn Stewart Warner entry 6-1.

A hat trick effort by Dave Bell helped the Teachers to their 5-1 romp over Wannamakers, making them the top offensive team in the league with a team total of 44 goals so far this season.

Paul McAllister and Brian MacKenzie each had a goal and assist for the winners with single tallies going to Bruce Rocicot, Paul Brown and Tom Gauthier. For Wannamakers it was Ron Urch getting the lone score.

The Intell cut skated a short-staffed Mustang team only eight players to their 4-1 win. Fred Stiebspaced the Printers with goal and two assists while Ray Summers added a goal and one helper. Other scorers for the winners were Maurice Switzer and Dan Forstiman. The losers' lone tally went to Eric Maher.

Stewart Warner appears to be on the verge of an upset, holding a 1-0 lead after 30 minutes of play, but the Hospital rebounded to take a easy 6-1 verdict.

Don Murphy was best for the winners with two goals and two assists, while George Jacklin and Wayne Cox notched one of each, and Phil Knutson picked up a goal and two helpers. Van Zeelen scored the other goal for the Hospital, while Bob Turner counted for Stewart Warner.

Athlete Injured

A well known Belleville athlete is in critical condition at Kingston General Hospital following a Christmas Day mishap.

Greg Scarlett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Scarlett, of 20 Third Street suffered a fractured skull in a fall, Saturday.

The 18-year-old athlete has been a member of the BCI and Centennial football teams, the Western Tire juvenile hockey all-stars and the city's junior lacrosse entry during his other athletic activities.

Curlers Split Second Round

TORONTO (CP) — The final round in the three-day Ontario Junior curling championship was to be played today with Guelph undefeated in men's play and Etobicoke carrying an identical 4-0 won-loss mark in women's action.

But the most impressive rink has been the Sioux Lookout girls quartette skipped by Gayle Bower, with sisters Dayle, Vicki and Denyse, lead; and Pat Anderson, second.

The girls, with a 3-1 mark, are distinguishable by their unique caps. Gayle's has four stripes, Dayle's has three, Pat's two and Denyse's one.

"It has been hard for us," said Sioux coach Karl Johnson, a high school geography teacher. "Our curling rink in Sioux Lookout burned down two years ago.

"The only place we have now is a radar base 20 miles away."

The Sioux girls rolled over Kingston 9-6 Tuesday in a marathon mailing match that lasted three hours.

The Kingston foursomy com prises four Queen's University students—skip Helen MacRae of Oakville, vice Heather Graham of Fenlon Falls, second Lynda Munroe of Minnisaunte, and lead Jane Poulson of Toronto.

Etobicoke led the women's section followed by Sioux Lookout (3-1) and Guelph and Kingston, each with two wins and two losses. Shelburne was fifth (1-3) and Sault Ste. Marie last with no wins in four games.

Trailing Guelph in men's action were Weston (3-1) ,Thunder Bay tied with Bedeville (2-2) North Bay (1-3) and Timmins (0-4).

Imperials Beat Tournament Hosts

ORILLIA (CP) — Four teams remain in contention today after two full day's play in the 8th annual Orillia midget hockey tournament.

Tuesday was a day of surprises: The host club was eliminated, the favorites received a scare and two players were ruled ineligible to play.

Belleville eliminated Orillia 3-1 to end the home club's hopes and the body favored Allen Park team from Michigan was chased to the wire by Alex. Allen Park finally won 4-3 after two overtime periods.

Allen Park and Richmond Hill are tied for first place with 3-0 records while Belleville is 2-1 and Hamilton 1-1. Allen Park and Richmond Hill play this afternoon while Belleville meets Hamilton. Winners meet in the final tonight.

Tuesday's results: Ajax 3 Brantford 2, Milton 4 Newmarket 2, Hamilton 4 Kitchener 1, Burlington 6 Trenton 0, Richmond Hill 4 Burlington 0.

Canadian Schoolboys Barred

HELSINKI (AP) — A team of Canadian schoolboy hockey players, barred from making a tour of Finland, may play some "exercise" games.

Ottawa East Voyageurs, boys nine and 10 years old, were forbidden from playing scheduled matches against Finnish youngsters after the International Ice Hockey Federation threatened reprisals because the tour was arranged without IIHF authorization.

IIHF President Bunny Ahearne threatened to take the 1974 world hockey championships away from Finland if the tour went on.

The visitors did not learn of the decision until they arrived in Helsinki Tuesday. George Stobbe, captain of the IFK Helsinki team, said afterwards: "Real club matches are out of the question for the Voyageurs." But he added that training will be arranged for them, and some "exercise" matches may be played.

Thurlow Wins Fourth Straight

The Thurlow Auto bantams stretched their win streak consecutive win this season with an 8-2 decision over the Belleville Real Estate Board house league entry.

Tie Sales Soar

MIAMI (AP) — There's been big boom in tie sales for Garo Yepremian since he kicked his winning field goal in pro football's longest game. But the hi-Miami Dolphin kicker knows it's a guy like Bubba Smith can cause an instant recession.

"People who are selling my ties tell me they're very happy," Yepremian said today before the Dolphins' workout Fr today's American Conference championship game against Baltimore Colts.

"A lot of people are calling stores ordering my ties", They are doing so after Saturday's 37-yard field goal produced a 27-24 victory over Kansas City Chiefs after 22 minutes, 40 seconds of sudden-death overtime. That kick made the five-foot-seven soccer-style booter the No. 1 local celebrity.

That has meant immediate increase in sales for Yepremian's business—since he began following the 1967 season when he was cut by Detroit Lions.

"When I lost that job, I started making ties," said Yepremian, a Cypriot of Armenian heritage who left the island during the civil war in 1958 and settled in London with his family.

"My parents had always been in the fabric business," Yepremian explained.

"When we arrived in London, I went to work in a factory as a cutter making tunics for the guards at Buckingham Palace. Then Detroit cut me, I started in the business."

Yepremian originally made the ties himself but now has people making them for him although he still picks out the fabrics to be used. Business sometimes rises and falls with his kicks, so his current concern is Jim Smith, mammoth defensive end of the Colts.

Yepremian kicked the winning field goal in a 17-14 victory over Baltimore the first time the teams met this season, but had one blocked by the 6-foot-7, 295-pound Smith during a 14-3 win in their second meeting.

Truax Likes Shuttle

DALLAS (AP) — Billy (The Tree) Truax just thought he wouldn't like being a messenger boy.

"I said I wouldn't do it but I shouldn't have ever said never," Truax said Tuesday.

Tight end Truax, obtained in an off-season trade with the Los Angeles Rams for flanker Lance Rentzel, plays every other offensive down as Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry calls the plays for quarterback Roger Staubach.

Mike Ditka and Truax again will alternate Sunday against San Francisco in the National Conference title match at Texas Stadium.

"I love being a messenger now," Truax said. "It might add five years to my career."

Nunley Nice Guy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Frank Nunley of San Francisco 49ers is damaging the tough-guy image of National Football League middle linebackers.

The 6-foot-2, 230-pound lad with a soft round face that is usually smiling. He has a slightly high-pitched voice and his team-mates call him Fudge Hammer.

"He's so sweet but his speed," they decided after he broke into the starting lineup two years ago.

Nunley, 28, will be calling the 49ers' defensive signals Sunday against Dallas Cowboys at the Giants next for the second consecutive year in the National Football Conference championship game.

Frank called a great game, perhaps a perfect game, against Washington," said Charlie Krueger, the 34-year-old tackle in his 13th year as a defensive starter.

Nunley also made two of the biggest plays of the game as the 49ers beat Washington 24-20 [illegible] to advance in the NFL playoffs. He blocked a field goal in the second quarter and tackled running back Larry Brown for a loss on a fourth-and-inches play at the 49ers 11-yard line in the third period.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

Canadian resident who were traveling outside Canada for 12 days or more can now claim duty and tax-free entry of goods valued at not more than $100 once each calendar year. This exemption includes up to 200 cigarettes, 50 cigars, two pounds of manufactured tobacco and 40 ounces of alcoholic drinks. To be exempted from duty, goods obtained in Continental North America, including Panama and the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, must accompany you. Goods acquired elsewhere, including the Bahamas, Bermuda, the West Indies and Hawaii, may be claimed under this exemption even if they are not in your accompanying baggage. Cigarettes, cigars, and other tobacco products or alcoholic beverages may not be declared as goods to follow, and must be brought with you to qualify as exempted goods.

If you have been outside Canada not less than 48 hours, you can claim a $25 exemption once in each quarterly period, starting Jan. 1; April 1; July 1; and October 1. A $25 claim may include alcoholic beverages not exceeding 40 ounces, up to 50 cigars, 200 cigarettes and two pounds of manufactured tobacco. All goods imported under the $25 exemption must accompany you in hand or checked baggage. You can't claim the $25 exemption at the same time with the $100 duty-free exemption.

Goods on which you claim exemption must be for your personal or household use. They may be souvenirs or gifts; but goods purchased on behalf of other persons or for sale, or for use in business may not be entered under these provisions.

An exemption may not be pooled with another person's to cover one article, nor may it be transferred to another person. Remember, whether goods are purchased, received as gifts or otherwise acquired abroad or obtained without payment of duties and taxes upon departure from Canada and later brought back, they must be declared and entered at customs when you return. This applies to repairs made to your car, boat or aircraft, too. When you claim an exemption you may be asked to produce evidence confirming the length of your visit outside Canada. You may, while visiting abroad, send casual gifts excluding advertising matter, tobacco or alcohol, to friends in Canada, provided the value of a gift does not exceed $10 in Canadian funds. Gifts valued in excess of $10 in any one case, are subject to duty and taxes on the full value.

If you take pride in your car's appearance, a parking lot is a poor place to leave it. Nothing short of leaving your car at home in the garage will guarantee it won't become a beat-up victim of parking. But you can reduce the risk by using a little caution. Here are a few tips:

Avoid parking in front of high activity stores such as supermarkets and department stores. These draw large numbers of customers, most of them trying to get a space right near the doors. A parking space in front of a specialty shop is safer. Shop plaza carts and the carry-out boxes that operate them are another danger. If they are careless they can scratch your car when they try to get a loaded cart between two cars.

Don't be afraid to walk a few extra steps. The exercise will do you good and will preserve the good looks of your car. The far side of a parking lot is usually uncrowded and probably being used by others who care for their cars.

Stores dealing in large items are especially dangerous. The shopper coming out with a heavy or bulky package is all likely to be thinking of your-car while struggling to load his car.

Protect at least one side of your car-whenever you can. Park next to a wall or light post. If a protective barrier isn't available, take the widest diagonal space and select a safe side of the spot. Stay away from battered cars with a lot of dents and scratches. If the owner isn't concerned about the condition of his car you can be sure he won't worry about yours. Park next to a four-door sedan if given a choice. Doors on two-door cars are wider and therefore have a longer reach when opened. Plan your shopping trips during slow hours. Weekends are usually bad times to park and shop. One of the worst places to leave your car is in a lot with parking attendants. The more cars they can squeeze in a lot, the more money they make. And in most cases, owners of these lots aren't liable for damage to your car unless you can prove negligence.

A Clockwork Orange Is Named Best Movie of Year by Critics

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Film Critics have named A Clockwork Orange as the best movie of 1971, and Jane Fonda and Gene Hackman best actress and actor of the year.

Miss Fonda was selected for her portrayal of a prostitute in Klute and Hackman for his role as the narcotics detective in the French Connection, based on the real-life adventures of New York Detective Edward Egan.

A Clockwork Orange also won the best-director award for Stanley Kubrick while the best screenwriting award, given to the film, not the writers, went to the Last Picture Show.

The latter movie, directed by Peter Bogdanovich, placed second in the best movie category with the French Connection and Sunday Bloody Sunday placing third and fourth respectively.

The awards will be presented Jan. 23.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Jesus Christ-Superstar was the best-selling long-playing record of 1971.

The Three Dog Night's Joy to the World was the most popular single record.

The Los Angeles Times based these rankings Tuesday on a compilation of weekly sales charts from the three top U.S. music magazines, Billboard, Cash Box and Record World.

The newspaper said all three magazines were agreed on these top choices except Record World in the single-record selection which recorded a tie between Joy to the World and George Harrison's My Sweet Lord.

In the country and western field, the top album seller was Charley Pride Sings Heart Songs and in soul albums Isaac Hayes' To Be Continued.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Keefe Brasselle pleaded guilty Tuesday to charges of assault with a deadly weapon in connection with a barroom shooting in which another man was wounded.

Brasselle, who starred in the Eddie Cantor Story, initially pleaded not guilty last Sept. 7.

The 47-year-old actor changed his mind before the start of his trial Tuesday. Sentencing was set for Jan. 24.

Brasselle was arrested July 10 after Robert B. Crawford, 29, of Los Angeles was shot once in the chest with a .32-calibre automatic during an argument in a bar. Crawford recovered.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Loretta Young testified Tuesday that the National Broadcasting Co. should pay her $1.3 million for re-releasing television programs showing her in out-of-date clothes and hair styles.

The 58-year-old actress said she authorized NBC to release in foreign countries reruns of the Loretta Young Show series in which she appeared in a fictional role and thus could be expected to wear clothing of a period appropriate to the story.

But she told a Superior Court jury she sued when NBC released segments show of her as herself in the role of host. Of that role she said: "I wanted to present myself as a well-dressed, fashionable woman.

Viewers of foreign re-runs might not know how long ago the shows were made and would think her unfashionable, she testified. The series was broadcast in the United States from 1953 to 1961.

NBC lawyers acknowledged that the original contract with Miss Young prohibited using the host segments, but they said an accountant who kept Miss Young's power of attorney later gave permission to use them.

The trial continues.

Rylstone Personals

RYLSTONE — On a very windy morning recently, Tom Thomson narrowly missed being hit by a falling tree. He had entered the garage and started his car, ready to leave for work, when an old spruce tree, a landmark in front of the Thomson home, blew down directly across the doorway, pinning Tom and his car inside. With the help of his father, Clarence Thomson and his chain saw, the top of the tree was removed, so the car could back up. A short distance down the road, Tom was stopped again while he pulled another fallen tree off the road.

Gloves Off in Showdown Fight Over Farm Marketing Boards

OTTAWA (CP) — The gloves came off in the Commons Tuesday night as the two-year fight over the national farm marketing boards fell resumed in what normally is a winter holiday period.

More than 150 MPs returned to the 264-seat House in a sarcastic mood after a four-day Christmas weekend. Usual practice is for the Commons to rise before Christmas until, at the minimum, several days into the new year.

Attempts to reach a compromise on the bill condemned but party sources reported little progress in efforts to smooth its way.

The House resumed on a hazy note Tuesday, with members of all opposition parties congratulating Prime Minister Trudeau on the birth of his first child, a son born Christmas Day.

But bitter tones began to prevail as the House turned from this to the actual business at hand.

They reached their height as Murray McBride (L—Lanark-Renfrew-Carleton), a former United Church minister, spoke on the bill.

He accused Alberta rancher Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot), major opponent of the legislation, of fighting it on behalf of wealthy beef producers.

Mr. McBride said Mr. Horner "seems to be the spokesman for the Canadian Cattlemens' Association.

Mr. Horner, denying the allegation, said Mr. McBride is "a cheap s.o.b. the United Church is . . . glad to be wrike-".

The Alberta MP threatened to keep the House in session throughout January as a flurry of points of order and questions of privilege flew back and forth before a embattled Acting Speaker Prosper Boulanger.

The proposed legislation would enable the creation of national marketing boards for various farm products. Mr. Horner led a battle to have cattle and calves exempted.

The government is ready to accept this as a way of getting the bill passed, but the compromise has brought New Democratic opposition.

The McBride speech marked a rural Ontario pitch against the compromise, boosting up reports that both within Liberal and Conservative ranks some party line positions are becoming frazzled on the issue of excluding cattle and calves.

The big western argument against inclusion is that there are more numerous eastern cattle-men would foreshadow policy to the detriment of the western producers, fewer in number but of far more head of cattle each and heavily dependent on this single commodity.

Mr. McBride, saying the bill should not be emasculated, said the cattlemen fear the "voice of the majority" and are fighting the bill for this reason.

It was wrong for the next producers to be "lumped into the herding . . . there is nothing but evil intent on the part of the government or people like myself."

If the government was to be condemned on any account, it was only for its slowness in bringing in such legislation.

Replying to Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming), who said the bill would wipe out small farmers and concentrate farming to a few big hands, Mr. McBride said: "All we sive to do is block this bill for a few more years and there will not be many farms."

Don Mazankowski (PC—Vegreville), Lorne Albertan, and George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) urged a two-price system in which food subsidies would be sold abroad at one price and in Canada at another.

William Knight (NDP—Assiniboia), at 26 the youngest and newest MP, said the bill was saying: "Sell no matter what the price, no matter what the cost.

This wouldn't get the farmer anywhere.

" . . . I think the answer we gave to this particular outburst of violence has been somewhat full."

The government imposed the stringent War Measures Act and sent troops to Quebec in the wake of kidnappings.

On the U.S. economic moves, Mr. Trudeau said his limited war in December visit to President Richard Nixon in Washington—despite opposite pressures that he should have been much more—said the result was that "we got out of it exactly what we wanted in monetary terms."

Trudeau Says His Government Has Solved Two Crises

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau says his Liberal government has met and solved two major crises since 1968—the October terrorist activities of 1970 and the economic situation caused by United States protectionist policies announced last summer.

"We have met them both, we have solved them both, and we have governed in the meantime," the prime minister said Tuesday in an interview on the TV television network.

During the hour-long program, under his government, C. nada has done better in fighting inflation than any other industrial-ized country and has increased trade to record levels.

A byproduct of these actions was somewhat higher unemployment, but at least the country "had the best of one world" with only "perhaps the bad part since 1968 and the good part of the other."

Throughout his time in office he had "tried to strengthen Parliament, but I have not tried to weaken the executive, and I don't apologize for that."

Asked if he will run ahead at the next election campaign, expected sometime next year, Mr. Trudeau said he intends to approach the people much the way he did in 1968, not with specific promises such as "more dollars of old-age pensions" but rather to indicate how his party would lead the country into the rest of the 1970s.

He added: "I have no intention of not running, if God keeps me alive."

Mr. Trudeau was asked whether the Front de Libération du Quebec is finished as a dangerous force in Canadian politics.

"Well, yes," he replied.

The FLQ is the separatist-terrorist group responsible for the kidnapping of British diplomat James Cross and the kidnap-murder of Pierre Laporte, Quebec labor minister, in October.

" . . . I can't guarantee that there won't be other cells of the FLQ which will again try and create mischief," Mr. Trudeau said.

But he noted that Pierre Vallieres, a former terrorist associate of FLQ revolutionary tactics, had said recently that violence was not the answer because "you can't get away with it with this government."

Class 2 Pap Test Rating Doesn't Mean Cancer Present

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson? Just what is a "Class 2" category in a Pap test? Would it be advisable to go for another test before a six-month period has elapsed? —P.E.H.

This is a question which evidently bothers a great many women, so let's answer it.

The Pap test is used primarily to detect cancer of the cervix (neck of the womb, or uterus) in an early stage when it is still highly curable.

The ultimate goal, therefore, is to detect malignant cells in any exist.

But changes in cells are not an all-or-nothing matter. This Pap test are graded. Class 1 through Class 4 or Class 5 means the cells are normal. Class 4 means cells are malignant—a cancer is starting.

The other two classes indicate cells that aren't totally normal but aren't specifically malignant, either. The term "atypical cells," meaning not typical, denotes this.

Thus a Class 2 report means that some sort of change is detected in the cells, but they aren't malignant.

Does a change in the cells mean that cancer is bound to develop? Not at all. True, there usually will be changes in cells before actual cancer develops, but there can be changes that never will lead to malignancy.

For example, Class 2 changes can occur at certain times in the menstrual cycle, or while a patient is on birth control pills, or if there is undue irritation or inflammation of the cervix.

When a physician sees a Class 2 report, he puts the information together with any other observations he has made—the client's age, history and so on—and judges how long it should be before another test should be made. Let's say he says six months, which will still leave plenty of time even if in the interim the cells change to Class 3 or even Class 4.

Ordering another test too soon may not permit enough time to change while very the cells are progressing—moving on toward Class 3, or back toward Class 1. A test too soon just doesn't tell anything new.

Now to answer your specific question: There's no reason why you should not ask for another Pap test sooner than six months, if that will put your mind at ease.

But don't try to have it too soon—say, the next month—because that very likely will be a waste of money.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What are the possibilities of becoming pregnant after having a tubal pregnancy operation? (The tubes were closed.)

If chances are slim, why? Once they are open, why can't they stay that way? If they close up again, is there any other way for to have a child? I am 34, with no children. —N.S.

Generally speaking, your chances are about 50 per cent or less. It depends on the reason for the operation—that is, how (so did the tubes come to be closed)? If the tubes were closed because of salpingitis (infection of the tubes), your chances are slimmer than if you had your tubes tied and then reopened.

Scar tissue, kinking, or sealing of the repaired tubes are the principal reason why the reopened tubes do not necessarily stay that way.

In some cases, a vinyl tube may be used to keep the Fallopian tubes open, but even that does not guarantee success. I'm sorry to be so pessimistic, but that's the way it is.

Note to Mrs. I.M.C.: Whatever seeing causes colors around lights at night can be a sign of glaucoma, it isn't necessarily that. It can happen when cataracts are beginning to form, too.

Jamieson Defends Record In Safeguarding Airliners

OTTAWA (CP) — In the wake of the first successful hijacking of a Canadian jet, Transport Minister Don Jamieson said he is target Tuesday for a welter of Commons charges and questions.

When the dust had settled, the minister, backed by the Liberal majority, had withstood a Conservative motion challenging his veracity, and stuck to his guns about the existence and operation of such devices as metal detectors to screen passenger baggage at Canadian airports.

There are such devices in use, Mr. Jamieson said, repeating in essence a statement he made to the House in November, that he would not say how many or where because this could endanger the traveling public.

James A. McFarlh (PC—St. John's East) claimed information in his possession showed that, contrary to Mr. Jamieson's statement to the House on Nov. 18, no protective devices were in operation at Canadian airports.

The Library Corner

By O. D.

In the words of Lady Tweedsmuir, Evelyn Eaton, in "Historic Haunts: houses are pulled down, new roads are made and the aspect of the country side changes completely, sometimes in a short time."

The Women's Institutes of Ontario have undertaken to compile village history books or community history books.

Farm histories, family histories, church and Associated histories, all together are the basis for Community history that is as fascinating as it is valuable.

Some of these histories have, through the kind co-operation of their compilers, been collected. Copies are being filed in reference centres and libraries fortunate enough to be able to add them.

Belleville library has recently shelved in the Reference Library such volumes as "A History of The Village of Tweed and A History of the Township of Elzevir". Another recent volume of Canadian history which should interest many is the book by Hilda C. Evens, "Lives of the Helen Farever. This volume, printed in Picton in 1970, is an account of movement and migration of a group of Palatine Germans to England, to Ireland, to New York and finally to Upper Canada. They were an excellent group of whom this estimate is given: "As a company, for energy, strength, and worth of moral and religious character, they were scarce ever equalled, never excelled."

Many recent history chronicles in an equally interesting fashion. The Canada Year Book for 1970-1971 is a good volume to study. It contains indexed surveys of Canada's year in Parliament and politics, (federal and provincial). External affairs, science, education, theatre, religion, mass media and sport 1970 was eventful for Canada in federal political affairs there was the FLQ crisis, and more constitutional conferences. On the Govt. Scene Don McKeough's Department of Municipal Affairs and Its Design for Development: Toronto Centred Region. A year make interesting perusal under the editorship of John Saywell.

Another new volume for the reference library is Greenman's Guide to Wines, Spirits and Beers by Harold J. Berman. a complete standard reference book on every type of alcoholic beverage — when it comes from, how it is made its history, special characteristics and taste. In addition all aspects of liquor store management and hotel service are covered.

For the help/gist of a different interest, Scott's Standard postage Stamp Catalogue this year in three volumes, is on the reference department shelves and receiving regular attention.

Business people will find recent editions of Financial Post directories in the reference room.

What the Stars Say

THURSDAY, DEC. 30

Your birthday today: Be prepared to keep going at your peculiar pace through a normal year of continued steady work, building good will, seniority, a record of responsibility. Today's natives are frequently lucky and often need no advice on serious decisions.

Aries (March 21-April 19): It's just as well if year-end celebrations start early. Avoid not but essential routines today. Relax early.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Force no issues, remain screne. Last minute hikes in year-end financial moves are very irritating.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Be philosophical on the confusion of the day, remember nobody knows much more than you do about where things ought to be or who should settle decisions.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Once over lightly today! Don't touch on obvious high spots, nothing really serious or related to your career.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Assume a placid surface—or even that you are gone from your plaques of work or business for the day. Holiday may save needless confusion.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Wait and watch, avoid unusual and varying wild starters. There's little to be done beyond routine and clearance of neglected chores.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your attention is drawn more than usual to the subtle nuances of social earnings. Make a commitment; decide on a definite plan

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Advice may not get results for months. If that will put your mind at ease.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The future is beginning to be a reality to be the bigger brighter pain.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take any opening for discussion, verify your information, but now your plans fit in with those of others.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What you can do early is the way easily gets farther from reach as the mood of the day develops. Be tolerant of the excesses of others.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Remember the subtle nuances of old story many times could see how it has gradually shifted to a more human expression.

Opening lead—king of clubs.

Let's say you're in four hearts and West leads the king of clubs. Assume you win with the ace. East signaling with the jack, and that you proceed to draw three rounds of trumps, ending in dummy.

Now is an effort to lead East from taking the lead, you lead the deuce of diamonds. Here's finesse. Unfortunately. West wins with the queen, leads a low club to your hand, and East returns a spade. It doesn't matter whether you play the jack or the king; either way you go down one.

If you played the hand this way, you could certainly say the gods had failed to smile on you, but, even so, you would have to take a share of the blame. The card fault would lie in your play at trick one, when you should play the four of clubs from dummy, not the ace.

By declining the opening lead you would make it next to impossible for East ever to take the lead for a spade return through the K-J. East is clearly the dangerous opponent and he can be completely blocked out from grabbing the lead in clubs by the simple expedient of ducking the king of clubs.

Assume West continues with a second club lead to beat he can do—You win with the ace; draw trumps, and lead the nine of diamonds from dummy and finesse.

West, of course, you are sure of the contract. In the actual case, the nine would lose to the queen. West would find himself bucking a stone wall. Whatever he returned, you would be able to discard a spade on dummy's fourth diamond and set the final tally would show that your only losers were a spade, a diamond and a club.

Tomorrow: Triple choice.

Metro May Send Garbage To Pickering by Railroad

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto's garbage may be transported by rail to Pickering, a community just west of here, by next June, Environment Minister George Kerr said Tuesday.

He said the Ontario government has been negotiating for the last six months with an unused railway to cart garbage in specially-designed railway cars.

"It's getting to the point now where the idea looks better and better every day," Mr. Kerr said in an interview. "The Pickering area could serve as a pilot project for what may be an attractive new industry."

He said the project, still under discussion, calls for future garbage sites located up to 100 miles from Toronto where new city garbage could be hauled in enclosed railway cars.

Metropolitan Toronto has been buying quarry land in Pickering Township for more than a year to provide a 1,200-acre landfill site. A rezoning application is under consideration by Pickering Council.

Metropolitan Toronto has been ordered by his Department to shut down two of its eight incinerators by June.

If the plan to use railways proved as workable as it looked in theory, Mr. Kerr said, it would be expanded to include new sites within 100 miles of Toronto. Other communities in the area between Oshawa and Niagara Falls also could be invited to use the garbage train.

Mr. Kerr said garbage could be picked up at railway siding points within the city and hauled away to distant sites. On arrival, he said, it would be shredded, recycled or otherwise treated and then dumped in quarries or barren sites for land fill.

"No community would want somebody else's garbage dumped in their backyard at first look," he said. "But if it is shown that it creates no smell, no pollution and perhaps fills in an old quarry in an area needed for recreation, it will be an attractive new industry."

No Slowdown Being Planned To Fight Inflation Says P.M.

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has no intention of slowing down the economy in order to fight inflation, Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday.

At the same time, he told George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) in the Commons, the government is taking seriously a warning by the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development about continuing strong inflationary pressures in Canada.

The prime minister said the government is aware of the "ever-present danger" of inflation though its record in fighting inflation had been reasonably successful even in OECD terms.

"We will keep watching the situation."

Mr. Hees asked whether the prime minister could give an assurance that the government does not intend to slow down the economy to fight inflation, "and thereby allow an unemployment rate of six per cent or higher."

"Yes," replied the prime minister.

Pilot Says Toronto Airport Adequate for Present Needs

FERGUS, Ont. (CP) — An Air Canada pilot said Tuesday that building a new airport to serve the Metropolitan Toronto area would be a waste of $1 billion of taxpayers' money.

Captain Dave Muckle also charged that municipal politicians are putting their own interests ahead of airline passenger safety.

He told a service club in this community 12 miles northeast of Guelph that Toronto International Airport could handle more flights if all runways were used. However, he said, use of some runways is restricted because of complaints of noise by homeowners in the area.

Quinte District Will Get Four Inches of Snow, Then Rain

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Snowfall of approximately four inches — with considerably more if it doesn't turn to rain — was forecast today for the Quinte district, the duty forecaster at Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, said late this morning "as looks like bad weather all day with the possibility of freezing rain" this afternoon or evening.

Cause of the precipitation is a storm from southwest of Detroit which is sweeping across the lower lakes, dumping a mixture of rain and snow over most of southern and central Ontario.

Coupled with forecasts of high winds the storm is expected to dump three to six inches of snow in the Hamilton, Georgian Bay and Algonquin regions.

In the Quinte area the storm is expected to taper off about 10 p.m. today with "reasonable" weather forecast for Friday and Saturday.

However, with a late morning temperature of only 11 degrees at the Trenton Armed Forces Base, roads could become slippery when the snow turns to rain.

Traffic was tied up early in Southern and Central Ontario because of slippery roads and sleet was expected to worsen conditions in some areas.

By mid-morning four inches of snow had fallen in the Niagara Peninsula, while Hamilton and Kitchener reported more than three inches, with blowing snow forcing drivers to slow to a snail's pace due to poor visibility.

The same conditions had reached the Quinte district before 10 this morning.

In the city high winds toppled empty garbage cans and sent them rolling down the street.

The city works department reported shovellers were out to clear bridges sidewalks, while both sidewalk and roadway sanders were also at work by mid-morning.

Atomic Strike Role Ends

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian nuclear strike role in Europe will end quietly at midnight Friday.

In the new year, two Canadian squadrons assigned to NATO, equipped for either a nuclear or conventional bombing role, will become conventional ground-attack squadrons only.

A third squadron is being converted from a reconnaissance function to conventional attack. This decision was announced in the government's defence white paper, unveiled in August, but will not take effect until July 1.

The decision to vacate the nuclear strike role was announced in September, 1969, as a follow-up to Prime Minister Trudeau's decision to reduce and overhaul Canada's military commitment to the Atlantic alliance.

The number of Canadian squadrons in Europe has in the meantime been reduced from six—four strike-attack and two reconnaissance—to three.

Defence department sources say termination of the nuclear role will be instantaneous and automatic, and no special ceremonies are planned at the Baden-Soellingen base in southern Germany.

Air Raids In Vietnam Terminate

SAIGON (AP) — The heaviest air attack on North Vietnam in more than three years ended today after more than 1,000 combat strikes in five days, the U.S. command announced.

Three U.S. planes were lost, five flyers listed as missing and one was rescued, the command said.

North Vietnam claimed 14 U.S. planes were shot down and a number of pilots killed or captured.

The U.S. command said one air force F-4 Phantom was lost Sunday and its two crew members are missing. It said two navy planes from carriers in the Tonkin gulf went down today, and only one airman was rescued.

An earlier announcement today said only one plane was downed during the five days of raids. A spokesman said at announcement of the other two losses was delayed until the search for their crews was completed.

The U.S. fleet of some 530 planes and other aircraft attacked MiG air bases, surface-to-air missile sites, anti-aircraft artillery batteries, air defence radar sites and fuel and supply depots between the demilitarized zone and the 20th parallel of latitude. The northern most attacks were about 30 miles south of Hanoi.

It was the biggest attack on North Vietnam and the deepest penetration since the bombing halt Nov. 1, 1968.

"The strikes were terminated at 2:36 p.m. (2:36 a.m. EST) today," the U.S. command said in a statement. "A damage assessment review is in progress. When information becomes available, additional details will be provided. We have nothing further to add at this time."

Robbers Lose

Kurt Vicenik, 44, (centre in top photo) gang leader in $97,000 Cologne bank robbery, negotiates with police while his two companions, both Frenchmen, and a hostage remain in car near St. Wendel forests at Saarbreucken, West Germany yesterday. In bottom photo, Vicenik, an Austrian with connections in the Marseille underworld lies on ground after being shot in the chest by a fast-drawing policeman. His companions were overpowered by police. The men had been trying to negotiate for a faster car and free passage to Hamburg. Vicenik was rushed to hospital. (AP Photo)

Girl, 19, Given Six-year Term

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Nineteen-year-old Betty Ann Silliker of Port Elgin, N.B., was sentenced Wednesday to a six-year penitentiary term on a charge of robbery with violence.

Judge P. C. Brian said he had never encountered any crime as sadistic.

The woman had pleaded guilty to the charge laid after Mr. and Mrs. David Dixon of Port Elgin and their infant child were held hostage and robbed.

Also charged is 25-year-old James McCarthy, formerly of Saint John, N.B. and now of Toronto. He was scheduled to appear in Sackville court today.

Mr. Dixon told court both he and his wife were hit on the head with a gun, kicked and threatened with death. At one stage he had been shoved twice with a knife during the 24-hour ordeal.

The man, Mr. Dixon said, fired twice a knife and a rifle was fired several times with one shot knocking his eyeglasses off.

Later, when the couple were ordered to remove $200 from a Port Elgin bank, Mrs. Dixon was told if anything went wrong at the bank, her husband would be shot along with their eight-month-old son.

Pakistan-Bangladesh Federation Proposed

Extradition Planned

Canada Seeks Jet Hijacker

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada hopes to upset precedent by successfully applying for extradition of the American who hijacked an Air Canada plane to Cuba from Toronto Sunday

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Wednesday that his department is considering seeking extradition.

But moments later, outside the House, he told reporters that the government will apply for extradition as soon as the Ontario attorney-general's office has laid charges against the man, which he expected would be soon.

The government's only problem then would be a technical difficulty, which Mr. Sharp did not identify. But he said he is sure it could be cleared up immediately.

The minister said it would be a first if Cuba returned the hijacker to Canada, since it has never turned back any of the scores of aircraft hijackers who have arrived from other countries.

Cuba's quick return of the Air Canada DC-9 hours after it arrived indicated that the Cuban government might be co-operative about the extradition, he said.

Canada does not currently have a law specifically designed to deal with hijacking, nor does the 1905 extradition treaty between Canada and Cuba deal with the offence.

But it does deal with other offences under which a hijacker could be charged, including kidnapping, extortion, criminal negligence and others.

FBI Prints To Be Compared With Hijacker's

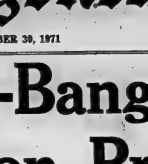
TORONTO (CP) — Mississauga police are hoping a set of fingerprints being sent to them by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington will establish them to identify the man who hijacked an Air Canada DC-9 to Cuba on Sunday.

The fingerprints, expected to arrive today, would be matched with fingerprints believed to be those of the hijacker. They were taken from ties and pop cans scanned during the flight to Cuba.

Mississauga police, in whose jurisdiction Toronto International Airport lies, said they want to identify the man positively before laying any charges.

Herbert Metcalf, Crown attorney for Peel County, said Tuesday that a charge of kidnapping and charges of contemplating robbery and extortion could be laid against the hijacker.

He could be extradited on any of the charges under terms of an extradition treaty between Canada and Cuba. However, the 1905 treaty does not deal with hijacking.



THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A mixture of precipitation is indicated with rain and freezing rain as well as snow in southern sections to heavy snow in central sections. Three to six inches of snow is forecast for Haliburton, Georgian Bay and Algonquin regions for today and this evening tapering off in snowflurries late tonight. Bhutto Offers Plan to Sheik

RAWALPINDI, East Pakistan (AP) — President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto has proposed to Sheik Mujibur Rahman that Bangladesh and West Pakistan reunite in a loose federation similar to the one in which Egypt, Syria and Libya have joined, highly-placed government officials said today.

The formula would mean virtual independence for both regions, with separate economies, political institutions and foreign relationships, the sources said. They added that Bhutto believes the Bengalis in Pakistan's former eastern province want to find an alternative to complete dependence on India.

But diplomatic sources said they believed it unlikely that Sheik Mujib would come to agreement with Bhutto, or if he did that any agreement would be binding on the government of Bangladesh.

They speculated that Bhutto also would try to make an agreement with India exchanging Sheik Mujib for more than 100,000 West Pakistani soldiers and civilians trapped in the east. They said India was insisting on Mujib's quick return to the east to assure a firm foundation for government in Bangladesh dominated by the sheik's Awami League and friendly to India.

Pakistani foreign office sources and foreign diplomats here say the Soviet Union was not in a hurry to see Sheik Mujib return because he was believed to oppose participation in any eastern government of the Russian-backed National Awami party. This group has been seeking a national government and new elections in Bangladesh.

Foreign office sources said it appeared that despite Soviet support of India during the war, Pakistan and Russia had some common ground in their attitude towards Bangladesh.

A spokesman for the National Awami Party, which has no connection with the Awami League, reported today that Bhutto had told the party's leader, Khan Abdul Wali Khan, that he would lift martial law and allow representative government in Pakistan's four remaining provinces after the third week in January.

Bhutto has been trying to get the National Awami party to join his cabinet because it is the largest party in the Northwest Frontier and Baluchistan, the smaller of the four provinces. The party spokesman said until Bhutto made good on his promises, the party would stay out of the government.

In Bangladesh today, Prime Minister Tajuddin Ahmed reiterated his anti-Communist foreign minister with a politician expected to strengthen relations with the Soviet bloc.

Post-Christmas Buying Spree Hot and Heavy

Although the rush on stores has died down slightly following the Christmas rush, shoppers have been deluging various specialty departments in area stores. Boxing Day sales left clerks gasping for breath, and (as shown here at the Simpsons-Sears store at the Quinte Mall yesterday), there's more to come. For story and picture, see page 5.

Britain May Veto Motion

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The Security Council meets today with the threat of a British veto hanging over a resolution which would reject British-Rhodesian settlement proposals.

The draft, placed before the council Wednesday by Somalia, would reject any Rhodesian independence which is not based upon majority rule determined by universal adult suffrage.

It would call for a secret referendum on the basis of one-man, one-vote to test the wishes of the Rhodesian people about their political future, and for the participation of UN observers in any acceptability test.

The draft would have the 15-nation council determine to continue political, diplomatic and economic sanctions until the "rebellious regime" in Rhodesia is brought to an end.

Britain's chief delegate, Sir Colin Crowe, will address the council today, and is expected to reiterate the British view that the only alternative to a settlement is a slide into apartheid in Rhodesia.

Spontaneous Combustion Ruled Cause of Fire

Spontaneous combustion has been labelled the official cause of the Monday night fire at the Queen's Hotel on Front Street, which has resulted in the death of one resident and injuries to a second.

A report to the Ontario Fire Marshal's office to that effect has been forwarded to Toronto.

Belleville Fire Chief Leo Culhane this morning stated two cause to the conclusion that the fire was caused by oily rags and paint . . . where the heavier charring was.

"It was from spontaneous combustion that built up the heat and broke into flame."

Paint cans in the fourth level corridor were found by firefighters after the $55,000 blaze had been extinguished.

"Thinner and paint there would help to cause the combustion," concluded the fire chief.

Inspectors from Belleville's department were joined in their investigation by Paul Chevrier of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office.

Bus Stopped, Woman Nabbed

Belleville Ontario Provincial Police last night halted a westbound bus on Highway 401 near Glen Miller, and removed a woman passenger.

Andree Dupuis, 23, of Quebec City, had been reported as overstaying her Christmas leave pass from the federal prison for women in Kingston. She had been granted leave Wednesday to visit a friend in that city, but was reported heading for Toronto last night.

"It was a simple, routine assignment," reported a Belleville OPP spokesman this morning. "There was no trouble."

The bus was halted at the Glen Miller overpass. The prisoner, one of nine from the Kingston area who overstayed their special leaves, was returned to jail.

She is serving 15 years for manslaughter.

Superintendent E. W. Martin of the Regional Detention Centre in Napanee, reports all 10 prisoners granted passes from the new area jail; had returned.

Khandkar Mustaque Ahmed, regarded as one of the more pro-Western members of the cabinet, had the foreign ministry job to Abdus Samad, leader of a Bangladesh mission to Hungary during the eight months before the India-Pakistan war.

Samad, 48, is a long-time member of the Awami League and has spent most of the last 15 years in jail for espousing Bengali nationalism.

Mustaque Ahmed was demoted to minister in charge of law and parliamentary affairs, land revenue, records and survey.

In addition to being prime minister Tajuddin Ahmed also takes the ministries of defence, information and broadcasting, planning and economic affairs and becomes directly responsible for the distribution of senior civil servant posts.

In the absence of Sheikh Mujib, Tajuddin Ahmed emerges as the new country's most powerful figure. Acting President Syed Nazrull Islam remains a largely ceremonial figure with little real power.

The nine-member cabinet is drawn entirely from the Awami League, which won 167 of the 169 seats allotted to East Pakistan in the National Assembly elections last December.

Atlas Reproductions Prove Best Sellers

Runaway best sellers of the Christmas season have turned out to be the reproductions of county atlases first published in 1878.

Reprinted by Mika Silk Screening in Belleville, the historical atlases of Frontenac and Lennox and Addington, and Hastings and Prince Edward counties appeared under dozens of local Christmas trees.

Already, the Frontenac atlas is sold out. The first printing was limited to 1,000 copies, but the demand was so great that the Mikas are printing an additional 500 copies. They will be off the presses in about two weeks.

A few copies of the Hastings - PRINCE Edward atlas are left. One thousand numbered copies of the volume were reproduced and sold quickly during the pre-Christmas season. The Mikas, undaunted by their another printing of the Hastings book, are willing to gauge the number of orders that come in after this publication sees the volume on friends' coffee tables.

In production now are three more atlases, those of Northumberland - Reeds and Grenville - Leeds and Lanark. At the planning stage is one for Victoria - Peterborough.

An atlas was printed during the 1870s for almost every inhabited county in Ontario. An introduction gives a history of the county and its settlement and numerous maps and drawings identify every inhabitant at the time of printing.

Long a collector's item, selling for over $200 each when available, the atlases were sought after by lawyers, land surveyors and others associated with land transfers, as well as historians, amateur and professional.

The Mikas' reproduction of the atlases have been snapped up by people unable to obtain an original, and are on the way to bookcase collectors' items themselves.

Harbor Master May Prosecute Skaters

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville waterfront authorities have warned they could be forced to intensify action against free-wheeling skaters who persist in sporting along the city's mildly - wintered shoreline — where ice surfaces are still considered unsafe by civic officials.

The caution—which implied banning, if necessary all skating in the city area of the Bay of Quinte — came from a Belleville Harbor Commission spokesman after both city and commission officials discovered earlier warnings were being ignored by skaters yesterday.

In one instance, a city recreation department official was simply ignored when he cautioned hockey playing youths at Zwick's Island. He took it philosophically. There was no law to stop people skating, he said.

But a quick retort came from Harbor Master Don Barrett.

The harbor commission — whose federal authority runs from Point Anne to the Sidney township boundary and includes Belleville harbor and the mouth of the Moira River — was empowered to ensure the safety of everyone using the area within its jurisdiction ,he said.

And this not only included summer activities, he believes.

"If people persist in not using discretion, not accepting the word of those of us who work every winter with this varying situation, we may have to take steps to ensure their safety — unpopular and overly-cautious as it may seem to some," he said.

"The safety thickness of a natural ice surface may seem impossible to decree by statute. But, I'm positive the commission has the power to act — if it feels it's necessary — to avert maybe dangerous accidents, maybe personal tragedy," added Mr. Barrett.

Earlier in the day, the harbor master had published a warning against ice sports in the harbor area. (Tuesday a youngster was reported rescued by a playmate after dropping through the ice near the bay shore close to Belleville General Hospital.)

Recreation department officials also expressed concern about the situation.

The grand threat arises from the hodge-podge winter condition which has hit the city area in recent weeks. as mild weather slows congealing Bay ice to the consistency officially considered safe. (The high recorded near the shoreline at the city's filtration plant yesterday was 32 degrees — three above freezing.)

Mr. Barrett, in his warning Wednesday, said a thickness of six inches was the safety minimum for skaters.

A recreation official — whose department's outdoor skating programing has been delayed by mild weather — raised the minimum to eight inches.

The harbor master Wednesday believed the ice only a few inches thick — although drill holes by parks department workers in the harbor area for their recreation department colleagues, revealed thicknesses up to a "surprising" five inches in parts of the harbor.

However, such depths may not be consistent over a wider area, agreed parks director Lloyd Syer.

Nonetheless, hockey games yesterday were in carefree progress in warm sunshine on both the harbor and Zwick's Island lagoon.

When Robin Heggie, recreation department program director, separated the players at Zwick's — after crossing ice revealing a long-running crack — and told them the surface was considered unsafe, the youths paused only briefly.

"We've been playing here for years" they told him coldly — then briskly went back playing.

"There's no law against it," shrugged Mr. Heggie as he turned away. "All you can do is warn them. You can find similar situations in many towns that have rivers or are on the water."

But, Mr. Barrett, learning of the incident, and the activity in the harbor area, last night, didn't agree — although he confessed there might be a legal dilemma. The harbor commission's activity is more concerned in summer and its major authority is the federal Navigable Waters Act. Were policing powers also enforceable when water taxes to ice?

The harbor master after close scrutiny, believes he has uncovered the answer. The commission has also its own bylaws, which set forth regulations for "the safety of all those using the facilities for the Belleville harbor . . ." he said.

And this is neither limited to "summer activities" or the harbor itself, but the entire bay shoreline within the commission's jurisdiction, he added.

Mr. Barrett would not say outright that a ban would be enforced in commission territory if sports and the thin-but-then-safe ice situation continued.

But, he admitted, if people persist in using the ice before it's officially declared safe, "in the interest of the safety of the people who are being so indiscreet, we are willing, if necessary to exercise the powers vested in the commission".

He recalled last winter posting warnings to snowmobilers about possibly unsafe conditions in the Bay.

Parks director David Syer, who confesses he was surprised at the five inch depths revealed by his drill crews in harbor-area ice, cautioned, however, such results should not be taken generally.

Other areas could have thinner conditionsnto than apparent on the surface. The ice is never officially decided as safe until it has thickened to at least six or seven inches. Ice surfaces also are usually thinner closer to shore, he warned.

A further danger existed in the absence of snow, which, when plowed off rink areas also serves as skating boundaries, often automatically halting skaters from venturing further onto areas of uncertain safety.

"It's just not cold enough to take any chances," he declared. "If we had three or four days of zero weather it might change it. But I would not promote the idea of skating now."

Ironically, the drill holes made by his department's work crews may have encouraged some of yesterday's harbor skaters.

Two youngsters recalled watching the operation Tuesday and "the ice was that thick". They said they considered it safe — then rejected their hockey game.

A teenager, about to have his skates sharpened at a waterfront sports shop, paused to view the game.

It wasn't for him, he said. Not yet.

"I think they're fools," he concluded.

Even further north in Hastings County, the Dept. of Lands and Forests is urging extreme caution against using any lakes in the area.

As far north as Bancroft, larger lakes have four to 10 inches of ice, making them uncertain for skaters, unsafe for snow vehicles. Smaller lakes could have 13 to 15 inches of ice.

In the Tweed area, only three to six inches of ice is reported on bigger lakes and six to eight inches on smaller bodies of water.

Because of milder winter conditions to date, safety factors were described as "spotty".

Conditions could be complicated by snowfalls, insulating the ice surfaces, said a Lands and Forests official.

Unsafe? Recreation Official Robin Heggie Watches Game After Warning At Zwick's

Snow Now, Play Later

Just a little touch of winter misery right now might leave city recreation officials reading as a summer's sun.

There's nothing foul about it. It's crucial to their job in programming the recreation department's schedule of outdoor winter activities.

Already, because of unexpectedly mild winter weather, the department's plans for setting up outdoor rinks is running late.

And more snow is needed if this winter's ski program is to start on time.

Yesterday, the first of 21 outdoor rinks went into operation at the Quinte Skating Club.

But, Robin Heggie, the department's director of programs, estimates his outdoor skating schedule is lagging about three weeks behind last year.

What's needed first is some snow to give the rinks a packed base for flooding, then sustained cold weather to keep the ice surfaces hard and smooth.

Originally, his program had called for starting work around mid-December with about eight days to get the whole program effective. Some 13 rinks are planned for the East Hill side of the city, eight in the West Hill area.

"It's a shame. But you can't play with the weather too much," said Mr. Heggie.

Meantime, deputy recreation director Clifford Belch is also watching for a fair-size snowfall which will stay underfoot, as his ski program deadline nears.

Start of the program is set for next Tuesday night at Batawa Ski Club.

That night advanced skiers take to the slopes. Beginners get their first chance Jan. 8.

All equipment has been checked with instructors and the program — which this year saw 32 beginners and 27 more advanced skiers enrol — is ready to roll.

Basic ground conditions also are good.

"All we're waiting for is the snow," said Mr. Belch. "We need about four inches on the ground."

Are range of the skiers registered this year goes from eight years to 18.

Queen's Broadcast

The Royal broadcast at Christmas is becoming more innovative each year and it was refreshing to see in this year's presentation the two youngest children of the Queen and Prince Philip.

Prince Andrew, 11, and Prince Edward, 7, are handsome youngsters and as they studied with a fireplace atmosphere and their mother turned the pages they were at once as knowledgeable and as ignorant of their forebears as any youngster, recognizing some but a little rusty on other royal personages. Prince Andrew displayed a keen interest in soccer, a game which enjoys royal patronage in Britain.

Picton Mayor Reviews Year in Office

PICTON (Staff) — Mayor Margaret Ackerman this week described 1971 as a very fruitful year for a relatively new council" and remarked that she has enjoyed her first year in office.

Newcomers to the nine-member council this year included Picton receive Albert Pirrels, and councillors Ross Cronkwright and Orrey Walraven.

Mayor Ackerman took office by acclamation last year when construction tycoon Harvey J. McParland refused to stand for re-election after 39 years as mayor of Picton.

As she reviewed her first year in office Mayor Ackerman noted a great deal was accomplished" including the instigation of a survey by the Ontario Housing Corporation to determine the need for geared - to - income homes here.

Council has called for tenders for construction of the Bridge Street sewer and for the first phase of the reconstruction of the Hill Street sewer.

A report concerning the Mill Street pumping station also has been prepared for council by the town's consulting engineers.

A study has been carried out to examine the present situation at the town dump.

The need for lockup facilities in Picton led to several heated council debates last summer and a citizens' committee headed by local merchant Colin Carter urged the renovation of Mary Street school for a lockup and town offices.

Councillors originally had considered an addition to the Picton fire hall or a new building at the site of the former Mary Street school.

Demolition of the school was halted through the efforts of the citizens' committee and council agreed to obtain a cost estimate for renovation of the building.

The purpose of examining this figure was to compare it with the estimated costs of alternate plans.

Council eventually agreed to

Council Meets January 4

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County councillors will hold their inaugural meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 4, at 2 p.m. in Shire Hall.

A new county warden to replace retiring county representative Allan Anderson will be named.

Town council will hold its first meeting of the New Year on Monday, Jan. 3, with Mayor Margaret Ackerman beginning the second year of her two year term of office.

Girls Shaken In Rear-ender

Two young Belleville girls w... Wednesday afternoon following a rear-end collision on North Front Street.

Katherine Stewart, 16, of 31 Weatherall Acres suffered facial lacerations when the car in which she was riding collided with a vehicle operated by Judith Chatten, 22, of 346 Sidney Street.

Driver of the first vehicle, Debra Harrison, 21, of 2 Lilac Park Road, was treated for shock.

Both were treated at Belleville General Hospital and released.

Mayor Ackerman explained that this building is owned by the county and doubted that it would be made available to the town.

The new bail reform act "may cause new thinking concerning the number of lockup cells required since town police will not be holding persons overnight according to Mayor Ackerman.

She explained that, for this reason, fewer cells probably will be incorporated with new town offices.

It is likely that money can be saved in the renovation of Mary Street school as a lockup and town offices by reducing the number of cells included.

Mayor Ackerman observed that if registry office facilities are not relocated at the former county jail, the town may continue to use the lockup facilities there.

Town offices, however, are still needed 2i Mayor Ackerman's opinion, and might be rented if the cells at the old county jail are used indefinitely.

She looks forward to her second year in office. Picton's first woman mayor hopes for improved downtown parking facilities in 1972.

Formation of a parking authority was discussed this year by several merchants, a committee of council and a letter concerning the plan was forwarded to town solicitor Jack Ward.

A closer liaison between Picton and Hallowell township in relation to an extension of services is among the achievements of council Mayor Ackerman hopes for next year.

She praised council's planning and developments committee and said that it has worked "extremely well" in relationship with other township councils.

The mayor also offers compliments to the recreation and parks committees for its success in working toward the development of a county recreation program.

Mayor Ackerman noted that "it's looking at the whole thing as a county basis." She mentioned the county planning board, the Prince Edward county board of education and the evolving county recreation program.

She discussed fire protection supplied to North Marysburg and Athol townships by the Picton fire department and referred to "an agreement in the offing" with Prince Edward Heights.

Optimistic for Picton's achievements in 1972, Mayor Ackerman remarked that she discovered her first year in office was "very demanding" at times but, all in all, proved highly enjoyable.

Mommy's Just Started

From the look on 2½-year-old Laura Hazlett's face, left, the upcoming shopping trip is of no excitement at all. Her mother, Mrs. Janice Hunter of Belleville, and sister Shelley, 15 months, joined Mrs. Donna Jackson and Karen, 2, of Selby, in an after-Christmas bargain shopping session, as have hundreds of area residents.

Post-Yule Shopping Heavy

Clerks and shop owners are beginning to clear their heads after the hords of after-Christmas shoppers, but the rush isn't over yet.

As well as mad rushes to pick up bargains in Christmas cards, wrapping paper and items ... if not sad wishes, the latter are going for bargain prices ... shoppers are having a holiday with regular purchases.

Most merchants in Belleville agree this Christmas has provided a boom in business not experienced in a long time. Part of the additional revenue has been attributed to the doorsteps of the Quinte Mall.

"People are coming into Belleville to shop at the mall, and they naturally want to have a look at the downtown area," one Front Street merchant commented yesterday.

Things were kind of quiet in a majority of Belleville stores yesterday afternoon, but Boxing Day, Tuesday and Wednesday morning found shoppers everywhere.

Art supplies, jewelry, and a rush on bookshelves form part of the after - Christmas buying spree, according to several local merchants.

Peter Annis, owner of Coles Book Store in the Quinte Mall, reports sales of "as many art supplies yesterday and today as three days before Christmas."

Downtown Jeweller Gerry O'Connor says 1971 was "the best December we've had for years." He reports large sales of jewellery, especially watches.

"I guess competition was a little keener this year. That's good," he added.

In most of the large department stores, linen and bedding sales have been a major portion of this week's business.

"This is great," one woman shopper was overheard to say. "I've found three or four towels I like, but do you think I can find a match? No chance."

Peter Last, manager of the Quinte Mall Simpsons Sears store, thinks a "lot of people must be off work this week." He reports steady sales of more traditional items, rather than luxury goods.

Rash of Crashes In P.E. County

PICTON (Staff) A Belleville motorist was treated at Trenton Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon for unspecified injuries sustained in a one-car collision on Rednersville Road.

Injured was Patrick Carmichael, 20, of Belleville. A police spokesman said today that damage to the vehicle was estimated at $100. Constable D. Thoms investigated.

A Demorestville man driving a truck owned by Garry Walter Shelley, RR3, Picton escaped injury yesterday morning in a one-vehicle collision which caused an estimated $400 damage. Driver of the truck was 23-year-old Ronald Hill, RR2, Demorestville.

A three car collision on the Old Orchard Rd., near Carrying Place caused estimated total damages of $300. A car driven by Terrance Brant Wait, Trenton, collided with two parked vehicles owned by John Kuipers, RR3, Carrying Place, and Klaas Smit, RR1, Trenton. Damage to the parked vehicles totalled $100 while damage to the Wait car was estimated at $200. No injuries were reported in the collision.

City Hotels Ready For Gala Parties

Many people make New Year's Eve plans well in advance and the city's hotels are no exception.

The highlight of all the preparation is the touch of class which party-goers will find if they visit Belleville's major night spots tomorrow evening.

Rousing entertainment and gourmet dining are the lure at both Sun Valley and the Four Seasons while Hotel Quinte and the Belvedere promise exciting celebrations throughout the turning of the calendar.

As in the past, the Sun Valley will use the theme of the exotic in palate - tempting treats. Chief cook Chris Giouroukou a native of Greece, is labelling this year's gala buffet "a feast for the gods."

He will present meals from around the world, served to suit even the most demanding tastes. You'll find such delicacies as lobster, suckling pig, cornish hens and virtually anything else you can think of — maybe even some you didn't know about.

The feast will be "built up like a mountain" on tiers in the hotel's coffee shop. Guests are advised to dine before heading out for the evening since the buffet will not open until after midnight.

Assistant manageress Mrs. Yvonne Grustis attributes the dinner's past success to the large variety of delights available.

"Many people in this area have never seen many of these meals before," she says.

Mr. Giouroukou has also created a temple out of lard as well as other sculptures, so a camera would not be out of place.

So far, more than 185 tickets have been sold at $18 per couple but vacancies are diminishing rapidly. Entertainment will be provided by the versatile band, Pembroke.

The Four Seasons is also making grand preparation for its inaugural attempt at New Year's Eve festivities.

For the same price as Sun Valley, guests can enjoy a six-course dinner served all evening in the Terrace Grill. Filet mignon, roast ... and a special liqueur cocoa will all be on the menu to whet your appetite.

If a formal meal isn't your desire, there will also be a smorgasbord in the Bay Buffet from which to select. Specialties there will be filet and suckling pig and the bill will come to $7.25 a person.

Post midnight snack lovers are not being forgotten either. A variety of treats are planned to prevent those early morning stomach blues.

The Warren Peace Trio will provide suitable dance music for six hours.

Hotel Quinte has only a total 16 tickets remaining for its Tropicana Room party.

A conventional buffet will open at 8:30 p.m., and music is to be supplied by the rock group Sable Sun.

The Belvedere is also a novice in year-end entertaining. The cocktail bar, which accommodates 145 people and has been open only a week, will be the scene of dancing and music by The Unknown.

Hotel manager Simeo Iannello said he does not yet have facilities for serving dinner in the lounge, although great plans are in store for the future.

All the hotels are busy putting on decorations and each assures that a large supply of novelty items and noise makers will be on hand for the big moment. And you can be sure the bands have been well versed in Auld Lang Syne.

With all the local clubs and lodges booked solidly for the past few weeks, a last-minute celebration might be just the answer if you're looking for an exciting New Year's Eve party.

But remember to take one precaution — don't plan on driving afterward if you can help it. Most hotels are offering reduced rates to anyone taking a room for stay night or for the weekend.

FEMALE FARMERS — An ex-truckdriver and a life-long city slicker are hoping to shake a 30 year-old jinx and become the first women to graduate from a two-year diploma course in agriculture at the University of Manitoba. The only other women to enroll in the course did not graduate — back in the 40's. LIPS LEAVE MARK

LONDON (AP) — Rev. Donald B. Harris of St. Paul's Anglican Church asked that women planning to take communion either eschew lipstick or wear a non-smearing brand. "It now has become our custom to wipe the chalice," he said. "Almost invariably we find traces of lipstick."

Women Accepted in Quebec Taverns

MONTREAL (CP) — Until recently, women in Quebec had to do their public drinking in bars or nightclubs, or in restaurants along with the mandatory meal.

They did not, however, have access to the draught beer and moderately priced wine served in Quebec's men-only taverns.

Then last August the government sanctioned Bill 44 which permitted men and women to drink draught beer together in public in establishments with a "brasserie" or pub-type license.

Since then, nearly all the women have been doing their public drinking in bars or nightclubs, or in restaurants, along with the mandatory meal.

The Quebec Liquor Board was still determining a list of standards governing the new category at the end of November and had yet to issue the first licence.

Vivandy none of Montreal's 350 taverns have shown interest in admitting any women and there have been less than a handful of applications for the new licences.

A spokesman for the Montreal Tavernkeepers Association said most of the group's 300 members are in favor of admitting women but that their presence will chase away their best customers.

He said that women are slow, moderate drinkers requiring more attentive service. To please both sexes, the traditional tavern decor would have to be altered and washroom facilities duplicated.

These expenses would not be justified by the increase in the spokesman said.

Paul-Emile Lavoie, the group's secretary, said: "These changes may bring in a few female customers but the regular male patrons prefer the present set-up. Our survey indicate many of them would balk at this".

Bernard Janelle did not agree.

Mr. Janelle's tavern, Le Gobiet, with its distinctive early French-Canadian decor and excellent meals was so popular that the women's liberation movement chalk sidewalks outside as Ca ira for several demonstrations.

When it burst down last January, Mr. Janelle was ready to give up tavern-keeping. But he said in an interview that the proposal to allow women to drink in taverns grew him the impetus to rebuild on the ruins.

The new Le Gobelet, designed by the same architect who planned the old one, features a two-tiered beer garden decorated as a farm courtyard with shrubbery, bracketed by two old-weather patio rooms done in sidewalk cafe style.

Two women came into the pub and ordered draught beers when Le Gobelet held a special preview of its "brasserie" status the evening of Dec. 8.

Mr. Janelle, 45, is happy with the new classification of pub or "brasserie." The word tavern had a masculine image, he said.

"We may be breaking new ground in catering to women but it is a sure thing that a new trend will develop from our lead.

"Travel has broadened the outlook of Quebecers who have come to appreciate the European life-style. I'm immigrants also have influenced our drinking habits."

He said that the new pubs will prosper, as opposed to regular bars, because they will be selling draught beer.

A ready-made clientele for the new pubs was created when the province lowered the drinking age to 18 from 20 years.

Women's Institutes

QUINTE WI

The December meeting of Quinte Women's Institute was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, with an attendance of 25 members and 13 visitors.

Mrs. Harry Grills, program convener, took charge and began with an appropriate Christmas reading. The motto "It isn't the things we know it's the will to serve, it's the hand we lend, and it's the light which our lantern throws," was given by Mrs. E. A. Fleming.

The speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. J. A. Dilts of Belleville. Her talk was centred on the life of Mary.

Santa Claus distributed the gifts.

Mrs. Mitchell and lunch committee served a lunch and a social half hour was spent.

The prize winners for the last progressive euchre held in the WI Hall were Mrs. Nina Hall, Mrs. W. Fairbrother, Mrs. C. Reid, Frank Edgar, O. Scrimshaw, Leon Smith, and lucky draw was won by John Beale.

Are Church People Too 'Stand-offish'?

By DORIS CLARK

/ It was a Canadian newspaper editor who made this comment to me:

"The church is not doing its job. The essence of Christ's teaching is love. But I, the people who need help will not go to church. They feel out of place there. Why?"

Is this true? Do the people who need the love, feel criticism and standoffishness instead?

Isn't it up pto every single one of us to see that the answer to this question is a resounding "No!"? —

Dear Doris: There was a request for a humorous poem about a baseball game. I am sending one called "De Stop-Heem-Short" — the impressions of a French Canadian attending a baseball game.

I found it in one of my daughter's school books. Given at Parnassus. Perhaps your readers will find this as amusing as I do. — R. K.

Dear R.K.: This is quite different from Besty At The Ball game, which brought a deluge of requests.

Because of its length (17 verses) I can only reproduce one typical verse here French-Canadian accent and all:

"But when 'e say, "Play ball", dey run
From Pere-Pen on de right.
De pitcher weeta, 's sweong
beesi barsi
Jus' lak' 'e wanta fight."

Annd so it goes. When the umpire says "four balls" our spectator can see no one. When the umpire calls "one strike" — "I yell: 'Dat man 'e didn't strike. 'E let de ball go by.' Who want? the whole thing? (For personal stamped envelope and 20 cents.)

Dear Doris: I read the letter which discussed keeping down funeral costs. What about this society? I have written you before and received valuable advice.—Canadian Debtster.

Dear Canadian: The average cost of a traditional adult funeral in the U.S. is now $1,500.

Memorial Societies are making modest funerals possible for Canada; a n d preventing grief-stricken trusting widows from ending up in great b'ig unnecessary holes financially.

I'm told that when a person chooses a funeral for cash, his funeral is high-priced accordingly. And it is also pointed out that the deceased does not really need an i n n e r - lining mattress (for reasonable facsimile!).

Such things as caskets, embalming, cosmetics, clothing, vaults, flowers, graves, perpetual care — all vary in cost. Our Memorial Societies are making reasoned decisions more likely, by helping with advance plans on a day not blackened by the death of a loved one.

Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Senior Citizens Hold Party At St. Mark's

The last regular meeting for the year of the Canadian Corbyville Senior Citizens' Club was held in the recreation hall of St. Mark's United Church recently with a large attendance of members.

President Edna Andrew welcomed everyone, after which a short discussion took place regarding donations and as there was no shortage of gifts, members contributed $73 to the Pakistan relief fund. Potted plants and fruit will be sent to the sick and shut-ins for Christmas. It was also decided not to hold another meeting until the second Wednesday in January.

The program was arranged by Dora Morton and Mrs. Farnham when carols were sung with Mrs. Eggleton as accompanist. A musical selection was given by a trio consisting of Kathleen Silts, Annie Hamilton and Jessie Howard. Readings were given by Daisy Golden and Marie Walker and Mrs. Crosby read a poem in tribute to the retiring president.

Cards and games followed by lunch concluded the afternoon.

On the previous Wednesday, the club held its annual Christmas party when nearly all members were present.

Guests at this time were Reeve Horace Casey and Mrs. Casey; Deputy-reeve Borden Forsythe and Mrs. Forsythe and Rev. J. Marchand and Mrs. Morrison who were introduced by the president.

Following the meal served by the Canadian Unit UCW the reeve and deputy reeve spoke briefly and an entertainment program concluded the activities along with an appropriate skit.

Highlight of the evening was the arrival of Santa Claus who distributed treats to all and special gifts to Mr. and Mrs. Morrison and Mrs. Dorothy Hodgson in appreciation for their interest in the work of the senior citizens. The retiring president was also presented with a past president's jewel.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CORWELL

Does it pay to make New Year's resolutions?

YES, even if they are broken before the celebrations are over. The mere fact that someone wants to make a fresh start makes it worthwhile to draw up a list of New Year's resolutions. Anytime a person realizes upon his behavior, sees where he could have done better and resolves to take steps to correct his ways, he is acting positively—as long as he is not inhibited by self-fascinatization when he breaks those resolutions.

Is complete honesty best in marriages?

YES, if complete honesty means that a husband and wife are each completely honest with themselves first and then completely honest with each other. In other words, if a wife has some minor fault, the husband is honest enough with himself to know that fault, he doesn't want to hurt his wife. So he either accepts his wife's fault or tries to correct it indirectly, without causing a marital rumpus over an unimportant annoyance.

Can a 'brat' ever change his ways?

CERTAINLY, but parents have to correct whatever is causing their child to act like a brat. If it is love they are withholding, they must supply it. If they are trying to make the child behave to satisfy their own egos or to have "peace in the family," they will have to change their motivations. They will have to start helping him up properly because they want him to develop into a full-functioning adult.

Canadian Universities Pay Female Faculty Staff Less Than Male

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission report on the status of women brought out in 1970 that Canadian universities pay the average female faculty member less than male counterparts in every sphere but home economics.

More than 75 per cent of women faculty members were teaching in the lower categories—assistant professors, lecturers and part-time instructors.

Jane Adam of the University of Calgary made a study for the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada meetings this autumn which showed that although the level of women teachers are in the humanities and social sciences.

In 1969 and 1970, there were 293 male deans and 14 female deans. Male deans in arts ea rned an average salary of $13,380 and females $10,835. An analysis indicated more than half of the salary difference could be accounted for by the sex difference alone.

Sylva M. Gelber, director of the f e d e r a l labor department's women's bureau, said male professors make from 7.9 per cent to 48.7 per cent more than women counterparts.

Jill Vickers, assistant professor of political science at Carleton University, said the bias starts during undergraduate years in which only one-third of the students are women. This p e r c e n t a g e shrunk still more at the graduate level. Women students, as a result, had few female professors to serve as models.

Dr. Naomi G r i f f i t h s is chairman of the Canadian Association of University Teachers status of faculty women committee. She said discrimination against women is co mmon than against Jews, blacks or other m i n o r i t y groups.

Although she had not been approached by staff members complaining of sex discrimination, she said she has heard abundant talk about part-time faculty staff, a large proportion of whom are female.

A part-time faculty member is paid $1,200 per course at Carleton. If she teaches two courses, she is paid $2,400.

Two courses are considered a full-time load for most assistant professors. "female faculty members said. But part-timers were paid according to one-third of a male assistant professor's salary.

Jill Vickers said the universities exploit part-time fa culty. There was a "knock-the-boat" attitude among those willing to work for such low pay, she said.

Dr. Gordon Caplan, chairman of the biology department at the University of Ottawa, said he blame l social pressures for the lack of women in some fields, most especially in the hard sc iences and e n g i n e e r i n g. Women were not encouraged to compete on equal terms in these fields as they were, say, in Communist countries.

Dr. Caplan said dis-crimination is obvious at a national level. It is most evident in p r o m o t i o n, he said, and women tended not so be promoted as fast as men.

Ann Landers

Believes Letter to Ann Was Her Daughter's

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you published a letter from a woman who said she and her husband were deluged with visiting relatives since they had been transferred overseas and she wished they'd stay home. I'm sure it was my daughter who wrote and I'd like to address this letter to her.

Dear Daughter: We read your letter in Ann Landers' column. Thanks a lot. Your dad and I have no intention of visiting you. We did once and were treated like creatures from Mars. That didn't deter you, however, from visiting us for months at a time, storing your furniture in our attic and making our home your home, with one exception—we paid the bills.

You allowed your children to break our furniture and ruin our rugs. We were stuck babysitting while you ran around seeing old friends and making new ones. Please enjoy your stay in Europe, dear. We hope you have a long and pleasant tour of duty. You will not be bothered by us.

—Your Mom and Dad

Dear M and D.: I wonder why it took you both so long to level with each other. How much letter it would have been had you done so from the beginning.

Dear Ann Landers: I was diagnosized to your answer to "Pilfling Trash." I admit I admire intelligence and conversational ability in a girl, but I'm with the Declaration of Independence, all men are not created equal, and neither are all women.

Your answer suggests that nobody should marry a girl unless she's bratsy. Don't you realize that there are plenty of lovely ladies around who aren't smart but who are good-hearted, kind, giving, loving, and they make better wives than some of the high I'Qdies. What are your second thoughts on the subject? —Syracuse

/ Dear Sy: You make an excellent point and I appreciate the opportunity to elaborate. Smart women do not make the best wives for certain kinds of men. Some husbands cannot tolerate bright women. Instead of being proud, they are resentful. Such couples are a social pain in the neck. They are forever competing, dagging at one another, and they argue a lot.

It's not how smart or stupid a wife is that counts, but how a husband feels about her smartness—or s t u p i d i t y. Pulling teeth was learned out of his ever-lovin' mind because the girl was a dog-a-day. I would not tell him to go ahead and marry her and settle for her fine qualities. Such marriages are doomed.

Dear Ann: I'm 21 and living at home, paying room and board because I want to save money for marriage. The problem is my brother. He's sweet and generous but he's a hippie who believes in doing his own thing, which does not include work.

He's 23, served in Vietnam and when he came back he had an apartment with two buddies. He wouldn't pay his share so they asked him to leave. Now he is living at home now and doesn't pay for anything. My folks bought him a car, new clothes, they give him spending money and they pay his bills.

I hate the way he is taking advantage of them. They need work hard, and we aren't rich. They say: "We can't turn our backs on him." I love my brother, Ann, but I'm disgusted with his parents. Concerned, please. —Garden City

Dear Gard: Why should your brother work? He has free room and board, a car, someone who pays his bills and gives him spending money. It's a perfect setup for a loafer. When he discovers he has to be responsible for himself he'll go to work. But until.

Skyline Addition

This building became the tallest in Toronto's skyline and the British Commonwealth during 1971. It is the Commerce Court West Tower, one of four buildings in the $100 million office, banking and shopping complex in downtown Toronto. The building is 57 storeys and 784 feet above the intersection of King and Bay streets. An FM radio antenna reaches up another 168 feet. Reflected in the tower is the Bank of Canada building, once the highest building in the Commonwealth. (CP Photo)

River Pilots Tie Up Ships

QUEBEC (CP) — Shipping on the St. Lawrence River remained disrupted today while river pilots, shipowners and the federal transport department were to meet in Ottawa in an attempt to end the deadlock and head off a possible nationwide walkout of pilots.

The Canadian Merchant Service Guild, which represents about 4,000 pilots across Canada, has warned the government against any intervention except by negotiation. If any other means are taken to end the dispute, the guild said, it could recommend a walkout by all its members.

Pilots who guide ships through strong currents and a narrow, tricky channel between Quebec City and Les Escoumins, 110 miles downstream, ceded a transport department back-to-work order Wednesday after the department refused to ratify an agreement they had made with two oil concerns.

The 31-member Lower St. Lawrence River Pilots Corp. asked for the Ottawa meeting which was agreed to by Pierre Camu, head of the transport department's maritime section.

Gaston Rousseau, president of the pilots' union, told a news conference late Wednesday night he was "optimistic" about the outcome of the meeting. It will include representatives of the transport department, the St. Lawrence pilots, the Canadian Merchant Service Guild which represents about 4,000 pilots across Canada, the Dominion Marine Association, the Canadian Chamber of Shipping, and the Shipping Federation of Canada, as well as Golden Eagle Canada Ltd. and Irving Oil Co Ltd.

The pilots halted work last Thursday to support wage demands and protest overloading of cargoes, especially on tankers servicing the two oil companies.

The transport department ordered the pilots back to work Wednesday, terming the study sessions illegal.

Earlier, the pilots said the two oil companies—not members of any of the shipowners' groups—had met their demands, had signed an agreement and the pilots were therefore ready to return to work on those ships.

But the transport department, which has the final say, refused to ratify the agreement which it termed unacceptable, the pilots said.

GANANOQUE, Ont. (CP) — Town council has authorized employing a computer to prepare and issue its 1971 tax statements. This means the town won't have to hire extra people, at a saving of $1,200 to $1,500 in costs, says Councillor Ken Chapman, chairman of the finance committee.

Five Kingston Convicts Overstay Yule Leaves

KINGSTON (CP) — Five prisoners, four men and one woman, have overstayed their Christmas leaves from penal institutions in this area and are still missing.

A sixth, Andree Dupuis, 33, of Quebec City was captured Wednesday night by Belleville provincial police—as they were headed for Toronto on a westbound line.

The woman, serving 15 years at the federal prison for women for manslaughter, was given a day's leave Wednesday to visit a friend in Kingston.

Police said she escaped her escort.

C. A. Edwards, director of the women's prison, said 32 of the prison's 87 prisoners were granted leaves and only Gerianne Couture, 21, also of Quebec City, was still overdue on a three-day pass. She was serving two years for robbery.

Mr. Edwards said the leaves were "a marvelous incentive" and did much for the morale of the prisoners in the institution.

He said they would have to suffer the consequences for failure to return.

Prison officials said passes were granted to 546 prisoners in eight institutions for periods from one to 15 days over the holiday period.

The number released was double that of 1970 and is a reflection of new, more lenient government policies.

Richard Gosselin, 23, was scheduled back at Collins Bay penitentiary Tuesday after a five-day leave to visit Toronto. He is serving a life sentence for the murder of Robert Marshall, 28, of London, Ont., at October, 1963.

Wolfgang Arthur Jeschkeit, 22, serving three years for assault and possessing counterfeit money and house-breaking tools, was given three days to visit Toronto and did not return Dec. 28.

Arnold Hulbart, Jr., 39, was serving two years at the Collins Bay farm annex for breaking, enter and theft. He was scheduled to return Christmas Day after a three-day visit in the Kingston area.

Norman Douglas McCaul, 38, granted a six-day leave from the prison farm at Joyceville to visit his family in Toronto, did not return Tuesday.

McCaul, a former prisoner at Kingston penitentiary, was one of the men who testified earlier this month that he was manhandled by guards when transferred to Millhaven penitentiary after the April riot in Kingston.

He was serving three years for a variety of offences including possession of counterfeit money and stolen goods.

Justin Pierre Trudeau Home In House Overlooking River

OTTAWA (CP) — The prime minister's stone mansion overlooking the frozen Ottawa River is echoing with healthy cries as five-day-old Justin Pierre Trudeau takes up residence.

Mr. Trudeau's 24-year-old wife Margaret brought their new son home about 5 p.m. Tuesday. Mother and child are reported in "fine" condition.

Canada's newest national celebrity first appeared at 8:27 p.m. Christmas Day at Ottawa Civic hospital. The birth was the first to the wife of a ruling prime minister in 102 years.

Agnes Macdonald, second wife of Sir John A. Macdonald, gave birth to a daughter Feb. 7, 1869.

Alan Donnelly, press officer to the prime minister, refused to say Wednesday whether a room of the rambling mansion had been renovated for use as a nursery.

"I don't think that's anybody's business," he said.

The house, at 24 Sussex Drive, has been the official residence of Canadian prime ministers since 1960.

Gifts for the child range from the silver goblet given by Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain to a doll made from a lace cloth by a Canadian child.

A spokesman in Mr. Trudeau's office said Wednesday that dozens of hand-knitted shawls, booties and other gifts have been arriving since the pregnancy was announced last July.

The actual birth has brought further gifts from foreign embassies in Ottawa and messages of congratulation from around the world.

Among those sending messages were Queen Elizabeth and the daughter of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, Mrs. Trudeau's hostess during a visit to Russia last spring. She is due in Ottawa herself in October.

Mrs. Trudeau personally is sending thank you notes, a spokesman said.

He was reluctant to give details about the gifts, except to say that some beautiful hand-knitted work was included. Some of the gifts from the embassies were described as "quite elaborate."

When the Trudeaus—married last March 4—visited Perth, an Eastern Ontario town, last June, they were presented with a volume of children's stories, apparently in anticipation of the big event.

During a rumour-visit to Halifax, a fine old baby rocker was presented.

The gifts have come from older people, children and religious orders.

Nixon Aide Backs Canada

WASHINGTON (CP) — A White House adviser called Wednesday for more attention and sympathy by the United States for Canadian economic concerns.

Peter G. Peterson, President Richard Nixon's special assistant for international economic affairs, made the appeal in a book-length report on the world trading situation.

In his section on Canadian-U.S. trade relationships, Peterson notes the widening American trade deficit with Canada, which he said will probably exceed $3.5 billion in 1971.

Peterson says the vastness of the American economy, "with which Canada is so closely associated, creates a special desire for Canadians to nourish their own economic identity."

"This feeling deserves more sympathetic notice on the American side than it has received."

He indicated, in remarks to reporters, that the United States is not necessarily looking for a trade surplus with every country.

Plan for North Is Revealed

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail today quoted extensively from two confidential federal cabinet documents which it called the latest leak of secret government material.

Both dealt with the federal plan for development of Canada's North brought forth earlier this year by the department of Jean Chretien, minister of Indian affairs and Northern development.

The substance of the plan was carried last fall in an Ottawa story by The Canadian Press, although the source of the CP information was not disclosed.

Today's copyrighted Globe story from Ottawa said that an important cabinet committee in the Trudeau administration approved one of the documents last June 29. This was reported to the full cabinet July 12 in a second document which also apparently came into The Globe's hands.

The first document was a confidential memorandum from Mr. Chretien and the second summarized its findings.

The documents say the priorities are "people needs," preservation of the natural environment and development of renewable and then non-renewable resources.

The outline calls for greater co-ordination of effort among the 30-odd government departments and agencies dealing with the North, with the department of Indian affairs and Northern development supreme, the story says.

It says the government will not hang back and leave development of resources entirely to private initiative, one of the priorities saying government and private joint participation is "desirable" in strategic projects to develop non-renewable resources.

The outline, The Globe says, calls for maintenance of "the delicately balanced ecological system" of the North, despite heavy pressures from outside and within Canada.

Government support for projects should be based on their economic and social impact on the North, the territories and Canada as a whole, it says. The capacity of the region to absorb disruption such as inflation, accommodation and consumer goods should be a major consideration.

The outline calls for planned development of population centres and incentives for migration, the story says.

"The native peoples should derive early and tangible benefits from economic development and be seen to benefit."

The guidelines for social improvement are long, the story says, beginning with the conscious creation in government and industry of jobs for native peoples. Others include mechanisms for consultation between native peoples, government and industry, maintenance of hunting trapping and fishing, better transportation and safeguards for language, arts and handicrafts.

In a section on finances, the newspaper says Mr. Chretien's memo predicts:

"It's easy to envisage in 1981 strategic development such as major oil and gas discoveries in the Canadian Arctic, a pipeline(s) along the Mackenzie or into James Bay, an all-Canadian rail link for the Yukon, substantially improved telecommunications using satellite technology, iron ore production in Baffin Island, a Hydro grid in the Territories, a national park(s) north of 60 degrees.

"Most of these imply substantial government spending, particularly if a decision were taken at the time to make the project a joint venture with private interests."

7-Year Strike Ends at Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Local 91, International Typographical Union, ashamed Wednesday the official end of the seven-year strike against three Toronto daily newspapers.

The printers went on strike against The Star, Globe and Mail and the now-defunct Telegram in July, 1964, in a dispute over control of composing-room computers.

The ITU already had ceased picketing the two surviving dailies after the union's International headquarters cut off strike benefits Oct. 25.

In a letter Wednesday, local president Balfour MacKenzie said Local 91 officially terminated the strike as of Dec. 28. The dispute had cost the ITU an estimated $13 million in strike benefits.

Bruins Snap String Of Hawk Home Success

By IAN MacLATYE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Boston Bruins took just over nine minutes Wednesday night to blast the Chicago Stadium ice into oblivion en route to an easy 5-1 win over the Black Hawks in National Hockey League action.

The win was Boston's first in five Stadium visits, dating back to last year, and ended Chicago's unbeaten string on home ice this season at 18 games.

The NHL record of 38 unbeaten games a home, set by Montreal Canadiens in 1943 and 1944 seasons, was never seriously threatened but the way the Hawks manhandled most of their NHL visitors this year left many to believe the mark could be in jeopardy.

Elsewhere, Bill Gilbert's two goals sent the East Division leaders, New York Rangers, to a 5-1 win over Philadelphia Flyers, Montreal Canadiens topped California Golden Seals 2, St. Louis Blues upset Toronto Maple Leafs 8-3, Detroit Red Wings throttled Buffalo Sabres 7-3 and Los Angeles Kings downed Vancouver Canucks 3-2.

Boston coach Tom Johnson said before the game a victory in Chicago would give the Bruins a lift as they embarked on an extended road trip.

The high-scoring Bruins trashed his visitors early. Mike Walton triggering the explosion at the 2:27 mark. Before it ended at 9:18, Johnny Bucyk, Phil Esposito and John Hummel had hastened Hawk goaltender Gary Smith's departure. Smith was replaced by Tony Esposito at the start of the second period, but the damage had already been done and only defenceman Jerry Korab's goal at 15:46 of the second saved the Hawks from a whitewash, something no team has been able to do in 126 regular season games with Chicago.

The Rangers spotted Philadelphia a 1-0 lead, then rocked the Flyers and goaltender Doug Favell for five goals in less than 11 minutes. Bill Gilbert added to push their unbeaten string at home to 18 games.

Gilbert's linemates, centre Jean Ratelle and Vic Hadfield, also got into the scoring act. Ratelle assisted on three scores, pulling him to within two of Phil Esposito's league-leading 43 points, and Hadfield potted his 25th power-play score, tops in the NHL.

Ratelle's first assist gave him 20 career goals.

At Montreal, Phil Myre got his his first game in almost nine months, replacing injured goaltender Ken Dryden, and stemmed the high-scoring California attack.

Dryden, a prime candidate for the NHL's rookie honors, was injured in collision with Boston's Esposito on Nov. 6 and was forced to miss 16 games because of a back injury.

"I really wasn't as nervous as I thought I'd be," Myre reflected in the dressing room after tarring aside 31 of 33 shots. He was told of his assignment the afternoon of the game so "I didn't have too much time to think about being nervous."

The Seals wasted little time testing the Canadiens' goalie. Craig Cameron broke in alone in the early minutes and forced Myre to make a key save.

"Making a stop like that early in the game helps to settle a goalie down," he admitted. "It sure helped me tonight."

California coach Vic Stasiuk credited Myre with holding his club in check, especially in the third period when the Montreal goalie twice stopped Bobby Sheehan from close in.

"If Sheehan had scored, it's a 2-2 game," said Stasiuk. "But Myre made the saves and came back with a goal (by Jacques Lemaire) that made it 3-1."

St. Louis took advantage of erratic goaltending by Leafs Bernie Parent and a general letdown by the rest of the Toronto club to win at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Garry Unger supplied the scoring punch that notched St. Louis' first win on Toronto ice since the 1967 expansion and goaltender Jacques Caron, playing his first NHL game for St. Louis, kept the Toronto shooters in check.

Detroit, paced by Mickey Redmond's two goals, struck for three goals each, saw the Sabres rebound in the second to 3-3, then pulled away for their victory.

Wing coach Johnny Wilson said it was the Marcel Dionne line Imlach's ability to neutralize the Sabres' No. 1 trio of Gilbert Perreault, Rick Martin and Rene Robert that made the difference.

That line hit the scoreboard just once while under the watchful surveillance of Dionne, Bill Collins and Nick Libett. The Dionne line scored the first two times it was on the ice to send the Wings into their early lead.

John Wiebe and Eddie Joyal scored in the second period at Los Angeles to down the Canucks. Goalie Gerry Cheevers lost his shutout midway into the last period when Vancouver defenceman Dale Tallon notched his 10th goal of the year.

JEAN RATELLE

Jean Ratelle of New York Rangers got three assists Wednesday to move within two points of Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins, who leads the National Hockey League scoring race with 43 points.

Scott Going for Broke

MIAMI (AP) — John Scott, Miami's free safety, plans to play in Sunday's American Football League championship game against Baltimore Colts with a broken bone in his right hand.

But Scott doesn't think that's unusual, considering since he played with the break virtually every minute of the National Football League's longest game.

"I broke it on the fourth or fifth play of the game," Scott recalled in revealing the break he did on the bone on the back of his right hand during a collision with Saturday's 27-24 Dolphin victory over Kansas City Chiefs. "It was hurting me, but I didn't really give it too much thought.

"Then Dick Anderson (the Dolphins' other safety) and I ran together on a deep route and it stuck up. I knew there was a break then. I pushed it back down and we taped it up and I played the rest of the way."

It was important to the Dolphins that he did, for the star Scott Spoonder has been one of the keys to the club's development over the last two seasons after joining the Dolphins in a unique manner—he managed to get out of the option year of his contract.

Scott had left the University of Georgia to play in the Canadian Football League with British Columbia Lions in 1969 "because they offered me a lot of money and it's hard to turn down if you're planning to play professional ball."

After one season, Scott decided he wanted to try the NFL.

"I told Vancouver I didn't want to negotiate," Scott recalled.

"I told them what I wanted to do—leave without playing my option year. I also told them I was not married and didn't need security; that I didn't need the three-year, $125,000 no-cut contract they had offered."

Scott maintained his position despite the lucrative offer and finally, in frustration, Vancouver traded him to Montreal Alouettes. Scott followed the same routine with Montreal and the Als ultimately also became frustrated. So when Miami drafted him as a No. 7 pick, the Dolphins were quick to convince Montreal to place Scott on waivers.

"I don't know what was given or what was taken, but they got me through waivers," he said. "Then I signed with the Dolphins for less than I made up at British Columbia third.

"I was surprised to win," McLaren said. "I just wanted to place among the top runners . . . it will be the last mile I run indoors this season."

Pat Feuerbach, world shot-put record holder at 69-11 and a member of the Pacific Coast Track and Field Club in Long Beach, Calif., it was a perfect ending for his first indoor meet of the season.

He shattered the Canadian open record with a heave of 67-3.

He used an outdoor shot, which is smaller in diameter, during practice sessions before the Saskatchewan meet. Both weigh 16 pounds.

Jeanne Stuart of Western Kentucky State, Bowling Green, Ky., was second; Stuart had a heave of 55 feet 9 inches and Bruce Pirnie of the University of Saskatchewan was third with a toss of 50-2.

Midget Heaves Shot 56 Feet

SASKATOON (CP) — Al Fuerbach used a different shot but set a Canadian open shot-put record at the Saskatchewan Indoor Games Wednesday night.

Grant McLaren didn't think he would do well in the invitational meet in Saskatoon and finished first by 35 yards.

They were among the outstanding performers during the opening session of the annual two-day track and field meet watched by a slim crowd of 2,000.

Jack Taylor, 18, of Arborg, Man., broke a Canadian midget record in the midget men's shot-put event with a heave of 56 feet 4½ inches. John Paul Dragarcio of Perth, Ont., set the mark of 55-3½ in a local indoor meet.

In the men's mile, McLaren, 23, was thinking of scratching himself from the event because he "isn't fast enough" and he's better at distance races.

He took the lead from Keith Manson of Oregon State University with 2½ laps remaining, then pulled away for a convincing victory in four minutes. 5.3 seconds.

Highly-rated Peter Kaal of the Pacific Coast club was second and Bill Smart of the University of Calgary Stampeders 9-2 in a Star Cup hockey match Wednesday night.

Calgary led 3-2 at the end of the first period but the Russians scored three goals in the second to go ahead 5-3 and fired four more goals in the third to clinch the victory.

Calgary has lost two consecutive games and is placed at the bottom of the standings.

Wayne Rivers, a right winger who was born in Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 29, 1945, has signed a record career in professional hockey, but he's still producing goals at a clip that might merit attention from some of the National Hockey League's expansion clubs.

Rivers, who scored 38 goals and earned 37 assists for Hamilton's last season, paced Springfield Kings to a 9-3 American Hockey League victory over Providence Sunday Wednesday with five goals.

Government Council May Help

British Sports Far from Solvent

LONDON (CP) — British sport is afflicted with financial anemia which is likely to continue through 1972.

Generally, it is short of money and wondering how the coffers are going to be refilled. Crowds are falling off in many sports and the government is not over-generous with subsidies.

In First Division soccer, for instance, the day of the regular 60,000 attendance seems to have gone forever. Football this season may lose £2 million, probably taken care of by back overdrafts and loans from wealthy club directors.

One expert estimates that horse racing will be in the red by £50 million, despite contributions from the turnover of bookies which are funnelled to the tracks through a government board. Dog racing is in the doldrums.

First-class county cricket is having trouble keeping afloat, with most of the major clubs in the red, though commercially-sponsored one-day cricket on Saturdays and Sundays has injected new money into a game that has been falling to draw spectators to the traditional three-day matches.

Track and field authorities are complaining of strangulation from lack of funds. Rugby is dying in some sections of the country. Boxing has only a few televised occasions to keep it alive—though its troubles may arise largely from the quality of British fighters.

A newly-revamped government sports council may be of some help. Until this year the council was an advisory board to the minister overseeing sport.

Now it is independent with £4 million to spread around as it sees fit. But there is general agreement that the money will not go far, especially with the Olympic Games year coming up.

One good point is that the committee is a strong one in personnel, headed by Dr. Ragey Bannister, who ran the first four-minute mile, Says Bannister: "Treasuries have to be chipped away at to appreciate that sport has a priority of its own and does not merely get what is left over from roads and housing."

On other British fronts:

The British-Commonwealth-European heavyweight boxing title changed hands twice in 1971. First, perennial champion Henry Cooper lost a disputed decision to Hungarian-born Joe Bugner, now living in Britain. Then Bugner lost the title to Jack Bodell, a pig farmer from Derbyshire.

It does not speak much for the quality of British heavies that in November Bodell was tucked away in 64 seconds by Jerry Quarry of California in a non-title bout.

The sensation of the year in British sport was a crackdown on rough play in soccer. The Football Association, the governing body, decided that fouls must stop—but neglected to let the players in on the decision at the outset.

The result was that there were unprecedented hundreds of bookings of players in early games. A booking is the writing of a player's name in the referee's little black book, for anything from a tough tackle to using bad language. Three bookings bring a player before an FA disciplinary committee, and scores of them get three before play was cleaned up. The new policy has improved the game.

On the Continent, the most talked-about athletes were Evonne Goolagong, an Australian, and Dave Bedford, a Briton.

Miss Goolagong, 20, burst on the scene by winning the French tennis championship in Paris, the world's No. 1 hard courts event. She then went on to win the Wimbledon women's singles.

Bedford set European records for the 10,000 metres (13:23.2). However, he flopped (27:47.6) and the 5,000 metres in the European track and field championships at Helsinki, where the outstanding ability shown than Bedford's these races in times considerable was Finland's Juha Vaatainen, who took both marks.

Hunter Couldn't Pass This Buck

As far as Ron Hubbs is concerned, good things DO come in small packages. Take his .44-40 calibre Winchester for instance.

Besides a handsome trophy from a national brewing company, Ron also managed to collect on "about five different ponds we'd gotten out for whoever shot the biggest buck".

The big whitetail, which field dressed at 200 pounds was dispatched at a range of about 50-yards with three shots from the little Winchester. Hubbs and his companions, which included local resident Murray Campbell, were hunting with hounds when his trophy buck was taken.

He will have his name inscribed on the trophy along with those of former hunters in that area who have shot the buck with most points each season.

One Loss Didn't Matter

KINGSTON (CP) — Oshawa's Eastdale Collegiate lost the final game but won the Queen's University high school basketball tournament Wednesday.

Kingston's Loyalist Collegiate beat Oshawa 41-36 but the championship because they were defeated 42-28 by Oshawa in an earlier game.

John Keck of Loyalist was the top scorer in the tournament with 100 points in five games.

Imperials Win Orillia Marbles

ORILLIA — The Blake Kerr Imperials hardly had time to digest their Christmas turkey before leaving for the eighth annual Orillia midget hockey tournament last weekend, but somehow today it all seems worthwhile.

The Belleville midget all-stars, last year's consolation winners at the high-ranking tournament, walked off with top honors Wednesday by drubbing Michigan's previously unbeaten Allen Park entry 5-1.

Mark Coates and Andy Ristevski scored two goals each for the Imperials, who also got single goals from Peter Burke, Mike Wall, Joey Edwards, and Wayne Clegg.

In all, the Imperials had three trophies to drive home. Goalie Bob Moore and defenceman Wally Dainard were judged the best players at their positions in the 16-team tournament.

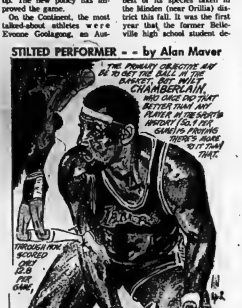
After a disappointing 4 - 3 opening game loss to Brantford, the Belleville midgets beat Lindsay 8-0, Orillia 2-1, and Hamilton 9-3 to earn a berth in Wednesday night's championship game of the round-robin competition.

Their favored Michigan opponents had earlier eliminated defending champion Barrie. Barrie's Terry Martin salvaged some glory, taking home the tourney's most valuable forward trophy.

The Belleville entry is coached by Bob Burrowes and managed by Jerry Murphy.

Perfect Bowling Present?

It will be a happy holiday, indeed for one Belleville five pin bowler tonight. Action will commence at 7 p.m. at the Bowl-O-Drome for the eighth annual "Holiday Classic" tournament.



A maximum of 70 entries will be accepted for the event, with the winner taking home a cash prize of $100.

All competitors will roll four games, with the highest 16 scorers then going into match play. A bowler will be eliminated from further play after losing two games of match play.

Rink Saves Tie for Second

TORONTO — The Quinte Curling Club entry in the Ontario Men's championship were equal to the pressure Wednesday, winning their fifth and final game in the tenth end to earn a share of second place.

The Belleville foursome of skip Pete Reston, Ross Riley, Jim LeBrun, and Jim Lovell shaded Weston 7-6 to force a three-way tie for second interest in the final standings between Weston, Belleville, and Thunder Bay, each with 3-2 records.

The Belleville win prevented Weston from forcing a playoff with Bob MacGregor's winning Guelph rink, who compiled a 4-1 record in the three-day Humber Highland club competition.

The Guelph rink, which has already won District 14 of the provincial schoolboy playoffs and is in contention in the junior tankard, lost its final game 8-3 to Norm Bain, who finished with a 2-3 record. A Timmins entry failed to win any of its five games.

Meanwhile an Etobicoke rink took top honors in the junior women's championship, beating Sioux Lookout 6-5 on the last rock of the game to remain the only unbeaten foursome.

Italy Takes Own Rice

MILAN, Italy (AP) — The Italian Winter Sports Federation shipped 600 pounds of rice to Sapporo, Japan, for the Italian athletes competing in the 1972 Winter Olympics next February.

A spokesman said Wednesday that rice was included in the shipment of food because Japanese rice is different from Italian, and the federation wants no food problems for its team.

Shipped along with the rice were 600 pounds of pasta, 300 pounds of olive oil, 155 pounds of parmesan cheese, 33 pounds of ham, 88 pounds of coffee, an unspecified quantity of canned peeled tomatoes and 1,248 bottles of wine.

Cavaliers No Joke This Year

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

That's no mistake in the National Basketball Association's Central Division standings. Cleveland Cavaliers, believe it or not, are in first place.

The Cavaliers, laughing stocks of pro basketball a year ago, moved into the lead of their oddball division Wednesday night with a 103-102 victory over Philadelphia 76ers.

That moved Cleveland six percentage points ahead of idle Baltimore Bullets and even though their record is a less-than-sparkling 13-22, it's a first place mark and worth every bit as much as the fancy 32-7 log that Milwaukee Bucks have in the Midwest Division and Los Angeles Lakers' 32-3 in the Pacific.

In other NBA action Wednesday, Golden State Warriors topped Cincinnati Royals 107-102, Phoenix Suns took Houston Rockets 134-108, and Milwaukee Bucks whipped Portland Trail Blazers 123-94.

In the American Basketball Association, New York topped Pittsburgh 105-102, Kentucky belted Memphis 125-111, the Floridians took Indiana 123-112, Virginia downed Carolina 128-117 and Utah defeated Dallas 106-102.

Cleveland's 15th victory matched its total for all of last year when the Cavaliers were 15-67. They even had their coach Bill Fitch, making jokes about them. They lost 67 times last year, tying a NBA record.

and finished a fat 27 games behind the division champion Baltimore Bullets.

Butch Beard's driving layup in the final 36 seconds beat the 76ers for Cleveland.

Milwaukee snapped a slump that had produced three losses in four games, by ripping overmatched Portland.

Kareem Jabbar scored 32 points for the Bucks.

Cards Fall Into Right Place

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Brennan Cardinals scored a 65-55 victory over Massey Mustangs Wednesday night in the all-Windsor final of the University of Windsor Holiday Invitational high school basketball tournament.

Windsor schools dominated the 15th edition of the two-day tournament.

One of the city's two other schools in the tournament, Herman Green Griffins, won a playoff for third place and the other, Centennial Cougars, won the consolation final.

It was the seventh time in the last eight years a Windsor school has won the tournament, which started Tuesday with eight schools, four of them from out of town.

Although Windsor teams were dominant, the top individual performance was by forward Al Tekonimie of Sault Ste. Marie Hawaiing Braves, who scored 35 points to spark a 83-57 win over Kitchener Forest Heights in a consolation semi-final Wednesday.

Tekonomie fell one short of equalling the tournament's single-game scoring record of 36 points, set in 1965 by Bruce Coulthard of Tillsonburg Glee. dale.

Herman downed London Westminster Wildcats 51-39 in the third-place playoff after being semi-final game earlier in the day.

Brennan defeated Westminster 69-45 in the championship semi-final.

Centennial stopped Bawaiing 40-36 in the consolation final after whipping the Niagara Trojans of Niagara on the Lake 64-30 in a semi-final game.

Commission Reviews Boxing Bet Charge

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec Athletics Commission says it will review charges of irregularities in a boxing match Dec. 1 between Montrealer Reynald Jantin and Fernand Marcotte of Quebec City when it next meets.

President Rosaire Clermont said Wednesday the commission will review charges at Jantin's manager, George Drouin, that one of the three judges at the fight had placed at 158 lbs at Marcotte before the fight.

Marcotte won the fight in a split decision.

Shortly after the bout, Drouin accused judge Louis Belanger of placing the bet and claimed he had swayed his decision.

Belanger admitted placing a $5 bet for his 17-year-old son during the first commission injury and was suspended.

Clermont said the commission decided to review the situation after receiving a letter from Dr. Jean Laroche of Montreal, president of the Canadian Professional Boxing Association.

Dr. Laroche accused Drouin of not furnishing enough proof to warrant Belanger's suspension and recommended the suspension be dropped.

Skier Starts at Top

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP) — Peter Wilson, a 19-year-old performer from Ottawa, competed in a top international event for the first time, turned in the best Canadian performance in the Wednesday's ski-jumping events for representatives of world countries here.

Wilson placed 56th in the 100-entry field with jumps of 82 and 81.5 metres, for a total of 193.7 points.

Yukio Kasaya of Japan, who came first, netted 245.2 points in the competition. Kasaya's closest rival was East German Rainer Schmidt who had jumps of 93 and 90 metres, and 235.3 points.

The second-best Canadian performance proved to be a two-man affair, in the form of a tie for 76th place involving Ed Kvenbo of Montreal and Slavomir Kardas of Oshawa, who both ended up with 173.7 points.

A MESSAGE FROM The Unemployment Insurance Commission

A few months ago, the Hon. Bryce Mackasey, Minister of Labor, instituted a program which involves the Unemployment Insurance Commission with people in addition to the payment of benefits. The program is entitled Claimants Assistance and the claimant's participation is voluntary.

The purpose of the program is to provide information about methods of seeking and securing employment and how best to utilize the skills of an unemployed person.

The interviews are strictly confidential and the information discussed is not made available even to the other branches of the Commission.

It is a program to help people to help themselves.

Most people who have taken advantage of this service find they are better equipped to search for work with confidence and self assurance. People declare every day that the service they have received has been of considerable help to them in their search for work.

If you receive an invitation to a Claimant Assistance interview, you would be well advised to attend with the assurance that it has been extended with your interest in mind.

Ali Bout Requires Two Wins

LONDON (Reuter) — Muhammad Ali, former world heavyweight boxing champion, will meet Britain's Jimmy Mc Alinden in England in May, provided McAlinden wins his next two fights, Britain promoter Jack Solomons announced Wednesday.

Solomons said Ali and McAlinden would clash in a seven-air fight in Birmingham's Villa Park soccer stadium May 27—provided McAlinden first wins his British heavyweight title fight against Jack Bodell and also beats an unspecified opponent in Manchester Feb. 14.

The promoter said his discussions with Herbert Muhammad, manager of the former champion, were completed Tuesday night.

Dooley Fired By Bears

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Dooley, 41, was fired as head coach of Chicago Bears Wednesday with one year remaining on a five-year contract.

Owner George Halas said the Bears are open for applications to fill Dooley's position.

Halas gave this reason for dismissing Dooley: "The record speaks for itself."

In successive National Foot ball League seasons as head coach, Dooley compiled records of 7-7, 1-13, 8-6 and 6-8 for an overall mark of 20-34.

The Bears finished this season with five consecutive defeats.

House Leaders Wave Truce Flags in Battle Over Farm Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Party House leaders are waving white flags of truce today in attempts to end the Commons war over the farm marketing bill in time for a recess tonight.

The government has been determined to get the bill through the Commons before the House recesses until Feb. 15.

In response to Conservatives led by Jack Horner (Crowfoot), Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson agreed to drop cattle from coverage under the bill.

But that run into New Democrat opposition, led by Arnold Peters (Timiskaming).

As nastiness grew in House debates this week, Government House Leader Allan MacEachen took over Liberal negotiations after both Liberal and Conservative caucuses called for a compromise Wednesday.

The first step toward the peace came hours later, as Conservatives agreed to a Liberal proposal to let the bill pass with all goods except chickens and eggs deleted.

Other commodities could be added by growers votes and provincial agreement.

Later Wednesday, Mr. MacEachen was reported to have agreed to an NDP amendment to protect existing suppliers.

Social Creditors, though opposing the bill, are not expected to delay a final vote.

Mr. MacEachen said Wednesday he expected the vote to come today.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin said the odds were even an agreement could be reached, and NDP House Leader Stanley Knowles said he was reasonably optimistic.

As the talks continued Wednesday, the Commons debate on the bill—sometimes venomous Tuesday—stalled down in a glowering stand-off after a tasty question period.

M. T. McCutcheon (PC—Lambton-Kent) disputed that handling of beans from Northern Ireland.

Critics argue that the corporation may be encouraging violence by interviewing rebel leaders and others who oppose British policy in Ulster.

He said many boards in Ontario are closed shops, excluding entry of young farmers.

Eugene Whelan (L—Essex) predicted the bill would benefit both small and large farmers. He said critics were either ill-informed or were trying to divide farmers.

The boards would be democratically elected, and the farmers had nothing to fear.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) said he supported the principle of marketing boards, but doubted that the bill would benefit farmers.

James G. Lind (L—Middlesex) urged passage to help young farmers with debts could gain protection in the marketplace.

Henri Latulippe (SC—Champlain) said the bill would protect government officials to handle farmers' produce, and that was commendable.

Leopold Corriveau (L—Provencher) and Hugh Faulkner (L—Peterborough) said farmers in their ridings want the bill enacted to "enable them to market across Canada."

BBC Rebels Want to Ban Ulster Reporting

LONDON (AP) — Angry members of the BBC television news staff appear determined to bring to a boil long-simmering arguments about the special responsibilities—if any—of a publicly-owned broadcasting system.

Several members of the staff, alleging political pressure and censorship of news reports on violence in Northern Ireland, have called for a total ban on reporting from Ulster indefinitely.

The publicly-owned BBC, constituted in much the same way as the CBC in Canada, has come under some strong criticism in recent months for its handling of news from Northern Ireland.

But the immediate cause of the current dispute is a BBC plan to present a lengthy program containing a full-scale debate on the Ulster crisis with an outline of various proposals for producing a settlement.

The corporation proposed to subject all those giving views to questioning by a three-man panel made up of a former judge, a former colonial governor and a constitutional lawyer.

But a newspaper report of the planned program set off a ruckus of debate with many Conservative backbenchers here and government members in Northern Ireland crusading cacophonies.

The news-staff members who are threatening revolt—this plan of the group is unclear—argue that the BBC should not suppress pressure by government or other outside pressure in any way. It would be free to report all news according to "fair journalistic practices with no other restraint."

Brown Spots in One's Skin Can Be of Various Kinds

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why do some people get "old age brown spots" on their faces and others not? Most have a few, some have lots.

Why do some have hundreds of wrinkles but some old folks have beautiful skin with hardly a wrinkle?

Is there anything that can be done for the brown spots?—Mrs. M.G.

Spots first. Wrinkles later. These brown spots (so often called "liver spots" although they have nothing whatsoever to do with the liver) can be generally called senile keratoses, although they are not all of the same type. The term "senile" does not, of course, imply intellectual senility, but only that the spots are related to age.

The brown spots may be flat or slightly raised and they are much more likely to occur in people who have been much exposed to the sun and wind. Indeed, such exposure, particularly for folks with light skin, is a more important factor than just age and the spots, quite logically, are more likely to appear on the face, hands, arms or other such skin areas that get the most sun. I suspect that current fashions will result, a few decades from now, in a lot more spots.

Another type of spot is a mole, and although this doesn't seem to be widely known, moles aren't necessarily with us from infancy. Some skins are such that moles tend to appear along with increasing age.

Still other brown spots result from ingredients in some cosmetics, perfumes and drugs, ingredients called photosensitizers, which enhance color changes from ultra-violet light (such as sunlight).

Frankly, there isn't much to be done about any of these spots. There are cosmetics advertised to fade or cover them; some readers tell me they had favorable results, and others said they couldn't see any difference, but it has been my experience that such spots don't bleach.

From the health standpoint, if any of these spots or moles change appreciably in size, shape or color, they should be checked by your doctor. Some of them can become cancerous, but if you are alert for changes, you will have them treated in time to avoid serious trouble.

About wrinkles: Skins vary considerably in texture and firmness. As fat and fibrous tissue under the skin diminishes or becomes less firm, wrinkles appear. Of course persistent facial expressions (frowning, squinting, etc.) can increase the wrinkling, too. But in the main, the type of skin you were born with is a factor that you can't change.

If it is worth the trouble and expense, plastic surgery, taking a few adroit tucks here or there, can smooth out or decrease the wrinkles, at least for a time.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Some lady wrote about glaucoma and you said there was a special instrument to test yourself. What is it called and where can I get one?—Mrs. C.A.

There's some misunderstanding here that had better be cleared up. I said that a special instrument was used, but I did not say it was one you could use yourself. You can't.

The instrument is a tonometer—meaning that it measures tension or pressure. In this case, pressure inside the eyeball. Any ophthalmologist would have it, but not all physicians do. However, some of them (other than ophthalmologists) have learned to use the instrument, to check patients for possible glaucoma.

Trenton Expansion Faces Land Hurdle

Boom Eats Up Factory Sites

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — "1972 is going to be a banner year for Trenton," according to Mayor Duncan McDonald but rapid growth of the community is moving the town into a state of development crisis.

Trenton is fast running out of room to expand at a time when more and more industrialists are interested in setting up new plants here. "They are coming to the town offices all the time asking for information," says the mayor but soon there will be no vacancies on industrial parkland here.

In a discussion today Councillor Paul Tripp, a member of the Trenton council's industrial committee said there are only six industrial sites left within the town limits.

Four of these are designated Class A sites and are located near the Sidney St. — Highway 401 interchange, one other is a Class B property near the Redwood Motel while the last is a Class C site on Stanley St.

Indications are that Trenton will gain at least two new industries in 1972 while two already resident firms are seriously talking expansion of Trenton plant facilities. However, there is an open possibility all six new factory sites could be sold in '72 creating a permanent end to fresh industrial development in the town that is just starting to boom.

At the outside, says Councillor Ted Parker, "it appears there are only two or three years left" for new industrial growth in Trenton, perhaps even less for residential growth.

Time is running out for Trenton homebuilders who, gauging the situation are getting interested in highrise in the westend. Dufferin Developments is now in the process of pushing its subdivision to the town limits, while Sunrise Developments is negotiating to fill in one of the only vacant land tracts in that part of the municipality with still more homes. At the same time, Tange, Rollins and Ontario Housing Corp. are fast filling in vacant pockets of property of the east side.

What happens when the land for new homes and new factories is all gone?

"Trenton needs commercial and industrial growth to survive," contends Paul Tripp "and the situation will have to be dealt with by council in 1972."

"Where the Trenton area is going, is the most important problem that has faced the town since its incorporation," he says.

He feels "discussions must be carried out with township neighbors with a view toward amalgamation . . . we have the services, they have the land . . . we cannot ask Trenton taxpayers to pay for township services if they get no tax revenue out of them."

"The only possibilities open to us," says Councillor Ted Parker, himself an industrialist, "are to acquire more land or make arrangements with the surrounding municipalities."

Mrs. Mary Graham Gives Peace Sign

At 91, No 1972 Resolutions But Just A Wish--for Peace

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Mary Graham is an entire way of life away from the flower power generation.

There's a funny thing though.

At 91 — and as one of the Quinte's district's most senior citizens — her one wish for the new year 1972 being rung in tonight has a contemporary ring:

Peace.

What she'd like to see happen most in that span of time is an end to human conflict; the war in Vietnam — "I'd like to know that was going to be settled . . . that's a bad one;" and all the other conflicts abroad on the globe.

"Peace in the world, dear," hopes this elderly citizen whose sprightly, but gentle, articulate manner bears little testimony to the fact she's in her pre-centennial decade.

What she does prove — at a time when it's the tradition to pause and contemplate the possibility of some refreshing starts in life — is that people are bound by common hopes through years. That, humanity, after all, knows no generation gaps.

Mrs. Graham, now a resident of Hastings Manor on Belleville's western outskirts, was born in Maynooth at the distant end of Hastings County, when pioneer settlers still worked their lands, when a new year's winter storm meant asking four miles to pick up mail and groceries.

Not everything has changed though. At New Year's "they had little celebrations, you know, the same as today," she recalls from her childhood scenery.

"They'd have their drinks, and that. There was no beer in those days. It was all liquor — very cheap, those days. I'm telling you," is her merry recollection.

Eucharist Agreement Is Reached

LONDON (Reuter) — The Roman Catholic and Anglican churches announced a substantial agreement today on one of the issues of belief which have split them for 400 years.

A joint statement by international commission of Catholics and Anglicans, set up two years ago to pave the way for unity, announced that substantial agreement had been reached on the crucial issue of the Eucharist.

The Eucharist, or holy communion, is the most central ritual of Christian worship, centering on Christ's last supper before the crucifixion. Catholic doctrine of transubstantiated that the body and blood of Christ are present in the bread and wine consecrated by worshippers during the service. The doctrine is called transubstantiation.

But since the 16th century, when the Church of England broke away from the Roman Catholic Church, Anglicans have rejected transubstantiation. Instead, Christians that the body and blood of Christ are present "only after a heavenly and spiritual manner."

The international commission's agreement, reached at its last meeting at Windsor in September and published today, is based on the following:

First, both sides see the Eucharist as a "memorial" of the life, death and resurrection of Christ. The second is that the sacrament is . . . if the Savior are present as an offering to the believer awaiting his welcome."

Two Go Mad In Sea Ordeal

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A raft bearing three ailing castaways washed onto nearby Elliott Key after nine blistering days at sea. The one survivor able to talk said two others went mad and jumped overboard during the ordeal.

Coast Guard officials said Tom Rash and Richard Antonio of Wilmington, Del., and Jose Puga of Mexico were the survivors from the 55-foot sports fishing boat Ixtapa, which went down in the Gulf of Mexico Dec. 19 while returning to its home base in Marathon, Fla., from Cozumel, Mexico.

A coast guard spokesman said Antonio told them that the owner of the Ixtapa, John Denton of Newcastle, Del., and Harold Spalding of Wilmington became delirious during hot, thirsty days at sea and leaped from the raft as it drifted in the Gulf Stream.

Antonio said the others on the raft were too weak to stop the thirst-crazed men.

St. Lawrence River Pilots Are Returning to Their Jobs

QUEBEC (CP) — St. Lawrence river pilots began reporting for work Thursday night immediately following the settlement of a dispute which sparked a nine-day walkout, a union spokesman said.

Clinton Rousseau of the Lower St. Lawrence Pilots Corp. told a news conference agreement was reached after a day-long meeting in Ottawa of representatives of the independent union, shipowners and the federal transport department.

Nine ships stopped work Dec. 22 to protest what they called a dangerous drop in the pilots' union, the Shipping Federation of Canada and two oil companies, was to be submitted to the cabinet for formal approval by Transport Minister Don Jamieson, Mr. Rousseau said.

He did not give precise details of the settlement but said terms negotiated successfully earlier this week with Golden Eagle Canada Ltd. and Irving Oil Co. Ltd. were respected.

"The question of limiting the draught of tankers was left to the discretion of experts, in this case the pilots," Mr. Rousseau said.

The two pilots on duty on each ship during the winter season are both to be paid full rate."

The first pilot on a ship in the lower St. Lawrence area earns $5.50 a draught foot plus an additional amount calculated according to total tonnage handled.

The pilots claimed there was a $100 ceiling on earnings if the second pilot and demanded wage parity.

draught caused by overloading on some tankers and the refusal of shipowners to pay both pilots assigned to a ship full wage rates.

The new guide ships through strong current and a narrow channel between Quebec City and Les Escoumins, 110 miles downstream.

The settlement headed off what could have mushroomed into a disruption of shipping across Canada by the Canadian Merchant Service Guild which represents 4,000 other marine pilots.

The draft agreement, signed by the federation of Canada and two

Mintoff Supported By Libya

VALLETTA (Reuter) — Prime Minister Dom Mintoff, backed by pledges of Libyan support, prepared today for a showdown with Britain over his ultimatum that British forces leave Malta by midnight tonight.

It was clear that Britain would ignore the deadline while going ahead with its own plans for a phased withdrawal. The 3,500 British servicemen and their 7,000 dependants prepared to celebrate the New Year on the island.

With no sign that either Mintoff or British Prime Minister Edward Heath would back down in the crisis, the big question was what would happen next.

A British military spokesman described the Maltese demand for the evacuation of the forces and their families by midnight as "quite unreasonable."

In any case, he added, Britain had paid for the use of Malta's facilities until March 31. The British land, sea and air forces had a great amount of equipment and stores and it would take months to remove them.

Mintoff returned to Malta early today from eight hours of talks in Tripoli with the Libyan leader, Col. Muammar Kadafi, in which he got pledges of Libyan aid and support for his aims to get the British and NATO presence removed from the island.

Benson Sees 'Upsetting Things' Unless Canadians Own Economy

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians must move toward greater ownership of their economy in the long run or "there are going to be very upsetting things," Finance Minister Edgar Benson said in an extensive interview with The Globe and Mail Thursday.

However, Mr. Benson added: "I don't think that there should be anything like a prohibition of foreign investment in Canada because some foreign investment brings in very useful things."

He also said he thinks Canadians should be encouraged to invest abroad.

"I . . . think that if you are going to have relative satisfaction of the Canadian people, in the long run, you are going to have to move gradually toward a greater degree of Canadian ownership.

"I think now this can be accomplished because if we continue in a position where we are doing as well on trade and current account as we presently are, then the funds are available."

Mr. Benson was named Man of the Year Thursday by the newspaper's Report on Business section.

When asked why he feels Canadian ownership of their economy, Mr. Benson said:

". . . There is a great upward surge of nationalism all over the world and it's not just in Canada. You meet it in places where people become resentful. They think that they're not getting a fair return out of th assets of their country and I think that feeling has been gradually developing in Canada — perhaps with some justification."

The finance minister said he feels Canadians should be encouraged to invest "as much as possible, in the Canadian economy move toward ony and the development of the Canadian economy."

But, he added: "You know, I think there will always be areas where we will have to have people from outside invest."

Canada is also going to have to effect an industrial strategy in order to compete in the future in world markets, he said, and that involves long runs and large production.

"More and more," he added, "we are going to have to look toward this aim and how we can attain it."

"No, I just think we have to see what our policy is going to be in the future with regard to capital flows. And this is of course tied in with foreign investment in a way, although I am not thinking of it from that point of view—I'm thinking of it from an over-all Canadian balance of payments view. We have to watch what we are going to do."

Questioned about the possibility of a free trade area with the United States, Mr. Benson said it would take a long time and "certainly . . . a lot of safeguards before we move into what might be called a free trade area with the United States."

"I think that we are moving into the kind of world where we are going to have to have large plants concentrated to handle or service large markets. Certainly that means Canada is in a position where it could have a huge market in combination with the United States. If there were reasons to ensure the fairness of location of industry, we might benefit it greatly from some kind of free trade in particular products."

Snowfall: 4½ inches

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Snowflurries will be most frequent in localities with a wind off the Great Lakes, including the Bruce Peninsula, eastern sections of Niagara Peninsula and sections just south of Georgian Bay and Lake Huron. Clear periods and cold temperatures are forecast for southern Ontario tonight and New Year's Day.

Winter Settles In On Weekend

The New Year will ring in clear and crisp and even in the Quinte district tonight — after a snowstorm that would have made an ideal White Christmas had it hit exactly a week before.

But any lingering Christmas spirit was left in tatters by the blow that several feet (inches of snow in 35-mile-an-hour gusts across the Belleville area yesterday) was making travel miserable in town and country and slowing traffic on main highways.

Conditions were mild in the city area compared to the blinding glare the northern end of the Quinte district — which seemed to bear the brunt of the storm that swept southern Ontario.

A department of highways official at Bancroft today estimated seven inches of snow fell in the area and travel was so dangerous on Highway 28 to Peterborough, that snowplows were kept off the road, to be used only in emergencies. It took 12 hours for the storm to blow itself out in the Bancroft region, he said.

Provincial police at Bancroft stationed cruisers at strategic points in the area, dispatching them only when necessary.

Today, for New Year's Eve, the district glistened in sunny and cold weather in the wake of the storm, and the mercury dipped to a low of one below in Belleville.

(At Bancroft the overnight low was 29 below).

Overnight it will remain clear and cold with a low dipping in around zero in the Belleville Trenton area, the CFB Trenton weather office reported.

New Year's Day skies will be cloudier, weather milder with a high between 25 and 30 degrees.

Yesterday's storm hit the Belleville area early, building in intensity during the morning.

In the city, streets were clogged by the sustained fallout and public works sanders were kept on continuous patrol, to keep traffic moving.

On surrounding highways, crews worked to midnight plowing back the snow as drifting became the main threat.

A department of highway's spokesman at Marysville said visibility was poor although highway surfaces remained in fairly good condition since warmer temperatures prevented the snow from sticking to pavements.

The storm struck as holiday travel was beginning to build.

Buses moving passengers between Toronto and Montreal made their Belleville stops generally about a half-hour late but "they all came through," said a Voyageur-Colonial agent in the city today. Passenger travel was heaviest, but more evenly divided between runs.

A CN spokesman said main passenger runs were delayed more by unexpectedly heavy passenger volume than adverse weather, although "the storm did impede a little."

One Toronto - Montreal passenger train was reported about 25 minutes late, another slightly more than an hour behind schedule on Belleville stops, said a despatch official.

Passenger traffic was so heavy, a special train was run through to Ottawa. Normally, Ottawa passengers are carried on regular Montreal runs, making a connection at Brockville.

The storm petered out in Belleville in late afternoon. However, works crews stayed on the job during the night, plowing streets and sidewalks.

A public works spokesman said the job of disposing of snow piles would likely be done Sunday.

Boom Produces Leaner Crisis

could lead to Murray and Sidney Township buying service from Trenton to support new industry and subdivisions he explained. Already there have been a few bids from potential township developers to have the town push services out into the countryside.

"If we are going to be limited to our present boundaries, there is no question the townships are going to grow fast when they get water and sewer service through the regional boards" says the mayor. Although plans are moving ahead for a Lake Ontario water pipeline to the area at present to the town, if suitable terms can be reached.

Similarly, the treatment services at the Trenton plant may be expanded not only to serve the town but the surrounding townships as well. Trenton sees itself as the logical source of services for much of Sidney and Murray.

Liquor Store Manager Retires

PICTON (Staff) — Picton resident Barton Reid retired today as manager of this town's branch of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario following more than 26 years of employment there.

Assistant manager Harry Beaumont, Picton, has been appointed as Mr. Reid's replacement as of January 3, 1972.

Mr. Reid obtained his discharge from the armed services in 1945 and joined the staff of the Picton branch of the LCBO then managed by George Dingwall.

He worked as assistant manager until 1956 when he was appointed to his present job.

House Ransacked

Thieves conducted a thorough ransacking of Dr. A. Fleming's home at 311 Bridge St. East, sometime between Dec. 28 and last night, when the family returned home.

Approximately $500 worth of goods and small cash was taken. The entire house, from bathrooms to bedrooms, was completely searched.

Missing items include two radios, a portable television, a set of silverware, a camera and a pair of field glasses. A half-gallon bottle of milk had been left in the upstairs bath room.

Entry was gained after a basement window was forced.

The family had been away since Dec. 23. City police, however, conducted a regular check of the home. The last was made Tuesday.

At 91 She Hopes For Peace

As a married woman she travelled much around Ontario in the days of its last dramatic settlements of mining from Renfrew to New Liskeard and Cobalt as mining fever etched new frontiers in the northern wilderness; to Kirkland Lake, when its cold fields still reflected twilight; finally, the last move in the early 1940s to Belleville where relatives lived.

Among the cards she's picked up enroute to her 92nd year, is the advisability of treading cautiously about New Year resolutions. Once made they must be kept — and the vagaries of life often test such resolves beyond the limit.

"It's better not to make New Year resolutions," advises Mrs. Graham. "Only just think for the best."

And what's best for all in 1972?

Mrs. Graham returns to her original theme. After all, she has some personal involvement in a quieter, more harmonious world. A nephew in California, she says, has a son on leave from Vietnam and she hopes he won't have to return.

Never before in her lifetime, says Mrs. Graham, can she recall so much universal upset.

"Peace in the world my dear," she reiterates. "That's what we need very badly. Would I ever love that."

Trees Out Next Week

The annual Christmas tree rounding by Belleville will commence the middle of next week.

That's the word from the city public works department which will start the tree pickup on Wednesday January 5.

"I thought we might start on January 3, but if we start too early invariably a number of residents don't get their trees out in time and they miss the collection," commented City Engineer Wilbur Purcell.

On the other hand, Mr. Purcell said, if trees are put out too early they get caught up by the wind and are blown down the street.

Picton Parties All Organized

PICTON (Staff) — "What are you doing New Year's Eve" is a question that readily can be answered in Prince Edward with plans for club, resort and hotel parties to night.

Picton Golf and Country Club seems to be one of the favorite night spots for toasting the new year according to a steward who commented yesterday that tickets for a dance and luncheon have been sold out for a month.

Music for this gala celebration will be provided by a Kingston orchestra.

Rickarton Castle Hotel reported that tickets have been sold to more than 40 couples for its New Year's Eve frolic which ticket still available for 40 additional twosomes.

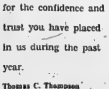
Cab Driver Big Winner

TRENTON (Staff) — A 32-year-old man was charged with robbery yesterday in Trenton following a routine investigation by town police here.



Trenton police questioned the individual on a downtown street Wednesday and according to Det. Sgt. Sid Vickers were "not satisfied with his answers so they took him over to the station."

Later that day, police found he was the same man being sought by Metro Toronto police in connection with the earlier robbery of the Bank of Nova Scotia branch at the Trenton intersection of Spadina Ave. and Dundas St. W. A man threatened a teller and escaped by taxi to Trenton with $560, giving the cab driver a $115 tip.

Picton Pool Plan Decision Tuesday

PICTON (Staff) — Members of the swimming pool committee for the Picton Rotary Club continue their study of plans for a community pool with a final decision from the general membership concerning this project expected next Tuesday.

Robert Charlebois, chairman of the pool committee this week told Rotarians that a suggestion to install the pool in a gymnasium at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute has been opposed by school principal Paul Burd and director of education John McNeil.

It was stressed by opponents that the need for a gymnasium seemed greater than the need for a pool.

The concept of an open pool was rejected owing to the possible dangers involved.

Mr. Charlebois plans to meet with John McNeil next week to draft plans for a heated outdoor pool complete with change room facilities. Suggested cost figure for this type of pool was from $55,000 to $60,000.

The pool would be constructed on school-owned property situated behind the high school.

In general club discussion of the proposed pool it was noted that other organizations might be urged to become involved with the project with the Rotary Club keeping control and co-ordinating it.

One Rotarian stated that if the pool project would lead to keeping the club in debt for the next 20 years, he would not support it.

Questioned in regard to the advantages of having the pool on school property, Mr. Charlebois said that the pool could be used at all times every day of the week.

After 5 p.m. each day Picton recreation director Wayne Ring would become responsible for the pool and it could be enjoyed on a county-wide basis.

At next Tuesday's regular meeting of the Rotary Club, members will decide whether or not they wish to continue with plans for the pool.

No Forties Here Yet

Local imbibing celebrants will have to import their drinks for giant bottles this New Year's Eve until the third week in January, a spokesman for Belleville Liquor Control Board of Ontario retail sales outlets said yesterday afternoon.

James Matthews said local outlets have been deluged with calls and customers demanding the new 40-ounce bottles of liquor.

Rumors of their arrival have been running rampant, but while there are reports everywhere, there's not a 40-ounce drop to drink.

When shipments start to arrive in late January, 115 Canadian brands plus nine imported varieties will be added to the present list of approximately 800 now lining outlet shelves.

"We were fed to believe each company would have five 40-ounce bottles," Mr. Matthews explained.

"It's entirely up to the distillers as to which brands he wants to place in the larger bottles."

In a circular from Toronto head office, LCBO managers have been told to expect 28 per cent of the present sales of 26-ounce bottle will be replaced once the new sizes invade the sales sheets.

Lolacity, Corby's Distillery will be listing six brands . . . Royal Reserve rye, Special Select, London Dry Gin, Lamb's White Rum, Lamb's Palm Breeze Rum and Grand Duke Vodka.

Before LCBO outlets can place their orders after sales begin, however, the companies must list their wares on the special bulletins issued periodically.

While connoisseurs await the arrival of larger bottles, the special miniature sets provided this year have not proved popular.

The boxes containing either 10 or 12 small bottles, retailing for $4.75 to $6.30, have not been the success hoped for.

And surprisingly enough, Corby's variety packs are not available in Belleville. "Once they get to Ottawa or Toronto warehouses, those cities get first grab.

No Big Ones at LCBO?

Spokesmen for the Liquor Control Board of Ontario report new 40-ounce bottles promised for Christmas, will not be in until late January. This spirited shopper, however, goes for even bigger game. His creel is something along the lines of ten times as big . . . 400 ounces. The bottle is a plastic "canip" resilon.

Family Reunion

Belleville's Tibetan community gathered this week to say goodbye to their mentor, Sanan Caplan, who adopted them through their first six months in Canada. The 22 Tibetans in the Belleville community posed for a family portrait with Mrs. Margaret Jamieson Stavely (centre of second row) and Miss Caplan (fourth from right above Mr. Stavely on the stairs of the old Forin home, original home of the builder of City Hall.

Christmas Sharing Program Took Care of Everyone

Belleville's Christmas Sharing Program was an unqualified success this year.

Thanks to the response of the people of the city, every family had a special holiday dinner at Christmas.

Registration totalled 408, and every family on the list received a food basket, either packed by donors or ordered from a supermarket and paid with cash donations to the fund.

"The program was very successful this year. There was an early and constant response," said the program's committee chairman, Mrs. Selma Bochenek.

Registrations were up this year. At Christmas 1970, 349 families were registered. But the increase was the result of several groups, who had never notified the program in former years, now reporting. Either names of families they usually assist.

"Not all were welfare cases, by any means," said Mrs. Bochnek. "Many were people who had difficulties this year and weren't on the list last year and probably won't be in need of help next year."

Firemen, who provide toys for all the children on the Sharing Program's list, estimated about 1,300 youngsters would need assistance. However, the number rose before the firefighters had completed their Santa Claus assembly.

Mrs. Bochnek said new registrations were taken as late as Friday, the day before Christmas. Emergency help per orders took care of the families.

Donors totalled 254. For the 54 families who did not have donors, baskets were ordered from a supermarket, using the cash from donations to the program.

Schools and churches took care of many families, with every secondary school in the city participating. Nicholson Catholic College students collected $100 in addition to packing several baskets.

Several schools had delivery problems, finding no one at home during the limited hours available to senior students for deliveries.

These baskets were voluntarily re-delivered by Central Taxi, which made a cab available for the purpose until all the baskets reached their destination.

Thirty-five baskets ordered from the supermarket were delivered by Susan Hesbrue of the Central Volunteer Bureau's Furniture Exchange. With her car and brother, she spent two evenings seeing the hampers reached the families they were intended for.

Tibetan-Canadians Fete Their Friend

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The dawning of a new year brings the beginning of a new way of life for Belleville's tiny Tibetan community.

Here only six months, the community has swelled to 22, twice the number of the original group of 11 who stumbled wearily into the Targon Motel last June after a 24-hour flight from New Delhi.

Now, most are on their own: some working, some between jobs, some still perfecting their English so that they can take employment.

No longer are they together — only one family remains at the Targon. The rest have apartments scattered throughout the city.

This is in line with the philosophy they expressed to Canada Manpower's James Stavely on their arrival. They had no desire to set up ghettoes, they said. They wanted to integrate with Canadians as soon as possible.

Now, their eyes light up with anticipation at the mention of that day, 18 years from now, when they will go to citizenship court to be proclaimed Canadians. To that end they study English with intensity, the day they achieve citizenship looms as large in their lives as a christening, a wedding or a graduation in a native Canadian's.

But, as the passing of the old year brings its regrets, so the Tibetans have a loss to mourn.

Over the holiday season they said goodbye to their guide, mentor, counsellor and friend, Sanan Caplan.

Miss Caplan met the first group of refugees at Toronto and accompanied them to Belleville. She seldom left them afterwards.

Officially, she was hired by the Ontario government to teach them English 25 hours a week. Unofficially, at her own time and expense, she was everything else — advisor, confidante and interpreter in a strange and confusing land.

Now, she has left them to return to her first love—India.

As a graduate in English from the University of Toronto, she first went to India as a CUSO volunteer. She worked in Calcutta in a variety of helping roles for 3½ years.

Illness forced her home to Toronto last January.

Her fluency in Hindi, the universal language of India, led to her appointment with the provincial government to Belleville with the first Tibetans to be settled here.

But her sights were set on India.

Now she is on her way, with a legacy of self-sustaining people to enrich this city's life blood.

Miss Caplan returns to uncertainty — about the status of the unclaimed Calcutta, and about her role in India.

"All those 18 million refugees from Bangladesh won't go back," is all she will say about her future activities. "They have nothing to go to, and why should they return and add to the misery already there?"

But Miss Caplan's return to India is different. This time, she says, "I want to come back."

Her experience in Belleville for the last six months is a factor in her change of heart.

"The reason I love my country so much is that it has given a home to so many people," she said at a farewell party given by her 22-member Tibetan family.

The occasion was marked at 2 Forin St., home of Manpower's Mrs. Dorothy Brown, who met the Tibetans on their arrival and has helped them ever since.

The house is one of Belleville's most historic, the home of John Forin, architect of many eastern Ontario court houses and of Belleville city hall, considered one of the finest of its type in the country.

"I bet old John Forin never dreamed he'd built this house to hear a Tibetan prayer sung in it," chuckled Mr. Stavely as the meal began with a ceremonial chant.

The women of the community had cooked a typical Tibetan dinner, and it was preceded by a Christian grace said by Manpower's Miss Collins and a Buddhist chant led by one of the Tibetans.

Her absolutely paid Miss Caplan the ultimate honor when they garlanded her with scarves in the same ceremonial gesture they bestowed on Prime Minister Trudeau during his visit here.

In her typical manner, she directed the honor toward Mr. Stavely and the Belleville community.

"There is no one in Canada equipped to help these people and really care for them like Mr. Stavely," she said. "He has been a father to them and to me, too."

It has been an open secret in Ottawa's diplomatic ranks for many months that to the Dalai Lama's record book Belleville scores the highest marks for its treatment of Tibetan immigrants.

Miss Caplan promised to visit the Dalai Lama while in India.

"When he hears where I am from, he'll let me in," she promised the Tibetans.

It was left to Terrence Wumbong, one of the first two Tibetan immigrants to come to Canada to pay the ultimate tribute.

Susan was sent by heaven to help the Tibetans," he told them. "We pray that heaven will do the same for Susan."

As Others See Us

As a northern race with an austerity of personality and a harshness to much of our vast landscape and all of this allied for a good chunk of the year to winter's icy lash, it is not surprising that strangers find us a little chilling, a little too distant for comfort, a little superficial even with whatever charm we do display.

Among our own there is a "don't-touch-me" aspect to the individual that leaves him as long-of-face after Christmas, for example, than before. Maybe it is something to do with Thoreau's words about most men living lives "of quiet desperation," and in this regard the fair sex are no quicker to relieve the general gloom with a smile than are the men.

Consider a Greek woman's views on this theme. Mrs. Iris Malakeli and her husband and 20-year-old son came to Canada after ten years in Venezuela where they had a business manufacturing school uniforms. They came here after a change in government in that country and because they wanted security and law and order.

Here are some of Mrs. Malakeli's thoughts when interviewed by The Toronto Star: "In Greece and Venezuela we led a neighborly life, where neighbors were almost part of the family. Canadians are much colder in their relationships. They don't bother you; neither do they befriend you . . . Canadians are very open about discussing their troubles. This includes money troubles, parent troubles, job troubles. In Greece such things stay within the family. In Venezuela, which has a Spanish-style culture, there is a similar false emphasis on pride and dignity (Canadian frankness in this regard Mrs. Malakeli found appealing) . . . The Greeks travel in packs. On Saturdays several families will get together, travelling to the seashore or the mountains . . . in contrast, many Canadian families strive for isolation, building cottages on remote islands, just to be by themselves."

Asked if anything still surprised her about Canadians Mrs. Malakeli, here since 1966, said: "I think it is their friendliness one moment; their indifference the next. I will meet people in the store, with smiles on all sides. Two minutes later I will pass the same people on the street, and they won't recognize me."

We are reminded of Wyndham Lewis' observation some years ago" . . . Canada should give more care to making itself agreeable and gracious in its intercourse with strangers . . ."

But this Malakelis say they have the security they want here (for the lack of it they are not interested in visiting the United States) and plan to stay. "When Greeks get excited, they break things. In Venezuela they revolutionize the government. Canada is much more orderly; we know exactly where we stand."

On the eve of a new year we are thankful for such stability, but let us try to inject more warmth into the national character.

There Too!

Alcoholism according to an article in the current issue of The National Geographic magazine, is a growing problem among the urbanized African in South Africa. It is a by-product of the comparative affluence of the African in the land of apartheid, what the government there regards as separate, parallel development of the races.

In this the Zulus (the article was about this predominant segment of the black race) and other tribal peoples have a problem common to our own native population, the Indians and Eskimos, as well as the Maoris of New Zealand.

As the ways of the white man take root among these peoples so too, unhappily, do his more undesirable habits gain ground. The article showed a black doctor, one of 175 black South Africans with medical degrees, who is conducting a pilot program on alcoholism among his people.

Incidentally, there is a picture of some of these Africans enjoying their suds, and soberly at that, and the label on the bottle is perfectly familiar. A Canadian brew would have an advertisement at Umlazi railroad station, for this selfsame beer, read: "Go for the man's brand — America's lusty, lively, beer."

The company's brands certainly are to be found in the United States, but this is a Canadian brew and perhaps our trade commissioner in Pretoria might take this up with the South Africans.

Happy New Year

Ill-Health and the Years Take Their Toll in Ottawa

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Even if every MP who runs in the oncoming election wins and returns to Parliament, it will be a House of Commons strangers. . .

Seldom, if ever, even before the campaign call to ceremonial arms, have so many said they will not be answering.

For some it is a matter of long, hard, parliamentary mileage with the tread of years wearing thin. And understandable, this.

For others it is a question of health. Heart attacks have taken their toll, crippling when they have not killed.

For yet others, and this is a little hard to understand, boredom, frustration, disillusion and disappointment combine to bring what has to be regarded as early if not premature retirement from federal public life.

And these, because the motive is disturbing, are the more interesting cases.

There are the two former Liberal cabinet ministers, Eric Kierans and Paul Hellyer.

While neither has come right out with it and said they will not be running, they have been making what seem to be signals of political disengagement.

Eric Kierans, since leaving the Trudeau cabinet in protest against economic policies which have brought industrial recession, labor lay-offs and unemployment, has spent little time in Parliament.

The Commons lacks what he calls "reality." Mr. Kierans has told friends, and he finds more interest in the university and service club lecture circuit, preaching his own economic gospel of industrial nationalism.

The hints are he will make university a full-time career.

Paul Hellyer will run again — if.

And that "if" is not a small one, for it involves his Action Canada and the number a reequality of candidates he may gather around him.

If Action Canada fails, Paul Hellyer, leader of this potential party, will fall with it.

In no previous Parliament in living memory is the old order changing as in this.

Bowing off the political stage before the next election are more old pros than will be separated, among them some of the men who, working with Prime Ministers Louis St. Laurent, John Diefenbaker, Lester Pearson and, in the last four years, Pierre Trudeau, shared in the decision-making that has shaped governments and the country.

These veterans of the long years include George McIlraith, the recently retired Solicitor General with 23 years in Parliament. Public Works Minister Art Laing, Justice Minister Allen Greene, Treasury Board President Charles M. Drury, and such old guardsmen of the Diefenbaker cabinets as Defence Minister Doug Harkness, Forestry Minister Hugh John Flemming, Health Minister Waldo Monteith.

Odd thing about the retirements, both pre-announced or intended, is that those who are going are among the best known names in Parliament.

Which is not to suggest that only the nonentities remain, although some of them will.

But it is to say that few if any of these "doyens" . . . as Prime Minister Trudeau once dubbed them, will not be hanging on.

Just run down the names of those already listed as retiring and realize how much poorer Parliament will be.

Poorer still, because there are others who say they will not be back.

The roll-call of these includes Jack McIntosh, the Tory rebel who says his Conservative Party is too liberal or even socialist for his right wing requirements . . . Gordon Aiken of Parry Sound . . . Bert Badanai of Fort William . . . Chester MacRae of New Brunswick . . . Louis Comeau of Nova Scotia . . . Harold Winch of Vancouver . . . Robert Thompson of Alberta . . . Melvin McQuaid of Prince Edward Island . . . Bruce Beer of Peel . . . Marvin Howe of Wellington . . .

The list lengthens by the day. They will be replaced by new and younger men who never knew Parliament in the days when the big "P" did not payten?" Tommy Douglas, too, who first entered the Commons back in 1935. And George Hees, who will be 62 next year but refuses to act his age, still carrying on with enormous zest like he was in the prime of his rah rah RMC and Argo days. <

"One for the road . . . and one for my friend, here!"

Nixon and Heath Grapple

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — It seems a long time since the leaders of Britain and the United States prided themselves about having a more or less common policy on world problems.

After the wartime meetings between U.S. President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Churchill, talk of a special relationship between the two countries became a common feature of international politics.

Before the Second World War, Anglo-American ties were based primarily on a common ethnic tradition.

But the growth of organizations such as the English-Speaking Union tended to dread the fact that the U.S. was born as a result of conflict with England and a substantial degree of antagonism between the two survived into the 19th century.

Thus the erosion of the Anglo American alliance since the Second World War constitutes a return to historical normality rather than the understanding of a natural pattern of relations.

At their latest summit meeting, President Nixon and Prime Minister Heath seem to have noted this tempering of the relationship.

As a result, they sought to put their communique on this matter in keeping with the current political mood.

Heath spoke as the leader of a nation which now belongs to Europe, rather than a free trade area government oriented towards English-speaking North America.

For his part, Nixon referred to similarity of involvements in American foreign policy, notably his mellowing towards China.

Both Heath and Nixon indicated that Canada was consulted in agreement on important issues of principle. But there also were references to disagreement about tactics.

Friction has developed between London and Washington over U.S. support of Pakistan in its conflict with India.

One French observer of the Nixon-Heath meeting remarked that the British had expressed their disagreement with American policy on this point—and with a frankness virtually unknown at such meetings.

What might be in the offing is a sharply increased sense of independence on Britain's part as far as its relationship with the U.S. is concerned. "

This may prove to be one of the first legacies of the policy which—ironically—with Washington's support—has moved Britain towards entry into the European Common Market.

Gravel Pits Target of Legislation

By DON O'HEARN
From the Queen's Park Bureau of The Intelligencer

TORONTO — Eventually, it seems, we are going to have a worthwhile program of rehabilitation of gravel pits in the province.

After some three years of stewing about the problem the government has taken a first step by passing amendments to regulations controlling the location and surface appearance of pits.

It has taken only a first step. The initial program will apply only to pits along the Niagara escarpment, and it is officially unlimited. It will be three years, which probably means it will be longer, before the program will apply to all the pits in southern Ontario under the gravel development that is projected.

And it isn't clear at all yet just what will happen in Northern Ontario.

WORK WONDERS?

Now that we do have the program, however, even if limited it can be valuable.

One of the first steps the government, under the department of mines, took on the gravel pit question was to have a study made of what physically could be done about them.

And this study, completed more than two years ago, showed there was a great deal that was possible.

It projected future recreation lands, parks and housing developments that probably would be an improvement in much of the pit land over its natural state.

The report showed that rehabilitation really could work wonders.

And with a good many of the pits being located fairly close to urban centres they could turn into quite valuable land.

So while the program has been slow in arriving and will be slow in developing, it should turn into a good thing for everyone, including the operators.

Incidentally, the tendency will be to blame mines minister Lee Bernier for the long delay in the program.

This will not be correct or fair.

Mr. Bernier has been a minister for less than a year. And since he has been in office there has been action.

The Trentonian

Somebody once wrote some lines about Nature, red in tooth and claw." Some modern sentimentalists like us to think that animals are great big lovable creatures that would not hurt a fly. But predation is a law of nature, and we ought not to allow ourselves to be misled by sentimental twaddle about the pleasures being nothing but great big pets.

At the moment it is also foolish to blame wild creatures for predation, as though it were unnatural or overly destructive. We are thinking, of course, in particular of wolves, that perennial object of violent argument.

At a sportsman's club meeting, a Lands and Forests official spoke of deer being fed and said the role of the wolf in this area appeared to be overplayed. One club member attacked that in the meeting, and said he was sick of hearing it. That he knows deer are killed by wolves.

Nobody has yet provided convincing evidence that wolves kill for the sake of killing. Wild dogs do. But the biggest one we have seen was collectively around the fact that a bounty is paid to kill wolves.

We are not stupid as to regard killing wolves as murder. You can only murder a human being. But wanton killing, on the false ground that a wolf is a destroyer, is reprehensible. If that argument is valid, let's create a campaign to rid the sea of sharks. It would be as sensible.

A Critical Look at the Parole System in Canada

Montreal Gazette

The government's guidelines in the field of parole, Solicitor-General Goyer told the Senate committee on legal and constitutional affairs, "must be reviewed thoroughly." It is impossible to determine whether that statement should be cause for satisfaction. The solicitor-general did not say whether he thought parole was too easy or too hard to obtain. He then adds to the confusion by saying that "there is an obvious gap between the Parole Board and its services and the Canadian Penitentiary Service."

Appearing before the same committee the next day, George Street, chairman of the Parole Board, said he didn't know either what Mr. Goyer had meant by a review of guidelines. For his own part, Mr. Street seemed a little too pleased with his board's record. He thought the board had been too harshly criticized and he asked for the senators' support.

He told the committee that "only" 5,250 of the 38,441 prisoners released on parole since 1959 have been returned to jail for violating parole or committing another crime. That is one out of every seven. That would seem to be a rather high rate of failure, especially as it does not include those persons who have committed crimes and never been caught.

Questioned about parole policies, Mr. Street expressed the opinion that most prisoners jailed for non - violent offences should eventually be paroled, which seems sound. But then he made a statement that ought to invite deeper reflection. He said the parole board had to exercise more care with a "dangerous sexual offender" or a person convicted of murder applied for parole. Should anyone who can be characterised as a "dangerous sexual offender" or anyone capable of killing in cold blood ever be considered for parole? Does the board's philosophy not reflect a conception of a "dangerous criminal" as someone who needs to be shown the error of his ways rather than someone who has an irremediable defect or character or personality?

Mr. Street told the senators that the Parole Board looks primarily for a change of attitude in a prisoner. But he also admitted that some of the worst criminals are the best prisoners because they know their parole chances depend upon good conduct and a proper attitude.

The Trentonian

A nation which weights its laws in favor of criminality and criminal actions is asking for destruction. Legalizing of things not fit to mention has characterized our laws for some time. Our mollycoddling of criminals and criminal actions is now an established and notorious fact.

We are reaping a harvest in a vast increase in crime. Many youngsters are emboldened to commit vicious crimes. Bank robberies were never so numerous. Murder has increased, no matter what the authorities may say; it has done so because there is no longer a sufficient penalty, namely death.

Parole laws lean over to let the worst criminals go at large, while innocent men languish in prison and the tangle of legal red tape keeps them there long after everybody knows they committed no crime.

This country needs not more by an overwhelming majority, but needs an overhaul of its basic moral standards. If we don't do it, we shall destroy ourselves.

Human Rights Must Be Protected

Archbishop of Ottawa Favors Church Intervening in Politics

OTTAWA (CP) — Most Rev. Joseph Aurele Plourde, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Ottawa, says the church should be ready to flex its political muscles on behalf of human rights.

"More and more, the role of the church will be to denounce any situation or structure that is violating human rights," said Archbishop Plourde in an interview.

The church should not shrink from conflict with political authorities, if necessary. But it should not ally itself with a particular party or group.

The 58-year-old archbishop, former president of the Canadian Catholic Conference of Bishops, is part of the progressive wave in the Canadian Catholic Church.

Archbishop Plourde and other Canadian bishops sided with the progressive wing of the church on important issues at the recent world synod of bishops in Rome.

In one of its decisions, the synod agreed to carry out a detailed study of how the church can best use its financial means of liberating people suffering under political oppression.

The Ottawa archbishop is good-humored but vigorous in conversation, arguing for gradual reform in the church.

As auxiliary bishop of Alexandria, Ont., and later as archbishop of Ottawa, he has encouraged greater lay participation in church matters.

Archbishop Plourde said in an interview that church members must be made aware of the changing role of the church.

In the past, the church provided some services, such as education, to fill gaps left by society. The church became associated with the established order.

"Today the church is far more independent." Now one of the major tasks was to defend human rights.

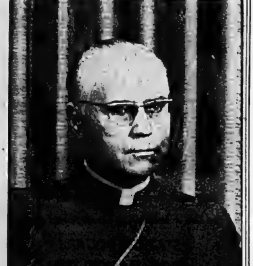
This may mean slipping into political action because politics are everywhere, said Archbishop Plourde. "You can't live your life of faith without considering politics".

Offering an example of political action, the archbishop said that the church could speak out against packing dozens of families into low-rental housing projects set apart from other homes.

People in these housing projects feel cut off from the rest of society, he said.

It was not the church's role to offer solutions to economic and technical problems. But competent Christian laymen could help.

Some states will resent this new attitude of the church, he said. They could go so far as to break diplomatic relations with the Vatican, but the church had to accept this risk.



Archbishop Plourde said he regards Archbishop Helder Camara of Recife, Brazil, as a "kind of prophet."

Archbishop Camara has been an outspoken critic of conditions under which the Brazilian poor are suffering. He has on occasion been limited in his movements by the Brazilian authorities.

"I think this man should receive the full support of the church because of the prophetic dimension of his work," said Archbishop Plourde.

More and more Christians might be called upon to make great sacrifices. Already many had suffered for their beliefs in Communist countries.

The Archbishop said he could not go so far as to support those priests who had joined armed revolutionary movements in Latin America. Violence was the wrong way to bring about a better society.

Margaret Trudeau Most Newsworthy Woman

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

Margaret Trudeau has been named most newsworthy Canadian woman of the year 1971 by Canada's newspaper and magazine women's editors and family-page editors.

Mrs. Trudeau, who married Prime minister in March, edged out the voting in a poll of 70 editors. Votes are based on news interest.

They chose Grace MacInnis as the most newsworthy person in the public affairs group, Betsy Clifford in sports, Dr. Jean Sutherland in literature and art.

Anne Murray in entertainment. The vote on the top story of the year was divided evenly split between women's rights and abortion.

The vote for Mrs. Trudeau is not overwhelmingly in spite of a recent issue in stories while she awaited the birth of a child.

Most of the publicity concerning her centred around the first few weeks of their marriage and their official trip to the Soviet Union two months later.

Mrs. Trudeau, 23, is the former Margaret Sinclair of Vancouver. Her father is James Sinclair, a building products company executive and former Liberal fisheries minister.

Her March 4 wedding to the Prime Minister surprised most Canadians including, apparently, friends and colleagues of the bride and groom.

Mrs. MacInnis, NDP MP for Vancouver-Kingsway since 1965, has been chosen most newsworthy women in public affairs for the second time. She has been the only woman member of Parliament since the 1968 election.

This has been a year of honors for her. She was included in a list of 50 of the world's most important women, chosen by correspondents for a Paris magazine, Marie-Claire. Last May, Brock University in St. Catharines, Ont., conferred an honorary LLD on her, and in November she was named Woman of the Year by the Toronto chapter of B'nai B'rith.

Singer Anne Murray was named most newsworthy in entertainment for the second consecutive year.

Miss Murray did several CBC specials and U.S. television shows this year, and was given two Canadian industry awards for her 1970 accomplishments.

In July she was feted by her home town, Springhill, N.S. About 20,000 people turned up for an old home week held to honor her.

Betsy Clifford, the young skier from Ottawa, made news by winning the special slalom in Schruns, Austria, and the slalom in Val d'Isere to finish second in over-all slalom standing at World Cup competition. Miss Clifford is rated by some observers as a skier who might win a World Cup.

In March she was suspended for the season from Canada's national ski team for violating a curfew after the U.S. national competition in Aspen, Colo.

The continuing campaigns for and against liberalizing Canada's abortion laws received as many votes as the biggest news story of the year of particular concern to women as did the story of the growing interest in women's rights.

Several women's editors commented on their choice in general terms, rather than in terms of specific incidents.

Judy Brandow of The Spectator in Hamilton said: "Abortion is the story of the year, but it does not directly involve or affect as many women as the over - all reassessment and changing attitudes of the majority of women. This new thinking, I believe, is the story of the year."

Mary McKim, St. John's, Nfld., Telegram staffer, in a note endorsed by two ex-workers, says: "Margaret Trudeau is indisputably the most write-about woman in Canada, but the woman who, in my opinion, has made the most impact on Canada as a social entity is the woman, the many women, who are awakening to their potential as human beings and seeking to break out of the stereotypes that has been imposed on us for so long.

"It is the woman on the job, in the house, doing the shopping, who is confronting the new challenges and opportunities that are slowly exciting and must be explored if they are to be enlarged to the point where the subject of the equality of women will no longer be a matter of question."

MARRIAGE NOTICE

MARTIN — WOODCOCK — Mr. and Mrs. Roy Woodcock of Belleville announce the marriage of their daughter, Linda Susan, to Mr. Frederick Martin, Rochester, N.Y., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Martin, of Rahway, New Jersey. The marriage took place in the Bethlehem Lutheran Church, Fairport, N.Y. on December 18, 1971. Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Cheyenne Room of Valle's in Rochester.

Local Lawyer Addresses NSA

The December meeting of National Secretaries' Association was held at the Hotel Quinte Fiesta Room with 40 friends and guests present.

Local lawyer Leo Dearborn Luxo introduced the speaker for the evening, Ronald Cass, Q.C., who practised law in Belleville before 1945. Mr. Cass has been active not only in the Quinte area in community service but in the Law Society of Upper Canada and the National Council of the Canadian Bar Association.

Mr. Cass pointed out that Ontario has long been in the forefront with important legislation such as the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Act.

He said "Whereas 30 years ago, the family of the victim of a motor vehicle accident did not be consecutively if the driver was uninsured, this is not so today. By and large we do not insure ourselves, we insure our car. We try on the other fellow's policy to cover us in the event of a motor vehicle accident. Statistics indicate that in 1969 there were 79,302 people injured in motor vehicle accidents and 1683 killed while in the period of January to September of the following year, 1970, figures were approximately 54,059 injuries and 1,188 deaths.

Statistics also indicate that in Ontario only approximately 80 per cent of licensed drivers are insured. However, there is also some evidence to indicate that a sizeable number of accidents involve drivers in this uninsured category. Mistakenly many of these uninsured drivers think they are buying insurance when they pay the $25. fee when obtaining their new licence plates. This is not so — they are not insured. This payment goes into the administration of the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund.

Mr. Cass explained "when you have been innocently involved in a motor vehicle accident in Ontario in which you have suffered personal injury or property damage, with an uninsured owner or driver, you are entitled to make a claim for payment from the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund. A property damage claim is payable providing the amount is not less than $50. No property damage is payable where you are involved with a 'Hit and Run' accident related material. In respect of a 'Hit and Run' accident, you can claim for personal injury subject to proof that you have been a victim of a Hit and Run or unidentified motor vehicle."

He also outlined the procedure for making a claim against the fund. He pointed out that should the uninsured motorist deny liability then you must sue him and it is advisable to consult a solicitor if your own choice as the Director of Claims cannot act as judge and jury between you and the other motorist.

The complexities of the case and the willingness of the uninsured motorist and his solicitor to expedite the conduct of the lawsuit have a great bearing on how long it will take to bring your case to trial if you have to sue.

It was interesting to note that non-residents from Provinces or States other than Ontario are entitled to recover if they reside in a jurisdiction in which recourse of a substantially similar character to that provided by the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Act is afforded to residents of Ontario, provided that no payment shall include an amount that shall include an amount that would not be payable by law of the jurisdiction in which such person resides.

Copies of a brochure outlining this act and its operation are available on request from the Director of Claims, Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund Ontario Dept. of Transport, Ferguson Block, Queen's Park Toronto 5, Ontario.

Mr. Cass was thanked by Kay Kosi.

A short meeting followed with president, Mrs. Gabrielle Watkins presiding. Mrs. Barbara Miller gave a brief report on the preparations for the seminar to be held in the spring and read a letter from Miss Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa voicing her enthusiasm with the project.

Following the meeting the installation ceremony was conducted for new members, Moira Williams, Fay Morden, Merle Simpson and Annis Culhden.

A Chinese Auction was conducted by Mrs. Cathy Ellis and two beautiful pictures of children, painted on black velvet were won by Mrs. Ronnie Meedes of Belleville.

Costume Curator Needs Help in Restoration

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. J. G. Collard needed assistants who know how to launder shirts that are 75 years old, how to repair fabrics fragile with age and how to display them.

As costume curator at a small museum, she has little money to pay people with such rare skills, so she decided to organize a course and train costume assistants.

Working without salary, Mrs. Collard has four in-service trainees at the Joseph Brant Museum. They must put in a minimum of five hours a week for 25 weeks and attend workshops set up by the Costume Society of Ontario and other organizations.

Mrs. Collard is teaching the trainees to do hand repairs on old garments, to launder or dry-clean the garments, pad forms to fit them and how to display them.

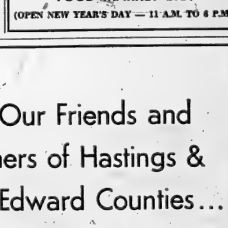
They are assigned on two major restoration projects a year to be done at home. Such a project might involve relining a bridal gown or restoring torn trimming.

"They are not given the easy ones to do."

The students are getting experience in cataloguing garments at the museum and learning how to date them. As a research project they are tracing the background of a pair of clogs with wooden soles which Mrs. Collard bought near Kingston.

She says they will not be experts at the end of the course, but will have practical knowledge and experience and know where to look for information.

She says she is also planning a workshop to teach the design and making of forms to display old garments. The forms must be made to fit garments, not vice versa.



Mrs. Collard says some of her students might go on to pay rag jobs in museums, but there is no guarantee of this.

Reader Requests Ending of Poem Dealing with 'I Was A Stranger . . .'

By DORIS CLARE

Dear Doris: I have been trying to locate the words to a poem that my mother used to recite to us children at Christmas. It starts as follows:

"The night was stormy, the wind was wild,
'Twas drawing near to Christmas-tide.
Yet grim and cheerless, cold and bare
Stood a hut on the dark hillside."

The poem goes on to say that the widowed mother and three children were poverty stricken. But on that night a young lad, a stranger, came to the door and was welcomed to share their meagre food.

In the morning the stranger was gone but in his place was a lovely tree with food and gifts. Then the youngest told of how she had awakened in the night and had seen the stranger who, she claimed, was Jesus Himself. He had come to the loneliest, poorest home with His birthday gift of love. — Hopeful

Dear Hopeful: Perhaps a reader will give you a special New Year's gift by sending us in this poem. Nothing would please me more than to be able to forward it to you — and to anyone else asking for it, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a 20 cents to help take care of copying and handling.

Dear Doris: Could you supply me with the name of someone who would do a handwriting analysis for me? I understand that scientists consider that handwriting reveals a good deal about an individual's personality. — Pen Writer

Dear Pen Writer: A handwriting analyst will pay little attention to the beauty of your well or poorly formed letters. He will be more interested in how you dot your i's, cross your t's, slant your letters, close your a's and a good many other details.

I have a leaflet recommending several good books on the subject, and I'll be sending you the name of a skilled and well-read student of handwriting who does constant research and makes a hobby of analyzing the way people put down what they have to say. Her charge is $2.

(Name available to any correspondents enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.)

Retire now you could start learning — up for that European trip, and spend the winter and spring learning the language of the country you choose to visit.

How about starting out the New Year with a resolution to get something new going in your life by the middle of January? And let nothing — I said Nothing — deter you.

Then you'll find out whether you can still learn or not!

Nurses Have Difficulty In Finding Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — Nurses, like teachers, are finding it difficult to obtain jobs in metropolitan areas. They can't always get what they want, where they want it.

Margaret Sadler, principal of the Ottawa Civic Hospital School of Nursing, says many of the 161 graduates in 1971 did not get the kind of job they wanted. In 1972 there will be 221 graduates and jobs will be even harder to find, she forecasts.

Virginia Lindabury, editor of Canadian Nurse which is published by the Canadian Nurses' Association, says she has noticed a trend towards a surplus of nurses. She says she's glad unemployment insurance for hospital nurses is available.

Classified ads for nursing help have fallen from 25 in nine pages in Canadian Nurse during the last 18 months. The Canadian Nursing Association is conducting research into the job situation.

But for nurses willing to move to smaller centres or to improve their skills, the market still is good.

Comeare, a new firm which specializes in nurse placement and nurse's aides, confirms the higher rate of unemployment among registered nurses, a profession once renowned for its easy job opportunities. The Nursing Order of Nurses had more applications in the summer of 1971 than ever before. Usually it is easier to get jobs in the summer.

Mrs. Labelle says she feels there are ample job opportunities outside the big metropolitan hospitals. For those who will go to smaller towns or will improve their skills to cope with new needs and new jobs, the future can be encouraging.

Family Cooking

Recipes for Tiny Brussels Sprouts

By ALICE DENHOFF

Something special for a special occasion dinner. What to serve, that will look festive, after all that turkey? Well, one suggestion and a good one it is, too, is a crown roast of lamb. Its centre filled with Brussels sprouts cooked in butter and combined with chestnuts. This is a change from the usual forecast stuffing. If fresh chestnuts are a bit difficult to find, then combine the sprouts with tiny whole potatoes, peeled, then boiled and browned in butter until crisp and tender. Having a supply of frozen Brussels sprouts on hand can make things easy for many dishes.

LAMB CROWN WITH BRUSSELS SPROUTS AND CHESTNUTS

1 crown roast of lamb
Garlic slivers
Salt and pepper
1 pound fresh chestnuts (or 8 small potatoes)
2 cups chicken broth or bouillon
2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen California Brussels sprouts
¼ cup butter
Flour

Stud crown with slivers of garlic; let stand 1 hour Sprinkle crown with salt and pepper; rub with flour. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan. Roast in 325 Fahrenheit oven 22 to 25 minutes per pound, or until meat thermometer registers 175 Fahrenheit for medium done. Remove garlic slivers.

Meanwhile, simmer, shelled, blanched chestnuts in chicken broth about 15 minutes or until just tender; remove chestnuts from broth and set aside.

Cook sprouts in same broth until just tender; drain.

About 10 minutes before roast is done, heat butter in skillet. Add chestnuts and saute, shaking skillet to brown nuts evenly on all sides. Add Brussels sprouts and heat to serving temperature. Spoon into centre of crown roast. Serve at once. Serves 8.

* To shell and blanch chestnuts, slash the flat side of each chestnut with a sharp knife. Place chestnuts in pan of cold water. Bring to a boil; boil for 1 minute, then remove from heat. With slotted spoon, remove a few chestnuts at a time from water. Peel, removing shell and brown skin. It's best to keep the unpeeled chestnuts in warm water until ready to peel.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS IN CREAM

2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen California Brussels sprouts
1. Cup shredded Swiss cheese
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
1 cup light cream

Prepare sprouts according to package directions; drain. In 1-quart casserole, toss sprouts with ¾ cup of the cheese, salt and mustard. Add cream and sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake, uncovered, in 375 Fahrenheit oven 30 to 35 minutes until bubbling hot. Serves 6 to 8.

Another nice notion is:

BRUSSELS SPROUTS WITH CASHEW BUTTER

2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen California Brussels sprouts
¼ cup butter or margarine
½ teaspoon savory
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1-3 cup chopped cashew nuts

Cook sprouts according to package directions; drain if necessary. Melt butter over heat in saucepan; add savory, pepper, ingredients. Stir and heat. Add sprouts and toss lightly. Turn into serving dish. Serves 6.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS and blanched chestnuts, good color and taste blend, add pretty touch to crown roast of lamb.

The Christmas meeting of the Hastings Manor Auxiliary was held in the library of Hastings Manor with president Mrs. D. Maclean in charge.

A short business session was conducted. A member of the newspaper is to be started the first of the new year. Thanks were expressed to those who purchased and wrapped Christmas gifts from the Auxiliary to each resident.

After the business session gifts were distributed to each resident by those who were present at the meeting.

At the birthday party held in the auditorium Christmas carols were sung. The oldest residents celebrating birthdays were Mrs. Mary Laflin, 87, and Mrs. Blanche Reid, 82.

Mrs. Ken Harnden and Mrs. A. Parsons poured tea.

Pest Put to Work

Dear Ann Landers: I have a sure cure for these slobby women who inflict themselves on neighbors in the morning when most of us are trying to do our housework, get the laundry done and so on.

When we moved to this city two years ago everyone was very cordial. The neighbors were friendly and considerate. A certain woman fell into the habit of dropping in on me immediately after my husband left for work and the children were off to school. After several months of it, I told her I didn't have time for coffee, but since she seemed to be "free," would she mind polishing the dining room furniture . . . gave her the cloth and polish and I went upstairs. Thirty minutes later she called to me to say she had finished. I replied, "Fine. Now go to the living room. The tables in there really need it."

Five minutes later I heard the front door slam. I went downstairs and found a note on the kitchen table. It read: "If I wanted to do housework, I'd stay home and do my own."

She was quite cool after that little incident and I have never been bothered by her since. If you think this vignette might help someone else pare it along. —Warren, Ohio Winner

Dear Winner: I do and I shall. You've proved there's more than one way to get rid of a pest and get your dining room furniture polished at the same time. Thanks for sharing this bit of shrewdness.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter is getting married soon and our funds are limited. The boy's family was very considerate. We agreed on a guest list of 150. Now we have run into a terrible problem. Although the invitations were addressed to "Mr. and Mrs." some the guests returned their acceptance cards saying they have that much trouble to bring their children. One couple wrote: "Of course we'll have all five youngsters along. We wouldn't want them to miss such a beautiful affair." Several other couples let us know they are bringing a "date" for their daughter or an "intended son-in-law." Another couple wrote: "We'll have my mother and her sister with us. They are visiting."

We don't know what to do, Ann. We haven't the nerve to call these people and tell them they can't bring anyone—that the invitation is for "Mr. and Mrs." Please help us come to a sensible decision.—In A Jpot

Dear Spot: You have a choice. Either keep quiet and foot the bill for the extras, or phone the people and tell them "no extras," in which case you should be prepared to lose a friend. The best way to avoid this problem is to enclose a card saying: "So sorry, this invitation is for 'Mr. and Mrs.' only. The seating facilities are limited." This suggestion comes too late for you, but it might help someone else.

Dear Ann Landers: I am in the fifth grade and already I am writing to Ann Landers. A kid in our class said he was born in a drive-in theatre. He claims his father was driving his mother to the hospital and on the way, they noticed a movie they had both been wanting to see for a long time. So they stopped and he was born suddenly. Is this possible?—Just Wondering

Dear Just: It's possible, but not likely. Usually when a lady is on her way to the hospital to have a baby she is in no shape to enjoy a movie.

AOTS Club Entertains

RAWDON — Rawdon AOTS men's club held their annual ladies' night on Friday evening in Mount Pleasant - Rawdon church hall. The caterers were Hoards United Church Women. Glenn Watson of Belleville was guest speaker. Harvey and Kenneth Couch and Don Campbell provided music for the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spencer sang vocal duets with guitar accompaniment. Mr. and Mrs. Craig Watson led the assembly singing.

Mirror of Your Image

by JOHN CONWELL

Are sloppy teenagers just lazy?

NO; when teenagers are careless about their appearance, nine times out of ten they are expressing their independence or seeking to establish their identity. Take a teenaged girl's sloppy room, for instance. Is it laziness? Apathy? All she may be trying to do is to tell her parents—especially her mother—that she would like to regard her room as her own private place, and, in keeping it a mess, she hopes her mother will stay out of it.

Does everyone dream of self glory?

DREAM of it, nearly everyone might; but actually wanting self glory, that is a different story. Despite the fact that many people visualize themselves in some heroic or spectacular role, most individuals would just as soon live their normal average lives. They will strive for something a bit better, of course, but that is about as far as they want to go—though they would never admit that to anyone else or even to themselves.

Is a girl lucky to nail a 'good catch'?

YES, if she loves him and the man turns out to be the good husband he promised to be. Sometimes, though, a girl isn't so lucky. If the man she chose happens to be someone who suddenly grows so tired of living up to a contrived image that he cannot function as a complete person, then the girl knows her "good catch" no more like a marriage asset. Not only that, but she knows no one will believe she has been had.

Sandwiches Came Back

SOUTHAMPTON, England (CP) — It took a long time but bus driver John Barker's sandwiches finally caught up with him. The package of sandwiches Barker took along with him on a shuttle ride to this Hampshire port from the east coast harbor of Harwich was accidentally loaded on the ship which later carried his passengers to South Africa. Weeks later, Barker received his sandwich package, returned to him from the ship's South African destination point.

Wayne Brown Accepts Senior Coaching Job

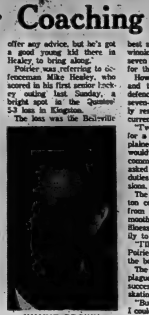
By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Wayne "Weiner" Brown was at home nursing a bowling injury when he agreed to be the new coach of Belleville's senior hockey team.

How does one manage to incur a bowling injury, you ask?

"I hit a headpin a couple of weeks ago and slammed my fist so hard against the wall I almost broke it," explained the affable Brown, giving some indication of what has made him such a popular local sport fixture since his days with the World Hockey Champion McFarlands.

Still a bit bewildered about being offered the job after coach Gene Poirier's resignation was accepted Thursday, Brown said he had some homework to catch up on at Monday night's Quinte practice.



"I haven't seen the club play in about a month. Right now I don't even know what the practice times are."

The choice should be a popular one among the players most of whom were teammates of Brown before he retired from senior hockey the season before last.

Outgoing coach Poirier agreed "They made a good selection. I'm not going to offer any advice, but he's got a good young kid there in Healey, to bring along."

Poirier was referring to defenceman Mike Healey, who scored in his first senior hockey outing last Sunday, a bright spot in the Quinte's 5-3 loss in Kingston.

The loss was the Belleville

WAYNE BROWN

seniors' 15th in 24 games and left them tied with the Aces for the eight-team league's sixth and last playoff spot.

Poirier's terrible bowling injury came just following a three game pace get Belleville's senior hockey entry off to its best start in several seasons, winning five of their first seven games and challenging for the league lead.

However some key injuries and the departure of Aces defencemen helped grease a seven-game losing skid largely responsible for the club's current 8-15 woe-lost record.

"I've been thinking about it for a long time," Poirier explained his resignation. He would not make any other comment, but admitted he had asked to be relieved of his duties on several other occasions.

The 50-year-old CFB Trenton corporal will be retiring from the Armed Forces this month and has had a serious illness in his immediate family to contend with.

"I'll see you at the rink," Poirier added, "I'm still with the boys at heart."

The defensive shortage that plagued Poirier may force his successor to end his senior skating retirement.

"But I don't know whether I could get into shape or not," said the 41-year-old Brown, who has been a playing coach for the Quinte Hockey League's Central Taxi entry this season.

Brown's last senior playing days were spent principally as a defenceman, and he took occasional turns at filling in to coach the now defunct Ice Hawks.

"I'll probably make enough mistakes just coaching, without playing," laughed Brown, who will make his debut in a Jan. 7 road game with Barrie. The Quintes' next home game is a Jan. 8 contest with Orillia. A scheduled New Year's Day Memorial Arena visit by Kingston has been postponed to Wednesday, Jan. 26

Stinson's End Old Hockey Year With Loud Bang

Stinson Construction rang out the old year in style Thursday with an 8-4 win over previously unbeaten Belvedere Hotel.

It was the first loss in 11 games for the Hotelmen, who have been making a runaway of the league pennant race. In the other game played Central Taxi kept a four-point second-place margin over Stinson with a 4-2 win over Reid's Dairy.

Rick Rossbush and Doug Jodah engineered the upset victory for third place Stinson. Rossbush fired four goals and added an assist, while Jodah counted three scores and an assist helped. The other Stinson goal went to Dennis Ray, while Ted Wade was credited with five assists.

For the losers, the goal scorers were Bill Goodfellow, Doug Hallam, Gerry Jones and Larry Marshall.

Two goals by Andy Prud'den paved the way for Central's 4-2 win over the last place Dairymen. Kevin Allen picked up a goal and two assists with the other tally going to Al Walker.

For Reid's it was—Ian Duncan and Paul Goodfellow scoring the goals, while Bill Barberskie drew assists on both markers.

Spoilers' Role New One for Lions

Peterborough Lions will be in the unfamiliar role of spoilers when the Lions come home to the Belleville Bobcats Sunday.

The Lions had their 13-game unbeaten string snapped with a 4-3 loss to the Ottawa Crushmen last Sunday. The Eastern Ontario Junior B league leaders could do some strong snapping of their own with a win over Belleville. The Bobcats are currently riding a six-game unbeaten string, in which they recorded a win over the same Crushmen that tripped Peterborough.

It will mark the second outing of the Belleville B's under the sponsorship of Robert Temple ,who handled the local Senior A team until the season. The Bobcats' 4-8 record this season is good enough to put them in third spot in the six-team league.

The Belleville junior netminding duties will be split. January 7 against the Crushmen Sunday's host is Peterborough is scheduled to get under way at 3 p.m.

Overtime Pays BCI Juniors

BCI's junior basketball team didn't mind working overtime on the holidays, not when it meant winning the Minor Junior Basketball Tournament.

The Collegians scored a 72-71 overtime win over Ringston's ECVI in the championship game of the seven-team tourney.

Pacing BCI in the thriller was Rick Bell with 18 points, Peter LeBaron 16 and Jeff Wilson 12. LeBaron potted 16 in their opening match to lead his team to a 42-32 win over Cobourg East while Bell hooped 18 and Terry Donovan 12 in a 48-27 pasting of Quinte.

In the consolation finals Cobourg West defeated Cobourg East 47-37.

Crescents Threaten To Leave League

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Owen Sound Crescents of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series announced Thursday it will cease operation next Tuesday unless it gets more financial support.

The club executive said in a statement the players have agreed to play Barrie Flyers next Sunday in Barrie, but plan no further activity this season.

The Crescents are in last place in the eight-team series with 13 points, having won only seven of their 25 games so far. Galt Hornets are in first place with 40 points.

Knapp Foils Lady Bowler's Bid

It was no way to treat a lady, but considering the way that lady had been treating his bowling peers, you had to excuse Wally Knapp for failing to put ladies first in last night's Holiday Classic Bowling tournament.

Knapp's opponent in the final game of the double knockout affair was Bea Hunt who had survived the five-pin tourney rigors that saw the other 34 bowlers entered in the competition fall by the wayside.

The Trenton bowler's victory gave him a career sweep of the three major local five pin tournaments. The Trenton competitor has now copped the Mr. Bowling, Intelligencer Gold Cup and the Holiday Classic, which had previously eluded him.

Despite his 30-pin win in the finals, Knapp knew that his female rival wasn't going to be a pushover. Her only previous loss in the event was a narrow 252-248 defeat at the hands of Knapp, who didn't lose a game all night.

Bea Hunt was one of only two women entered in the event, with Jean Calnan failing to score high enough in the four qualifying games to reach double knockout competition.

One of the lady finalist's victims was Jack Canning, who held the city high average for most of the season. Canning had also recorded the high single of the competition with a 343 effort. He finished in third place.

In a tie for fourth and fifth spots were Sel Holpuch of Ajax and Belleville's Bob Hutchison. Sixth, seventh and eighth spots were held by Woody Woodward of Trenton, Ken Calnan of Colborne and Trenton bowler Geoff Davies.

Bassett Expected New Governor

Habs Sold for $Nearly $15 Million

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens, winningest club in National Hockey League history, were sold Thursday by a group of Canadian businessmen who include Bassett and Peter Bronfman of Montreal and John Bassett of Toronto.

Controlling interest in the club's parent company, Canadian Arena Co., was held by Molson brothers—David, William and Peter—for an estimated $15 million in the newly-formed Placement Rondelle Inc., literally translated as "puck investment."

Placement Rondelle's purchased approximately 700,000 Canadian Arena's 1,625,000 shares and in the same guised control of the Canadiens, the Montreal Forum and Nova Scotia Voyageurs of the American Hockey League.

No purchase price was announced at a news conference where the group refused to comment or reports from various sources seemed to agree the shares went for about $23 each or an estimated total of $15 million.

Canadian Arena Co. shares closed on the Montreal Stock Exchange Thursday at $18.25.

The sale ended a 14-year reign by the Molson family over the Canadiens, probably professional hockey's most dazzling and successful team and winner of the Stanley Cup a record 16 times.

The Bronfmans, cousins to Charles Bronfman, principal shareholder in Montreal Expos of baseball's National League, initiated negotiations for Canadian Arena in October but the purchase was accomplished only this week. The signing was completed Thursday morning.

"And yet even at 4 a.m. I was up pacing the floor and wondering if I should call it off," David Molson said at the news conference.

He admitted that federal tax legislation making a capital gains tax effective Jan. 1 was a consideration in getting the business over this week.

"If we had to sell it had to be no later than this week," his brother William added. "If we got into next year the price would go up."

The Molson brothers had been majority shareholders of Canadian Arena since 1958.

The hockey world appeared to be surprised by the sale, especially the reported price.

Coach Billy Reay of Chicago Black Hawks said he couldn't understand the $15 million price tag because the Forum had just been expanded and renovated for "almost $8 million to $10 million."

"But I understand Molson and his brothers have been thinking of selling for quite some time. Problems all get a little great."

Published reports six weeks ago said the Canadiens were up for sale, but David denied at the time that the brothers were actively soliciting the sale.

Jack Kent Cooke, owner of Los Angeles Kings of the NHL, said the reported sale price "doesn't surprise me at all." He figured the Canadiens and Forum were worth an estimated $22.5 million, considering all 1,625,000 shares, and were "certainly worth it."

Bill Hunter of Edmonton, owner of the city's franchise in the proposed World Hockey Association, said he was glad the sale went to a Canadian group but felt the price was too low.

The current going rate for an NHL franchise is $7 million, with new clubs still required to pay $40,000 for each player drafted in the June draft.

That price was paid last season by Buffalo Sabres and Vancouver Canucks when they joined the league and the same price faced Atlanta and Long Island who join the NHL next year. Long Island must also pay $5 million indemnifications to New York Rangers for territorial rights.

Key management personnel will remain with the Canadiens despite the sale. Sam Pollock will continue as vice-president and general manager and Scotty Bowman will remain as coach.

Of the sale, Bowman said: "Well, when you've been through several owners what's the difference?"

Toe Blake, who coached the Canadiens to five straight Stanley Cups in the 1950s and three more in the 1960s, added: "Nothing changes. You've still got to win hockey games."

The sale brings John Bassett, a former major shareholder in Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens and the NHL Maple Leafs, back into hockey.

He is owner of Baton Broadcasting Ltd. of Toronto, which becomes a minority shareholder in Placement Rondelle.

In 1961 Bassett joined with Harold Ballard and the late Stafford Smythe to buy Maple Leaf Gardens from Conn Smythe. He was chairman of the Gardens board until he resigned last January and in September Ballard and Smythe bought out Bassett's 15-per-cent share for $3.8 million.

At that time Bassett announced that Baton Broadcasting had acquired 69.42 per cent of the Argonaut Football Club of the Eastern Football Conference after buying up 25 per cent, worth of stock.

Bassett is expected to succeed David Molson as NHL governor.

Ballard said in Toronto Thursday night he was disappointed to back into hockey.

"We were in it as friends; now we're enemies. I made him $5 million when we were partners. Now I'll try to get it back.

"I only have one warning for him: He'd better keep my pockets laced up."

Financing for the purchase of Canadian Arena was handled by the Bank of Nova Scotia.

President of Placement Rondelle is Edmon Jacques Courtois, 51-year-old Montreal lawyer who is chairman and president of Gaz Metropolitan as well as being a director of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Edward and Peter Bronfman hold no interests in the baseball National Expos. Edward is chairman of Edper Investments Ltd. of Montreal and Peter is president. They made their mark in Canada's financial community mainly through real estate developments.

David Molson told the news conference that other interests can had been attached to any sale of Canadian Arena. "We insisted we would never sell to Americans—only to Montrealers or Quebecers."

The Toronto presence through Bassett bent that condition somewhat.

The sale, especially paired 1017, the Canadiens have fin- tabed in first place in the NHL 20 times and won the Stanley Cup a record 16 times.

When Blake retired in 1968 after winning his eighth Cup, rookie coach Claude Ruel took over and retained it the next year. He left before giving it to Boston Bruins in 1970. Another rookie coach, Al Macnell, recaptured it last season.

The Molson brothers bought their share of the Forum and Canadiens in 1958 from Senator Hartland Molson and Tom Molson, for a reported $5 million. The previous owners had purchased the block in 1957 from the late Senator Donat Raymond, who in turn had bought it from Leo Dandurand.

Drouin Picks Perfect Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jude Drouin's goals don't come as frequently as they did a year ago, but there's no one in Minnesota fans have reason to worry if they come at opportune times.

The North Star centre, whose skyrocketing had been blessed of last year's production at the same stage when he wound up No. 2 man among National Hockey League rookies, scored only his fourth goal of the year Thursday night.

But it proved decisive, lifting Minnesota to a 2-2 tie with Boston Bruins who have lost but one of their last 21 starts.

Last year, at the same stage in the season, the then 22-year-old rookie had nine goals and went on to pile up 52 points, which would have been a record for first-year men except for the arrival of Gilbert Perreault with Buffalo Sabres.

Perreault topped Drouin's two corners with 38 goals and 72 points, both record.

The tie lifted the Bruins to within three points of New York Rangers, East Division leaders, and the North Stars, second in the West, shaved division-leading Chicago Black Hawks' lead to eight.

Buffalo visits Pittsburgh Penguins tonight and Detroit Red Wings entertain California Golden Seals.

In view of the Bruins' current streak, Drouin's score before a packed NHL crowd at Minneapolis—15,573—brought a deafening response and further established general manager Wren Blair as one of the league's wiliest traders.

Blair got Drouin from Montreal Canadiens during the 1970 draft for "future considerations" and concluded the deal after the meetings by sending

JUDE DROUIN

The native of Murdochville, Que., has experienced the expected sophomore lull in goal production during the 1971-72 season, but it hasn't affected his points standing which leaves him about even with his rookie output at the same stage.

His goal took some of the sting out of Boston scores by Phil Esposito, his 30th, and a volley by John McKenzie when centre Gump Worsley misjudged the Bruin winger's 30-foot slapshot.

Dorey Punches Way Out of Leaf Lineup

TORONTO (CP) — What 17,000 fans, packed into Maple Leaf Gardens Wednesday for a morning practice by Toronto Maple Leafs, took to mean Wednesday has cost the National Hockey League three more weeks of defencemen Jim Dorey's services.

Dorey, one of the Leafs solid tradesmen in recent games, lacerated the extensor tendon in the middle finger of his right hand during a fight with teammate Mike Pelyk.

Many of the fans, attracted to the rink by free tickets given out in a supermarket promotion, thought the incident was a mock-up for their benefit.

Even Ley was unaware of the seriousness of it until the first couple of punches in their first encounter. Moments later they were at it again and coach Punch McLellan was almost seen to step a stray fist when Mr. Ley decided to intervene.

The two players retired to the dressing room, but Dorey was later reports they continued their fight behind closed doors. Leaf management would not confirm the report.

Doctors, after examining the damaged finger, said Dorey would not be able to play for three weeks. The tendon was torn about three-quarters through.

Ley lost part of a tooth in the exchange.

"I thought at the start we were only fooling," Ley said later. "Before I knew it, we weren't."

The loss of Dorey added to Toronto's injury list.

Centre Jim Harrison was back in hospital when it was feared infection was setting into his injured voice box. The cracked larnyx was suffered in a game at Buffalo on Dec. 12 and aggravated by team-mate Bobby Baun's stick in a game against Toronto Dec. 29 later against Pittsburgh Penguins.

Centre Dave Keon attended morning practices, but was in another hospital for a physical examination. He apparently is ailing with bronchitis.

Forward Denis Dupere was admitted to hospital after Wednesday night's game with St. Louis Blues. He has a bruised thorax.

Ground Game Vital

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stanford will have to run as well as pass to upset Michigan in Saturday's 55th Rose Bowl game, says Stanford coach John Ralston.

How well the pass-minded Indians run against Michigan Wolverines, a team nobody can effectively against in the past season?

"The power of positive thinking," answers Ralston." . . . If you don't believe you can, you never will."

Stanford, the Pacific-eight champion with an 8-3 record, upset Ohio State 27-17 in the last Rose Bowl and now meets another undefeated Big Ten king in 11-0 Michigan.

The Rose Bowl clash at: Pasadena, Calif., is one of four major college football games Saturday while two others are on tap for tonight.

The two matches tonight see Colorado and Houston in the Astro-Bluc Bonnet Bowl at Houston and Georgia against North Carolina in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla.

The other Saturday games are the Cotton Bowl at Dallas with Penn State facing Texas, the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans with Oklahoma against Auburn and the Orange Bowl in Miami with Nebraska vs. Alabama.

In the Astro-Bluebonnet clash tonight, both seven-game favorites Colorado and 15th-ranked Houston carry 9-3 season records.

Two of the clash's leading rushers—sophomore Charley Davis at Colorado and senior Robert Newhouse for the Cougars, provide the main thrusts of the two teams' attacks.

In the Gator Bowl, the Georgia Bulldogs and Tarheels meet ties over the North Carolina Tar Heels.

North Carolina, in the Atlantic Coast Conference, has running backs Lewis Jolley and Don Hasselbeck who have rushed for 712 yards this season and Canadian George Hamilton who rushed for 594.

Hamilin, from Ottawa, is a 6-foot-1, 205-pound fullback.

In the New Orleans Sugar Bowl, both Oklahoma and Auburn carry 9-0 season records.

The Orange Bowl sees Alabama, 10-0, battling for the mythical bowl victory over Nebraska, also 10-0 this season. Alabama won 39-28 in the 1926 Orange Bowl and 34-7 in the 1967 Sugar Bowl.

Texas, 7-2, goes against undefeated Penn State in the Dallas Cotton Bowl.

BOWLS ARE HIS DISH -- by Alan Mavor

Thomas Silent Cowboy Threat

DALLAS (CP-AP) — Mysterious Duane Thomas is the silent force in the National Football League's most powerful offence, but he and his Dallas Cowboy team-mates may have reason to worry if they harken back to a threat made a year ago.

Thomas and the Cowboy running mate, Calvin Hill, carry their awesome running attack into Sunday's National Conference title game with San Francisco when a re-match of the 1970 clash, won by Dallas 17-10.

Thomas, who has had a running feud with the Cowboy front office, has closed himself into a tight shell.

His performance on the field is above reproach. But he refuses to communicate with reporters and has left the impression he ignores his team-mates.

Hill says Thomas "communicates as much as he did last year.

"He talks to people he is close to. I've talked to him and everybody on this team is his friend."

Thomas, on the second year of a three-year contract, feels the Cowboys shorted him moneywise. After a holdout July tirade against the management and coach Tom Landry, he has kept to himself.

Hill says: "Maybe he feels a lot of things we don't know and it's best to keep it to himself. All of us have problems."

Hill says Thomas is playing on "personal pride."

"He has pride in himself and contentment . . . he has inner peace," Hill says. "A lot of us are trying to find that."

The Cowboys rate solid favorites for their conference match-will be carried by CBC-TV starting at 1:30 p.m. EST.

But 'ther coach Dick Nolan, who said a year ago "We'll be back." said Thursday: "We can't stop now."

His team beat Washington Redskins 24-20 last weekend to reach the title game.

The '49ers'—starting lineup for Sunday's game will be virtually the same as those in last season's title game. The Cowboys also have made few changes.

Running back Vic Washington of the '49ers is the only rookie starter on either team.

Records Without Wins

SASKATOON (CP) — Glenda Reiser of Ottawa didn't win a race at the Saskatchewan Indoor Games but she walked away with two Canadian native records.

It was her feat, along with a brilliant individual performance from Claude Ferragne of Montreal, which overshadowed world-class athletics at the two-day track and field meet which ended Thursday night.

Eight Canadian records were broken at the seventh annual meet, which featured few surprises in major events.

Miss Reiser's records came in invitational women's events when she lowered her best times to Doris Brown of Seattle, a 29-year-old international competitor and co-holder of the world indoor record for 880 yards.

Miss Reiser, 18, a Grade 11 student, set Canadian indoor records while running against higher-class competition. Athletes are allowed to take part in older-age sections and still set records in their own division although they may not finish among the top performers in the better class.

Miss Reiser, who started serious competition in track and field last June after "fooling around" at high school meets, set a Canadian record in the women's intermediate race Thursday afternoon with a time of 2:07.1. She broke the 1970 record set by Doreen Maestro of Vancouver, by 3.1 seconds.

Miss Reiser then stood on the 400-metre race Wednesday, Miss Brown took first place in 2:08.5 and Glenda Reiser also finished in 2:12.8, beating the 1968 record of 2:15.5 set by Sheila Hichard of Toronto.

Miss Brown, silver medallist in the 880-metre distance at the 1971 Pan-American Games, behind Abby Hoffman of Toronto, said of Miss Reiser: "She has tremendous potential and people in Canada don't realize at this stage just how good she is."

Bruce Simpson of Toronto bettered his own Canadian native record of 18 feet 9¼ inches in the invitational men's pole vault. He upset Steve Smith of the Pacific Coast Club, Long Beach,Calif., and Dave Roberts of Rice University in Houston. Smith finished second and Roberts third.

Earlier, a Saskatoon relay team set a Canadian native record in the midget men's 1,000-metre race with a winning time of 3:38.9, topping the previous record of 3:40.4 set by another Saskatoon team last year.

Dolphins on Title Threshold

Shula Has Score to Settle with Colts

MIAMI (AP) — Miami Dolphins began winding down preparations today for the American Conference championship game against Baltimore while coach Don Shula remained his habit about the war of words that followed his decision to leave the Colts.

That bitterness is one of the factors that underscores Sunday's battle en -route to the Super Bowl in a decider third meeting between the clubs this year.

"I don't want to be involved in a verbal discussion about the situation," Shula said when Colts was asked about the outpouring of words that accompanied his leaving the Baltimore coaching job to take the position with the Dolphins last year.

But he admitted: "I am a little bitter at a couple of statements that were made. One thing was what was said by a couple of players who I had great respect for."

Shula did not specify the players he was talking about, but one of the players who made starts about his departure was Bubba Smith, the Colts' huge defensive end.

Shula, who came here at the cost of a No. 1 draft choice awarded by Commissioner Pete Rozelle when he ruled the Dolphins had been guilty of tampering with Shula's services, took a club that had a 6-8 record in 1969 and immediately turned it around.

The Dolphins posted a 10-4 record last season before finishing second to Baltimore in the Eastern Division and then were eliminated by the Colts in a round of the playoffs. This season a 10-3-1 record brought them the Eastern title and, following their first-round victory over Kansas City, they are on the verge of the threshold of their first AFC championship.

The Colts, meanwhile, took a 10-3 beating against Cleveland on Monday night to finish second Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Now is the time to check your budget, career plans, and review your available resources.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): For you the traditions of the New Year come alive to interest you let them. Be open and alive.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Turning a corner, symbolically, is the likely expression of your life today.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Your good will and that in the community are much needed to bridge gaps between you and the people about you.

MONDAY, JAN. 3

Your birthday today: Should find you with too many irons in the fire and preparing to try some expansive, optimistic creations. This is an excellent year for adventure, exploration, research, resettling family arrangements, and relocation, according to the particular circumstances of your life.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Begin the year's activities in good spirits, a fresh attitude, as if it were a new job. Fixed schedules needn't be adhered to in home and family affairs.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Go along with the tide of upward change, try something you haven't before, take initiative. Institutions lead to financial improvement.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Concentrate on building a stronger public image. Distraction in manifold pleasant variety tempts you from all sides.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Expect to add something to your external routine: seek a saving or short cut somewhere else to strike a balance. It's a long day.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): While pursuing profit and progress, bring along your sense of humor, particularly about yourself and your ego.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Everybody has a colored story to tell. Gather co-operation and get over the hump with some major project.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Career opportunity comes and goes briefly this morning. You can be more readily make yourself understood, for better or worse, by speaking up in your local set of yourself subtly expressed.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Vigorous promotional efforts work well for those in materialized ventures. For all there's at least one fresh choice available.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Revision of legal or formal conditions is favored today. You can achieve more by persuasion than by flat demands.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Seek physical expression of your needs. Answers may not appear for a while, but there's consistence, they will.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Open your campaign for a more complete system with zest and the joy of active completion, of which there's plenty.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Bring your loved ones out for a good display of their exhilarating activities. Keep things moving.

One Undescended Testicle Does Not Mean Boy Sterile

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our son aged 13, has one testicle that did not come down. Is it possible for him to have children?

Also we would like to know why one specialist after another told him in recent years to let the situation remain as it is and not have surgery. A friend of the same age was advised to have surgery. Will there be chances of complications in the future?—Mrs. D.B.

Probability is that he can have children, since one testis is properly descended—other things being equal. One undescended testis does not cause sterility.

As to your second question: Undescended testicle is best taken care of in boyhood. Usually treatment with hormones is tried first, as this sometimes succeeds. If it does not, then it can be corrected surgically, a procedure that is done quite often.

Later on (as at your son's age) surgery is ordinarily recommended for several reasons. First, the testis is functionless if it has not descended. Second, it can lead to development of an inguinal hernia. Third, it can be the subject to tissue changes in time to come.

As to why surgeons have declined to operate in your son's case, without knowing the details I can be no more than speculate.

One technical possibility is that this is not truly an undescended testicle—which is high in the canal, not far enough down to be felt in the scrotum. However, if by examination the gland can be felt and is moderately moveable, it is not truly "undescended," and should be left alone.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a new subscriber and would like your comments on degenerative arthritis. I have heard of several different kinds but not this one.

Also, my husband was in the hospital four days with a low back strain and the doctor put on his papers that the symptoms were both objective and subjective. Please explain what that means.—Mrs. F.J.B.

You probably refer to "degenerative joint disease" which is another (and probably more accurate) term for osteoarthritis, or the common "wear and tear" arthritis.

Your other question: The objective portion of an examination is what the doctor observes—a point of tenderness, swelling, tense back muscles, inability to bend the back, or whatever.

"Subjective" refers to what the patient experiences but the doctor cannot himself observe: pain or aching, pain in the leg, or other such items.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I noticed in your interesting column about soda affecting the unborn child.

It does something to them! My husband and I were still attending college when our first child was due. We would attend basketball games regularly, of course. Without fail, when the band would play Stand up you'd always hear "Too loud," made more organic compounds? It is quite expensive.—A.W.

I don't know of any "creme" or medication that will do so; electrolysis is the only permanent method I have ever heard of.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is your opinion of a tongue that removes hair "too good," made more organic compounds? It is quite expensive.—A.W.

Must be, I needed something to cheer me up today. You did it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is your opinion of a tongue that removes hair "too good," made more organic compounds? It is quite expensive.—L.C.

Let's see, would the youngest cheerleader?—L.C.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

Bidding Quiz

Your right - hand opponent deals and bids three hearts. Seconds both sides vulnerable. What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠AQJ7 ♥AK83 ♦64 ♣KQ32
2. ♠Q96 ♥AK4 ♦AQ8 ♣A98
3. ♠AKQ984 ♥AJ5 ♦K4 ♣K9
4. ♠AKJ86 ♥KQJ8 ♦— ♣AQ74
5. ♠AKJ973 ♥KQ ♦10 ♣KJ96

1. Double. The chief purpose of a preemptive bid is to cramp the bidding and make it difficult for the enemy to reach their best contract. Certainly this aim is frequently achieved, and there is nothing unusual about the opponents getting to a bad contract as a result, or in their being completely frozen out of the bidding by the pressure. The best method of defense against a preemptive bid is to bid naturally. Double for takeout, overcall in accordance with your values, and, most important of all, pass when it is unsafe to compete. Here the double is clear-cut. You have too much strength to pass, and it would be dead wrong to overcall with a four-card suit.

2. Pass. Any other action would be fraught with danger, since your left-hand opponent may have most or all of the missing high - card strength and you have a terrible place to land.

3. Three notrump. This may seem radical, but it is likely to be the winning bid. Other possibilities are three spades (which is ultra-conservative), double (which tends to skirt the truth), and four spades (which is more decisive but may not work out as well as three notrump).

Partner requires very little to produce nine tricks in notrump, but needs a pretty good hand for ten tricks in spades. Additionally, partner may have a hand that would make game in spades not in notrump, but all you can do is estimate which partner hand he will be dealt more frequently.

4. Four diamonds. The cuebid, forcing partner to choose between hearts and spades, will be made. Four diamonds strongly invites a slam, and you have all the values suggested by the cuebid.

5. Four spades. The choice lies between three or four spades, and either one could turn out right. Certainly you shouldn't bet your life on making four spades, but that is not the proper test. One of the key factors is how often you would lose a game by bidding only three spades. Nobody has the exact answer to this question, but a fair estimation is to bid three or four, depending on your degree of exuberance at the moment.

Tomorrow: Philosophy of defense.

WIDTH — Tradition, not fashion, has made the width 4 feet, 8½ inches the standard gauge for railroads in the United States, Canada and Great Britain. Why? Because that's the way they built railroads in England, and the English built railroads first. Why did they? Because they used the same jigs and tools that they had used for building wagons, which had used that width for centuries.

NATURE — Nature's way of preventing cross-breeding is to make the males sterile.

Alkenbrack Flays Commission Head

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MP Douglas Alkenbrack clashed briefly Tuesday in the Commons Thursday as he defended a series of accusations against John Carson, chairman of the Public Service Commission.

Mr. Alkenbrack (Frontenac-Lennox and Addington) sought unanimous consent to put a motion calling for Mr. Carson's removal from office.

He said the chairman is "being used by those who seek to subvert the merit system" of hiring federal employees and "I cannot help but wish the office 'under a cloud' with 'outright irregularities' based in many cases on race and language, Mr. Alkenbrack alleged.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux interrupted to caution Mr. Alkenbrack that the rule under which he was speaking gave no chance for a defence against such allegations.

As Mr. Alkenbrack continued in the same vein, Douglas Rowland NDP-Selkirk also interrupted to ask whether there was a procedure for a public servant against "an unprincipled attack" in the Commons.

Mr. Lamoureux said this was the point he had been making. There was no possibility of reply against an attack in such circumstances.

The Speaker said the Commons should look into the operation of the rule "if it is going to be used in the way it is being used now."

Compromise Reached

Longest Debate of Century Ends as Marketing Bill Passed

OTTAWA (CP) — After nearly two years of squabbling the Commons finally passed the farm products marketing bill this morning.

Passage came following an all-night sitting that ended at 6:46 a.m. EST.

The scheduling session, which began at 3 p.m. Thursday, was one of the longest in Canadian parliamentary history.

The NDP's Stanley Knowles, an expert on Parliament, said it certainly was the longest of this century.

The bill, which would set up a national farm products marketing council which would in turn recommend establishment of national marketing agencies for particular commodity groups, was expected to receive Senate approval later today.

As soon as it does members of the two chambers will gather to witness royal assent and adjourn for holidays, returning to Parliament Hill Feb. 14.

The Commons was to sit again at 11 a.m. to debate a motion to adjourn while the Senate was to meet at 11 a.m. to consider the bill for third reading.

Passage of the bill—which has been long delayed by tactics of obstruction and which had to be re-introduced this session after failing to get through in 1970—was achieved by means of an all-party "gentlemen's agreement spurred by the spectre of a winter without holidays.

Despite their agreement to get the bill through, some opposition members expressed their displeasure to the last.

Third and final reading was given on an informal voice vote, with a pp in the Hansard record recording their dissent by shouting "on division."

Earlier, however, there were a total of 13 recorded votes at report stage and at third and final reading.

The compromise agreement to expedite passage of the bill, reached Thursday morning, involved concessions on the part of the government—one amendment to accommodate the Conservatives and one the New Democrats.

In return, the opposition agreed to allow the bill to come to a vote at 6 a.m. today after it opened Thursday afternoon at 2 p.m.

More significant than either of these was one Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson said he was making to keep the provinces happy.

In situations where national marketing agencies are created to set marketing regulations and production quotas for the commodities they deal with, other than poultry products, Parliament will have to approve any production-control schemes before they can be implemented.

The amendment for the Conservatives provides that provincial governments formally state that the majority of producers of a given commodity are in favor of a marketing agency before production in that province are brought into such an agency.

But poultry products will not be subject to that provision either.

For more than 1¼ years the chicken and the egg industries have been in such disarray that there has been pressure to establish national marketing agencies immediately.

The amendment strengthens provisions already inserted into the bill during committee—under opposition pressure—that say both the federal government and the national marketing council must be satisfied a majority of producers want a marketing agency before it is established.

The amendment for the NDP requires that a marketing agency consider the historical production distribution of a commodity before it sets regional production quotas.

The NDP point was that the Prairie provinces, which have traditionally shipped their agricultural products to central Canada, should not lose their share of that market.

Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot), one of the leaders in the fight against the bill since it was introduced in March, 1970, lost votes on several more proposed amendments, including two that would exempt beef and pork from the bill.

At one time Mr. Olson, a cattle rancher himself, had agreed that cattle could be exempted. But members of the NDP and

Outspoken PC and Quiet Liberal Broke Impasse

OTTAWA (CP) — When the Commons heaved a collective sigh in the early hours of Friday over the passage of the controversial farm marketing legislation, it marked the end of the most delicate and difficult negotiations since the Trudeau government assumed office.

And if two private MPs hadn't got their heads together two days earlier, there is a good chance the bill would not have been approved for weeks.

The stakes were much higher than the usual passage of another bill—and there were times in the last two days when all sides were despondent about the situation.

The final breakthrough came only when Jack Horner, the normally boisterous Conservative MP from Crowfoot, got together Tuesday night with Bruce Beer, the quiet Liberal chairman of the Commons agriculture committee, and decided to start again from scratch.

The various party House leaders were later to get credit for working out an acceptable deal on the passage of the bill—and they did work feverishly on it—but those talks on the scene up it was the Horner-Beer meetings hath set the stage for final approval.

The government was determined to see the measure through the Commons prior to the winter recess—partly because it is normally easier to get legislation approved on the eve of holidays, and partly because it wanted to clear the deck for pre-election legislation in the spring session, expected to start Feb. 7.

For more than 18 months, the bill had been before the Commons—off and on—and the government knew all the opposition objections.

The Conservatives, led by Mr. Horner, strenuously objected to cattle being included in proposed national farm marketing boards. There were other objections, too, including some from the New Democratic Party, but Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson felt these could be eased with some compromises and that the bill would be approved by Christmas.

He agreed on an amendment to eliminate cattle from the existing legislation. This satisfied the Conservatives, but two days before the Christmas holidays it ran into unexpectedly strong criticism from the NDP. Arnold Peters (Timiskaming) insisted that cattle be included.

The negotiations deteriorated, a filibuster followed, and the House was recalled for an unusual Christmas week sitting. The mood of the chamber crystallized.

Party negotiators also were feeling the strain.

When Liberal House Leader Allan MacEachen told his caucus Mr. Olson had offered to meet Conservative demands for the exclusion of cattle, there was an angry outcry. Not only did a majority of members want cattle in, but even more they did not want Mr. Horner to win an apparent political victory on the Prairies.

Conservative House Leader Gerald W. Baldwin was running into similarly divided opinions within his party—particularly from Jack McIntosh (PC—Swift Current-Maple Creek) who had committed himself to fighting the bill. Stanley Knowles of the NDP also had trouble trying to reach unanimity in his party.

The Liberal caucus was told how important it was to get the bill through. If a new session begins Feb. 17 there would be only 11 days for legislation prior to the Easter recess—because of time allotted to the throne speech debate, the budget debate and opposition days.

With a spring election a possibility, the government wanted to achieve more by Easter than an angry debate over a rejected farm bill.

It was pointed out to individual MPs that of the 52 pieces of legislation forecast in the last throne speech only 18 were approved, although the 53 approved bills represented no small achievement.

But by Wednesday it appeared agreement was far off, and the government made clear it didn't want to force a deadline on the heels of the one imposed to force the tax bill through.

MPs were talking about a long siege.

But this time it was Mr. Beer who reported to caucus on the bill, and his talks with Mr. Horner.

He was optimistic that an agreement could be reached, starting from scratch with new amendments that wouldn't drastically alter the legislation but would satisfy the political and strategic aims of all parties.

About the same time, Mr. Horner was getting an ovation from his party for saying roughly the same thing.

Quick conversations with the NDP confirmed that this new approach would satisfy its demands.

Since there had been many drawn-out debates, a deadline had to be on the same footing with other products, the acceptable cut-off was that all products—with the exception of eggs and poultry products—be held outside the immediate legislation until producers requested their inclusion.

The change was not great—but it satisfied Conservative demands that cattle be outside the legislation, and it satisfied some NDP and Liberal demands that cattle not be given special status.

There were dozens of phone calls, group meetings, corridor discussions, last-minute discussions and, by Thursday morning, Mr. MacEachen, Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Knowles reported to each other that everything was on the rails.

The Social Credit party was not deeply involved in the negotiations because, while it did not like the legislation, it would not prolong the debate.

But there was a catch. In order to get the bill first Social Credit MP they were able to make contact with Thursday was Gerard Laprise (Abitibi)—a highly agreeable negotiator. He went along with the plan.

At 1:45 p.m., 15 minutes before the Commons met, Mr. MacEachen had the new amendments printed and distributed.

After that it was only a matter of a marathon debate.

Sports on All Fronts

MELBOURNE (AP) — Second-seeded Ken Rosewall of Australia beat Jean Paul Meyer of France and Alan Stone eliminated Britain's Mark Cox Thursday, leaving only one foreign player in men's singles play at the Australian Open tennis championships.

The only non-Australian remaining is Russian Alex Metreveli who did not play Thursday.

Evonne Goolagong of Australia, the Wimbledon champion, led the way into "the women's semi-finals with a 6-1, 3-6, 6-1 victory over Barbara Hawcroft of Australia.

Rosewall, 36, defeated Meyer 6-3, 6-4, 6-1.

OTTAWA (CP) — Brock University battled Carleton University Ravens past the final buzzer Thursday to win the annual Carleton invitational basketball tournament, 69-59.

John Corlett scored the winner on the last shot of the game which actually went through the hoop after the final buzzer had sounded.

His late-game heroic—after Brock had held the ball from Carleton for the final minute of the game—almost, but not quite, overshadowed the scoring wizardry of Peter Hamilton, who hit for 30 points as the game and was named the most valuable player.

Storm Strikes Peewees

It was stormy weather for Oshawa Thursday night, but even stormier for the Richard Ellis house league peewees.

The Oshawa OMHA entry was forced to cancel a scheduled exhibition bout with the Ellis Ice Cats when peewee minors last night because of weather conditions. Richard Ellis then stepped into the breach, but were handed a 5-1 setback by the Belleville all-stars.

Scoring for the winners were Dan Cox, David Harris and Tim Coates with singles, and Dan Duffy with a pair of goals. The lone Richard Ellis goal went to Terry Pearce.

Bounty Soured For Top Teams

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's Canadian sports performers, 1971 was a year when a bountiful harvest rotted in the granaries, for others it simply marked the end of a drought, and still others made it a time for farming out to pasture.

Boston Bruins were perhaps the happiest harvesters as they set dozens of National Hockey League scoring and points records. But their hopeful of bonny west year when they went up against an unknown Montreal Canadiens goalie in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Calgary Stampeders ended a 25-year drought by winning the Grey Cup. They beat Toronto Argonauts on the second-to-last 10-year famine just by getting to the Canadian Football League championship game.

And going out to pasture were a number of well-known professionals such as Gordie Howe, Jean Beliveau, Glenn Hall and Ron Stewart.

Led by all-stars Phil Esposito at centre and Bobby Orr on defence, the Bruins made a shambles of the record book on their way to winning the NHL East Division championship for the first time since 1940-41.

Among their records were Esposito's 76 goals and 76 assists and Orr's 37 goals and 102 assists.

But one of the biggest surprises of the year came when the Bruins met the Canadiens in the quarter-final playoffs and lost in seven games, blaming most of their frustrations on Ken Dryden, the rookie netminder for Montreal.

The Canadiens went on to win their 13th Stanley Cup in 28 seasons. Subsequently Montreal centre and team captain Beliveau announced he was retiring after 18 NHL seasons.

A few months later Howe announced he was quitting after 25 years with Detroit Red Wings and the start of the 1971-72 season also saw St. Louis Blues without Hall in goal.

Stewart announced his retirement from the CFL's Ottawa Rough Riders and Winnipeg's Don Duguid left competitive curling after his second consecutive victories in both the Canadian and world championships.

Women were again outstanding in the amateur field with track and field stars Debbie Brill and Abby Hoffman, Ekelebeth and swimmers Donna-Marie Gurr and Leslie Cliff leading the Canadian contingent at the Pan-American Games in Colombia.

The girls won, or helped win, all but two of 19 gold medals the most gold Canada has ever collected in the Pan-Am contests.

It was a good year, as well, for Canadian amateur golfers, with Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., winning the U.S. amateur championship and Roselyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., the Canadian and New Zealand women's titles.

Also reaping rich rewards was harness horse driver Herve Filion whose star-dardbred stable at Lachove, Que., helped him beat the world record of 3,446 career wins held by Billy Haughton of the U.S.

The $1,770,000 earned by horses Filion drove in 1971 was also a single season record.

Vancouver's Karen Magnussen repeated as Canadian women's figure skating champion, and went on to take the North American title and a bronze medal in world competition.

Fergusson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., posting a 24-13 won-lost record for Chicago Cubs, became the first Canadian to win the Cy Young Award as the National League's outstanding pitcher.

Meanwhile, quarter-back Don Jonas from Swanton, Pa., won recognition as the CFL's outstanding player, winning the league scoring championship and leading Winnipeg Blue Bombers to the playoffs for the first time in five years.

But it was Toronto, the club that traded Jonas away to Winnipeg, that made it to the Grey Cup along with the Stampeders, although Argos had their share of last-minute disappointments as well.

Playing on rain-soaked artificial turf in Vancouver, the Argos slipped, slid and fumbled their way to a 14-11 loss to the Stampeders.

But coach Leo Cahill, after seeing his claim that "I never raise on the Argonauts" washed down the storm sewers, proclaimed his team was good enough to come back next year.

Trudeau's Marriage Is Voted Top '71 Canadian News Story

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The surprise marriage of Prime Minister Trudeau to 22-year-old Margaret Sinclair in North Vancouver last March 4 was Canada's top news story of 1971.

The story broke at 4:48 p.m. March 4 when a Trudeau aide telephoned the Vancouver bureau of The Canadian Press with the surprise announcement that the prime minister had married the daughter of Jimmy Sinclair, former Liberal fisheries minister.

Another chapter in the Trudeau story started when Mrs. Trudeau gave birth to a son in Ottawa on Christmas Day.

The marriage story was the overwhelming favorite of newspaper editors and broadcasters in a year-end poll conducted by CP. Selections were made by editors representing CP member newspapers and radio and television stations served by CP's associated company, Broadcast News Ltd.

The landslide at St. Jean Vianney, Que., May 4 which killed 28 persons was a distant second in the voting for the top Canadian story, while other editors voted for the attack on Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin in Ottawa Oct. 18, the April riot at Kingston penitentiary, the state of the economy and the upset of Premier Joseph Smallwood's Liberals in the Newfoundland election Oct. 28.

The top world story in the opinion of the editors was the United States government's economic restrictions announced by President Nixon in Washington Aug. 15.

It was the first time in four years that U.S. economic measures in space failed to take the top spot.

For the fourth year, Prime Minister Trudeau was voted the most newsworthy Canadian while President Nixon was again selected the most newsworthy world figure.

Dr. Gerhard Hersberg of the National Research Council, named 1971 winner of the Nobel Prize in chemistry, was rated the most newsworthy Canadian outside public affairs.

He narrowly edged sinner Anne Murray of Springhill, N.S., who also finished second in the same category last year behind hockey player Bobby Orr.

Editors were asked to select the six top Canadian stories and the four top world stories. The results:
